INSURGENTS CRACK OUTER DEFENSE LINE OF BILBAO

Fascist Army, Advancing With Aid of Artillery and Planes, Captures Part of Steel and Concrete Fortifications.

BASQUE CAPITAL ALSO UNDER FIRE

Waterfront Houses Set Ablaze — Barracks and Water Reservoirs Are Other Objectives of Rebel Bombardment.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, French-Spanish Frontier, June 12.—Bilbao waterfront houses were set afire today by a combined aerial and artillery bombardment as an insurgent offensive was reported to have cracked the outer line of the city's main defenses.

The aerial attack was concentrated on the waterfront, militiamen's barracks and water reservoirs. A squadron of 39 insurgent bombers flew over Amurrio, Galdacano and other communities near Bilbao for 12 hours, dropping bombs on the towns and machine-gunning defense positions.

Insurgent headquarters said Gen. Fidel Davila's attacking forces occupied the entire front section of the Basques' steel-and-concrete line, a semi-circle of intrenchments extending from a few miles south of Bilbao to a few miles north.

Basque defense authorities insisted the ring around the city was not actually penetrated at any point. They announced the body of an insurgent pilot, shot down yesterday, had been identified through documents as that of a German.

Thousands of Basque reinforcements were rushed to the front.

Skies Clear Again.

After almost a week of inactivity because of spring storms, the insurgents began powerful attacks against Lemona and Galdacano, their aviation benefited by clearing skies.

The insurgent left flank, meanwhile, drove toward Ceberio in an effort to cut off the retreat of the Government forces in Amurrio, farther south of Bilbao.

One air squadron seemed to concentrate on a row of villages skirting Galdacano, the Government's most heavily fortified position, five miles southeast of Bilbao.

Defense troops clung to their positions at Lemona, their main barrier against an insurgent advance into Galdacano since they lost strategic Lemona Peak, a natural fortress.

At another vital defense point, Munguia, on the fortified ring northeast of Bilbao, insurgent dispatches said defense forces were being evacuated.

The reports indicated that the Basques were retiring under fire, as Munguia was one focal point in the insurgent attack. A prolonged shelling was followed there by rifle and mortar fire and continuous trench warfare.

Other insurgents evidently aimed at the Ordina road near Cerberio. Rebel control of the road would lay Bilbao open to attack from a new position south of the capital.

Advance of 2½ Miles.

The first day's advance yesterday was reported to have covered two and a half miles despite steel and concrete obstructions. Rebel headquarters announced all designated immediate objectives had been taken. One position reported captured was San Pedro, 10 miles directly west of Bilbao. Others were named as Arachabalgumes, Mendortyo and Sica.

"The first line resistance no longer exists," a communique said.

The attackers were pushing forward between the first and second lines of the three-line fortification, it was said.

Reports from the defense lines told of severe artillery bombardments by the rebels, particularly against infantry and tanks at some points. They said insurgent attacks against Sica, about four miles east of Derio where a heavy aerial bombardment was reported, was repulsed and offset by several counter-attacks.

Mrs. McCann Settles With Government for Levy on Stock Gifts She Made to Three Children.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 12.—A gift tax claim which the Government made against Mrs. Helene Woolworth McCann, eldest daughter of the late Frank W. Woolworth, 5-and-10-cent store founder, was settled yesterday for $1,082,889.36, it became known today.

Payment was made to Joseph T. Higgins, collector for the Third District.

The case was reported based on a difference of opinion of the value of gifts of Woolworth Co. stock to three children of Mrs. McCann: Frazier McCann, Mrs. Helena W. Guest and Mrs. Constance McCann Betts. The precise amount of the gifts was not made public, but it was understood they aggregated more than $15,000,000.

The settlement was based on deficiencies of $964.74 for the year 1934 and $1,006,846.90 for 1935. The difference between those sums and the amount paid the Government represented interest accumulated during the legal proceedings.

Mrs. McCann paid $227,190.78 in Federal gift taxes in 1934, and the following year paid a total of $3,038,217.54. These sums, the Government claimed, were below the legal rate according to a proper valuation of the amount of Woolworth company stock involved.

Mrs. McCann is the aunt of the former Barbara Hutton, now Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow.

NAZIS TAKE STORE FROM JEWS

Biggest Retail Establishment in Berlin Expropriated.

(Copyright, 1937.)

BERLIN, June 12.—The Wertheim Corporation, Berlin's largest department store, with branches in the provinces, will be "Aryan-owned" from July 1, members of the Jewish Wertheim family being eliminated from the management.

Wertheim's has been a family concern ever since 1875, when the parents of the present owner opened a modest shop in Stralsund, Pomerania. Ten years later they opened the first department store in Berlin, to be followed by three others in the capital alone. George Wertheim, the present owner, tried to avoid turning over the firm to the Nazis by transferring the bulk of the shares to his wife. Only 20 per cent of the stock will remain in the family hands.

CHINESE MUTINY LEADER GETS $300,000, TRIP AROUND WORLD

Sum Paid to General, Who Helped Keep Chiang Prisoner, to Get Him Away for Time.

By the Associated Press.

NANKING, China, June 12.—China's Treasury gave a million dollars Mex yesterday to Gen. Yang Hu-Chen, former co-leader of the Sianfu mutiny in which Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was kidnaped, and told him to take a trip around the world.

He will sail on June 29 aboard the liner President Hoover toward Los Angeles with a commission from Chiang to "investigate military and economic conditions in the United States and Europe," well informed persons said.

The money (about $300,000 in United States currency) is for "traveling expenses and pocket money."

Generalissimo Chiang, however, neither expects nor desires to receive reports from the man who helped keep him prisoner for 13 days in the Christmas-time desolation of rebellious Sianfu last December. Nor does China expect to get any of the money back; what Yang doesn't spend he can keep.

ROOSEVELT AND HIS GUESTS ON CHESAPEAKE BAY CRUISE

President Likely to Transfer to Schooner on Which Son, James, Sailed.

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 12.—The U. S. S. Potomac, with President Roosevelt and guests aboard, sailed away from a Naval Academy dock at 5:30 p. m. yesterday on an overnight cruise down Chesapeake Bay.

A radio dispatch said the Potomac left Sharps Island at 8:40 a. m. for Solomon's Island, about 25 miles from the point where the Potomac River joins the bay.

James Roosevelt, on the private schooner Sewanna, planned to stay close to the Potomac in event the President wished to transfer for a short sail.

The President expects to land at the Washington Navy Yard tomorrow evening.

The President took along an extra blue flag denoting his rank indicating to reporters he would transfer from the Potomac to the Sewanna if conditions are good. His guests aboard the Potomac are Attorney-General Cummings, Secretary and Mrs. Wallace and Miss Marguerite Le Hand, his personal secretary.

25 MORE INDICTED FOR VOTE FRAUD IN KANSAS CITY

Election Officials and Party Workers in Three Wards Named by Second Federal Grand Jury.

TOTAL NOW IS 151; INQUIRY CONTINUES

Investigation Moves for First Time Into Southern Part of City—Policeman Among Those Accused.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 12.—A Federal grand jury late yesterday returned four indictments charging 25 election officials and party workers with conspiracy to deprive citizens of their right of franchise. The indictments, first returned by the second grand jury investigating vote fraud here, bring the total number of persons indicted to 151.

The grand jury, charged by Federal District Judge Merril E. Otis to investigate frauds in the Nov. 3 election, reported indictments of 12 persons in the First Ward, seven in the Fifteenth and six in the Twelfth.

The indictments in the First Ward charged that 75 Republican ballots for Landon and Knox had been altered to votes for Roosevelt and Garner in the Fifteenth Precinct and that 68 ballots for Lowell Johnson, Republican candidate for Congress, had been diverted to Joseph B. Shannon, Democratic candidate.

The First Ward is one of the readily deliverable organization strongholds. It is regarded as a mainstay of the Pendergast organization. When the Federal investigation began influential members of the organization often stated that the investigators would find "nothing wrong" in that ward.

Southern Part of City Involved.

The indictments marked the first time the vote investigation had moved into the southern part of the city, where the Fifteenth Ward is.

Those indicted in the Ninth Precinct of the Fifteenth Ward are: Jennie Sanders and La Verne Lang, Democratic judges; Benjamin F. Bybee, Republican judge; Joe Mahoney, Dan McCarty, John Cosgrove and Dan Pierre, Democratic precinct workers.

Those indicted in the First Precinct of the Twelfth Ward are: Marion North and Mary Martin, Democratic judges; Rolla C. O'Byrne, Republican judge; Anna Holbrook, Democratic clerk; George Hunter, Republican clerk, and Roy North, Democratic precinct captain.

In the First Ward, the following were indicted: Morris Stephens, Dennis Sheedy, Harry Goldberg and Earl B. Wimans, Democratic Judges; Grace B. Clark and W. D. Gorman, Democratic clerks; J. P. Bailey and Dick Burus, Republican clerks; W. J. McMahon and Harvey Rosenberg, Democratic precinct captains; Leo Gilliam, member of the Kansas City Police Department, and Morris Goldstein, Republican judge. The jury's report did not say what part Gilliam, the policeman, played in the election.

Attorneys Before Grand Jury.

Announcement of the grand jury's action came after day-long questioning of attorneys for 41 persons already convicted in Kansas City's long series of vote fraud trials. The first grand jury indicted 126 persons.

Judge Otis suggested the attorneys be called in an effort to learn who paid their fees. Also summoned were past and present Jackson County election commissioners and a representative of the surety firm which has posted bond for most of the defendants.

Judge Otis recessed the jury until June 29 as soon as it had made its report. He said in ordering the recess:

"Gentlemen of the grand jury, I have been informed by the press and other sources that you have been making an inquiry as to matters about which I have charged you generally. Of course, I expected you to do that. I hope you will continue to pursue this line of investigation to its end. Find out who these people are, if any, who are for the defendants and find out the purpose behind it."

In his original instructions he charged the jury to disclose, if possible, the "arch-conspirators, the higher-ups, if there are any."

Petitions are in circulation here requesting Gov. Stark to send Attorney-General McKittrick to Kansas City to investigate the non-enforcement of the State election laws.

POLICE QUESTION HOUSEKEEPER IN KIDNAPING CASE

LOCAL OFFICIALS, U. S. AGENTS SPLIT

County Authorities Say They Got No Co-operation—Fruitless Search for Missing Woman.

By the Associated Press.

STONY BROOK, N. Y., June 12.—Investigators plied a Russian woman with patient questions today on life at "Long Meadows" farm from which Mrs. Alice McDonell Parsons was kidnaped.

The hoped for contact with the kidnapers apparently had not been established today.

State police, pursuing their own investigation while Federal agents moved secretly, concentrated on questioning Mrs. Anna Kupryanova, housekeeper in the Parsons household. It was Mrs. Kupryanova who told of seeing the 38-year-old heiress get into an automobile with a middle-aged man and woman Wednesday morning and drive away on a trip from which she has not returned. A crude note demanding $25,000 ransom was later found at the farm.

Across from Mrs. Kupryanova in the Bay Shore police station sat Alex Kupryanova, 43-year-old match factory worker, who came from Long Island City yesterday and told police he was her former husband.

She Had Not Mentioned Him.

Assistant District Attorney Joseph S. Arata of Suffolk County emerged from the conference early this morning to say that Mrs. Kupryanova agreed he was her ex-husband, though she had not mentioned Kupryanova in her earlier story of two former marriages.

Arata said the woman also identified Kupryanova as the father of her 11-year-old son, Roy, who lived with her on the Parsons' poultry farm. Kupryanova, Arata said, dismissed that statement as "impossible." She previously had said the boy was the child of her first husband, who died in an automobile accident.

Kupryanova was quoted as relating he divorced the woman in Cleveland, O., in 1928, but rejoined her in operating a boarding house in Bridgeport, Conn., in 1930.

She went to New York six months later, he said, and he had not seen her since.

The questioning was broken off at 3 a. m. with the announcement that it would be resumed later this morning. Mrs. Kupryanova was taken back to the Parsons' home while Kupryanova remained at the barracks overnight.

Woman Changed Name.

It was disclosed the Russian woman had changed her name to Parsons when she took out naturalization papers in 1936. Her son became "Roy Parsons" at the same time.

The missing woman's husband, William H. Parsons, haggard and worn, went through the motions of caring for his squab farm, refusing all comment after he had twice appealed for freedom from police supervision in attempts to make contact with his wife's supposed abductor.

He refused to discuss reports that a second note had been received, supplementing the one found under the cushions of his car, 18 hours after Mrs. Parsons disappeared. That message bluntly demanded $25,000 "or you will never speak to Alice again."

Federal agents, on the surface at least, were remaining aloof, pending the result of family efforts to get in touch with the kidnapers. After Parsons' appeals for freedom and the assurance of his brother-in-law, Richardson Pratt, executive of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, that the ransom would be available, the Government men, working under Rhea Whitley, did nothing except quietly explore the countryside.

The Federal agents went their own way after Suffolk County authorities had heatedly announced severance of their investigation from that of the Department of Justice. The reason, said Assistant District Attorney Harry Brenner, was that the local authorities had received no co-operation from the Federal investigators and had even been barred from the boarding house where Whitley had established headquarters.

Indication that the family was making use of private resourses in the case was seen in the arrival late yesterday of Capt. Herbert Mosher, head of Pinkerton Detective Agency in New York. Another new arrival was Inspector Harold R. King of adjoining Nassau County. King participated in the Benjamin P. Collings, Starr Faithfull and other mysteries, likewise refused to explain his presence.

By the Associated Press.

EL FASHER, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, June 12.—Amelia Earhart, flying around the world, arrived here late today after a flight from Fort Lamy, French Equatorial Africa.

She expected to leave for Khartoum, also in the Sudan, at 5:30 a. m. Sunday.

Miss Earhart landed here following a flight of about 900 miles from Fort Lamy. It is about 500 miles farther northeast to Khartoum.

She got a late start this morning, due to the necessity of adjusting the shock absorbers on her plane. They were damaged when she landed at Fort Lamy. She had planned originally to fly from Fort Lamy to Khartoum in one hop.

10 GIRLS DROWNED IN FLOOD IN GERMAN VALLEY TOWN

EDESHEIM, Germany, June 12.—Ten girl members of a Hitler Youth group were drowned yesterday when a flood swept down the Moderbach valley and trapped them while they were dressing after a swim.

The girls had come from the nearby village of Rhodt which, like the three other Palatinate villages of Hainfeld, Weyher and Edenkoben, was inundated by the flood.

After a cloudburst and thunderstorm, waters of Moderbach brook suddenly swelled to a torrent, burst into the valley where the swimming bath was situated, and swept the girls to their deaths.

DEMOCRATS OWE $50,000 TO MINE WORKERS' UNION

Report to House Also Lists 307 Individual Corporations and Labor Purchasers of Campaign Book.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 12. — The Democratic National Committee reported to the clerk of the House yesterday that receipts totaled $612,455 and disbursements $606,350 between March 1 and May 31.

The "victory dinners" held throughout the country netted $368,824 and receipts from sale of "The Book of the Democratic Natonal Convention of 1936" were set at $165,905. Contributions of more than $100 each totaled $70,544.

The report said the committee's unpaid obligations on May 31 amounted to $216,581 and the cash balance to $48,782.25. Included in the unpaid obligations was a loan of $50,000 from the United Mine Workers of America.

Representative Snell of New York, House Republican leader, told reporters early this week he would propose a congressional investigation into the sale of convention books autographed by President Roosevelt. He said the books were being sold to corporations, some by contract, for as much as $250 a copy. He added that the Corrupt Practices Act made it unlawful for a corporation to contribute to a political party.

Purchasers of Campaign Book.

The report listed 307 individual, corporation and labor organization purchasers paying $100 or more for the books.

They included: Brotherhood of Transportation Workers, Philadelphia, $1000; Raymond N. Beebe, Washington, $1000; Inland Steel Co., Chicago, $1000; Bellinger Realty and Construction Co., San Antonio, Tex., $1000; Brown & Bigelow, St. Paul, Minn., $2000; Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, Hollywood, $1000; Walter P. ALL ADMITTED THEIR GUILT AT SECRET TRIAL

Even Place of Hearing Is Concealed — Highest in Rank Among Condemned Is Marshal Tukhachevsky, Noted Strategist.

DETAILS OF CHARGES ARE WITHHELD

Pravda, Party Organ, Asserts That They "Sold Out Fatherland for 30 Pieces of Fascist Silver."

MOSCOW, June 12.—The government announced today that Marshal Michail N. Tukhacevsky and seven Generals, condemned to death for treason, had been executed.

(Copyright, 1937, New York Tribune, Inc.)

MOSCOW, June 12.—Eight of the Red army's top-flight officers were sentenced to death today by court-martial for treason to the Soviet state.

The curt announcement stripped each officer of his military rank and condemned each to be shot. No announcement of the place or time of the executions was made.

The eight officers, including Marshal Mikhail N. Tukhachevsky, one of the foremost military figures of the Soviet Union, had been accused of and had confessed selling out the workers' fatherland to a "foreign Government conducting an unfriendly policy against the U. S. S. R." The newspaper "Pravda" yesterday disclosed that it was a Fascist Government which was involved.

No Appeal Permitted.

In the biggest military sensation in the history of the Soviet Union, the eight defendants faced eight of their former comrades in arms, including two marshals, in a secret trial, even the location of which was not revealed, and under a law which allowed them no appeal or plea of mercy, but provided for their immediate execution.

Until more details are published, only speculation is possible concerning the traitorous acts of which the defendants were accused. "Pravda" did not mention Leon Trotsky, Nikolai Bukharin or any other oppositionist in its invective against the prisoners. They were branded as venal agents of an unnamed foreign power, "selling out their fatherland and the revolution for 30 pieces of Fascist silver."

Moscow Press Comment.

The newspaper "On Guard" said: "The execution of these dogs will cleanse and purify the air of the Soviet Union."

Pravda, Communist party organ, said: "Dogs die like dogs. There is no place for such murderers in the Soviet scheme of things. The mighty wrath of the people will wash off the face of the earth any traitor or spy trying to weaken the Red army by plotting against conquests of the Socialist revolution and against wealth seized and belonging to the people."

The Soviet press was filled with resolutions passed at mass meetings of workers calling for the complete destruction of all oppositionists such as Tukhachevsky and the other army leaders condemned with him.

News of the death sentences was published inconspicuously on the second pages of Moscow newspapers under the headline "The Supreme Court of the U. S. S. R."

The Russian peoples' traditional love of big-scale drama received short shrift from this third major trial within the last year of alleged traitors.

The other two were the trials of the Zinoviev-Kamenev group in August, 1936, which ended in the execution of 16, and that of Karl Radek and his fellow defendants last January, which resulted in the death of 13 more.

The people did not know whether it was taking place in the Kremlin in the massive headquarters of the NKVD—Commissariat of Internal Affairs, the new name of the for-

MILITIA TO GUARD MASS MEETING OF UNION AT MONROE

Gov. Murphy Orders Out Battalion and State Police to Insure Peaceful Assembly.

ACTS ON APPEAL OF MICHIGAN CITY

CIO Group to Assemble Tomorrow to Protest Against Routing of Pickets at Steel Plant.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 12.—Gov. Frank Murphy announced today that a battalion of National Guardsmen and 100 State policemen would be sent to Monroe early tomorrow to prevent disorder at a mass meeting of union members from three states.

Although Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, had called for union men from Michigan, Indiana and Ohio to attend the meeting to protest against the routing of striking steel workers' pickets at Monroe, the Governor said Martin had promised he would "discourage" the attendance of members from outside of Michigan.

The meeting will be held in a state park three miles north of Monroe at 2 p. m. Sunday. Traffic will be routed around the city. Sightseers will be asked to avoid the city and the meeting place.

For Peaceful Assembly.

The Governor said he was ordering troops and a heavy concentration of State Police to Monroe "to insure a peaceable assembly and to protect the citizens of Monroe."

Murphy announced also that he may attend the meeting.

He made his announcement at the conclusion of a conference with representatives of the U. A. W. A., State law and order officials and a delegation of Monroe City and County officials.

The troops, the Governor said, also will direct traffic. The union announced it would have its own safety patrol at the meeting.

Mayor Daniel Knaggs said that only the regular police force would be on duty in Monroe.

"Certainly Not" Martial Law.

Asked if martial law would be declared, Murphy said:

"Certainly not. There is no necessity for martial law and nobody has asked for it."

The Governor said that the union had joined with Mayor Daniel A. Knaggs and the Monroe City Commission in the request for troops.

Mayor Knaggs said he had ordered Chief of Police Jesse Fisher to close all liquor establishments in Monroe. He said he would ask the Sheriff to extend the order to include Monroe County.

The Mayor said all citizens would be advised to remain away from the park.

City Requested Action.

The Governor arranged the conference after the Monroe City Commission adopted a resolution saying "local feeling is intense and danger of bloodshed is imminent" and demanding that Murphy "call out the State Militia for the protection of citizens."

Monroe was quiet but tense, with 487 special police under arms, following a fight between the officers and a picket line near the Newton Steel Co.'s plant Thursday night. The picket line was dispersed within 15 minutes.

After the fighting, 400 non-striking steel workers returned to the mill, closed since May 28.

H. H. Holloway, manager of the plant, which is controlled by the Republic Steel Corporation, said last night it was operating at 50 per cent capacity and would be at 90 per cent by Monday.

200,000 in Michigan.

Figures on the number of CIO members in the three states were not available, but the UAWA alone claims a membership of 200,000 in Michigan. Both the automobile workers' union and the SWOC are represented in automobile and steel industries in those states.

Monroe, at the western tip of Lake Erie, is 35 miles south of Detroit, 22 miles north of Toledo and about 80 miles from the northwest corner of Indiana.

Martin's call for the meeting referred to "brutality . . . by vigilantes . . . (and) paid thugs" against "the union's peaceful picket line."

Calls Statement Inflammatory.

Earlier Mayor Knaggs had described Martin's statement as "inflammatory" and said "if they intend to use those tactics, there is no question in my mind that all citizens in Monroe will arm themselves with shotguns and rifles."

Gov. Murphy, speaking of the Monroe situation, said: "Labor groups have not the right to block highways, to stop cars and examine the occupants. That's all illegal, and every illegal acts begets another illegal act."

heavy bombardment in the vicinity of Las Arenas and Portugalete, northwest of Bilbao on the Nervion River estuary, and exteending into the outer harbor. French authorities warned merchant ships to avoid Basque ports.

Warning to Bilbao.

In the beleagued capital itself, a source close to the Government said authorities had received warning that, if the Basques continued their stubborn resistance, 300 insurgent planes would bomb the city at one time.

In yesterday's air operations, Derio Cemetery, three miles from Bilbao, was bombed. Many Basques who had sought refuge there were killed.

Insurgents announced one of their destroyers had taken the Greek freighter Pharos into Bermeo, northeast of Bilbao, when it was found the ship carried war materials from Russia for the Basques.

Two thousand Basque children, part of the several thousand noncombatants already evacuated from Bilbao, were gathere at Pauillac, France, to depart on the S. S. Sontay for Russia. They had been brought to France by the liner Habana.

Four Basque Government planes which made a forced landing yesterday at Biarritz when their fuel ran low were held while French authorities considered whether to permit their return to the fighting zone.

Sues Prison Guard for $10,000, Saying He Knocked Out Teeth at Jefferson City Party.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 12.—A $10,000 damage suit, which, the plaintiff charges, grew out of a blow struck during a drinking party in the office of a State Senator in the State Capitol, was filed in Circuit Court here today by Ruby Simpson, beauty shop employe, against Leon Lux, a guard at the State prison.

Miss Simpson charges that about 1 a. m., June 8, the day the Legislature adjourned, Lux struck her "with great force and violence upon the mouth, knocking her down, breaking out a number of her teeth and breaking loose a number of others . . . while spirits were flowing high."

Lux is a former deputy sheriff of Scott County, and is employed in the prison armory.

The name of the Senator in whose office the party is said to have occurred was not mentioned in the petition.

PRODUCE WORKERS' STRIKE SETTLED IN KANSAS CITY

Minimum Scale and 8-Hour Day Granted; Time and a Half for Overtime.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, June 11.—Producer dealers and representatives of the Produce Workers' Union, a CIO affiliate, reached an agreement las night to end a one-day strike affecting 600 men that crippled Kansas City's produce market. Terms of the agreement include a minimum wage of $22.50 for a six-day week, eight hours a day and time and a half for overtime and holiday work. Men receiving the minimum or less are to receive a 10 per cent increase in pay.

The employers' committee said it represented about 70 dealers. Two of the larger produce companies, L. Singer & Sons and A. Reich & Son, did not enter the agreement.

The settlement came soon after disclosures of violence in the hotel strike, now in its thirteenth day. Malvin Tost, laundry wagon driver, told police five men forced him to the curb after he left the strikebound Bellerive Hotel, pulled the laundry out and thrust a burning paper in each basket. They also broke the windshield and headlights of the truck, he said. Hotel President said executives reported a rock had been thrown through a plate glass window.

Unions participating in the negotiations with laundry owners for 900 employes are the Laundry Drivers' Local 366, and the Laundry Workers' Union 108. With the hotel owners the negotiations are for 1300 waiters, waitresses, cooks, bartenders and miscellaneous employes. The unions are seeking agreements for a union shop, hour schedules, and wage scales. Contracts have been drawn with larger hotels, members of another association.

Senate Committee Decides Local Communities Must Pay 40 Pct. of Cost of Non-Federal Projects.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 12. — The Senate Appropriations Committee voted today to write into the $1,500,000 relief bill a requirement that local communities supply 40 per cent of the cost of non-Federal projects.

Before the vote, Harry L. Hopkins, W P A administrator, had opposed at a closed-door hearing lasting nearly three hours, such a limitation on his relief spending authority.

The 40 per cent clause, offered by Senator Byrnes (Dem.), South Carolina, as an amendment to the relief measure as it passed the House, won by a 13-to-10 vote.

The committee then recessed until Monday morning without completing its task of rewriting the measure.

The vote for the Byrnes' amendment, as announced by McKellar:

For:

Against:

Republican—Nye, North Dakota.

House Votes Extension of Present "Nuisance" Taxes.

The House yesterday passed, 229 to 95, a resolution to extend for two years a series of "nuisance" taxes and a 3-cent postage rate. The resolution now goes to the Senate.

The levies apply to gasoline, automobiles, cosmetics, furs, electricity and a variety of other products.

Before approving the measure, the House voted down efforts to allow nuisance tax extension for only one year, to return immediately the two-cent postage rate, to increase the levy on imported coal and to otherwise amend the bill.

Debate also involved discussion of the forthcoming congressional investigation of tax dodging, the resolution for which was approved by President Roosevelt yesterday.

Representative Fish (Rep.), New York, told the House that the congressional investigators should scrutinize the President's income tax return. He said he had information from a "reliable authority," that Mr. Roosevelt had deducted losses on his "so-called farm at Hyde Park," New York. In reality, he said, it "is not a farm, but a palatial residence." Fish represents the district in which the President lives.

President's Hyde Park Farm.

"Let me say to members of the Ways and Means Committee—Democrats and Republicans alike," he said, "that if they propose to plug up these holes and stop tax evasions and tax avoidance, that there are other income taxpayers whose income you should also look into.

"I have not myself seen the income tax returns of the President of the United States and I do not believe I would be permitted to see them, but I suggest the committee look at the tax returns of the President.

"I am informed on reliable authority he had deducted from his income tax the losses on his so-called farm at Hyde Park in my district in New York, which, after all, is not a farm but is a palatial residence.

"If he has done that, why should not others under the law deduct their taxes in the same manner? If you are going to investigate anyone, I suggest you investigate these taxes as well. What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."

Levies Criticised by Both Sides.

The nuisance levies drew stinging criticism from both Republicans and Democrats and only a smattering of praise during House debate.

Calling the levies "grossly unfair" and contending there was "absolutely no justification" for a two-year continuation, Representative Dingell (Dem.), Michigan, demanded they be extended for one year only. Then, he said, the Ways and Means Committee could go into a huddle" and produce next year a "uniform, general and just" tax bill.

Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee argued that "we require the revenue."

"Unless we extend the taxes," he said, "it will be necessary to raise the revenue from some other source."

Hammering particularly at the tax on articles made of fur, Chairman O'Connor of the Rules Committee, said: "There's a 3 per cent tax on the working girl who has a piece of cat on her coat. Many of these taxes are unjust and inequitable. It is no answer to say, 'well, we've got to get the money somewhere.'"

Dingell's one-year extension amendment was brushed aside, 74 to 50, and the House then proceeded to smash nearly a dozen more efforts to alter the resolution.

Franco Says He Would Withdraw Foreign Troops if Madrid Did So

Rebel General States, However, There Will Be No Peace Unless He Wins—Agreement to End War Would Be 'Treason,' He Declares.

By the Associated Press.

BURGOS, Spain, June 12.—Gen. Francisco Franco said today he would agree to the withdrawal of foreigners from his rebel forces if the Spanish Government would do likewise.

The insurgent commander-in-chief made this statement in a written interview with the Associated Press, at the same time apparently closing all roads to peace in Spain except through "our victory."

"Any attempt to end the war by agreement would be treason against Spain," Franco wrote.

Franco was in Burgos after ordering a more intensive drive on Bilbao, the northern seaport and capital of the semi-autonomous Basque republic, a siege which is somewhat akin to his seven-month campaign against Madrid.

Franco was asked: "If the Valencia Government agrees to the withdrawal of all foreign troops, including those holding papers of Spanish citizenship given to them since the war began, would the nationalist government take similar action?"

Says Foreigners Delay Victory.

Franco replied: "Absolutely. The Valencia Government, however, would never do it since foreign troops are its sole support and they are delaying the nationalist victory. Today the foreign leaders are almost the only ones doing anything in the Red (Valencia) camp."

Asked whether he would consider peace proposals by European countries (one country calls for a truce to allow the slow withdrawal of foreign soldiery) and why he considered any such accord would be impossible, Franco answered:

"Of course, I earnestly desire a rapid action of war which would spare Spain from further loss of life and ruin and end with a definite victory for our arms."

He said the vast majority of persons in the Valencia Government's territory were submitted to a "demagogic tyranny" and "they may hope for their liberation by a triumph of the Nationalist (rebel) army, whose real enemies are Communists and anarchists."

"Moreover," he continued, "the Red government is responsible for hundreds of common crimes committed in its zone since last July 18 (when the war started) and merits for that reason exemplary punishment. Therefore the only end of the war which we can admit is our victory."

Asked whether he believed the war might be ended before 1938, Franco replied:

"Final victory may be long before the people expect it. I believe in a complete Nationalist victory in the north as well as in all the rest of Spain. It may be produced by the moral and material collapse of Red Spain. Time is our ally while Red Spain is crumbling and Nationalist Spain is organizing."

Gen. Franco denied rumors abroad that he had given either commercial or territorial agreements in return for the support of Germany and Italy. He said:

"Spain has conserved integrally her national sovereignty and is bound by no pact for the future which will be regulated according to her conveniences. Not an atom of territory will we cede in any way."

Franco said the present territorial extent of Spain (both insurgent and Government zones) was sufficient and that he had no ambitions for extra-peninsular territorial expansion.

Views On U. S. Attitude.

The General was questioned concerning his attitude toward the United States in view of that nation's neutrality in the war.

"Taking into consideration the fair attitude of the North American government," he replied, "I see no reason to change our foreign policy in respect to the United States.

"We are convinced that if the United States saw the realities of Spain's war, we would have them on the side of Nationalist Spain, on which side is order and civilization."

Franco said he considered the international non-intervention control plan as functioning with "notorious partiality and service to Spanish Communists—above all on the French-Catalan frontier and from Marseilles."

mer OGPU, or political police—or in some garrison building.

List of Those Condemned.

Besides Tukhachevky, the defendants were:

Gen. Jonas Emmanuilovich Yakir, former Kiev commander.

Gen. Jeremy Uborevich, former White Russian commander.

Gen. A. I. Kork, head of the Frunze Military Academy.

Gen. Robert Petroivich Eideman, former head of the Osoaviakhim, the Red army's organization for building up a civilian reserve force.

Gen. B. M. Feldman, chief of the personnel section of the general staff.

Gen. V. M. Primakov, Yakir's first assistant in command of the important Kiev district.

Putna, who was arrested in August, 1936, as a fellow conspirator of the Zinoviev-Kamenev group, was the only prisoner who had been linked earlier with an attempted coup d'etat against the Government. Radek, former editor of Izvestia, admitted at the trial last January that Putna was a member of the anti-Soviet Trotskyist center.

Incidentally, when Andrei Vishinsky, chief prosecutor of the U. S. S. R., attacked Radek for dragging Tukhachevsky's name into the evidence, the editor replied:

"I never had and could not have had any dealings with Tukhachevsky connected with counter-revolutionary activities, because I knew Tukhachevsky's attitude to the party and the Government to be that of an absolutely devoted man."

All the accused were members of the Communist party, but none had a pre-war underground record.

Tukhachevsky Greatest Strategist.

Tukhachevsky, who was given the principal credit for building up the Red army, had always advocated a "non-political, patriotic, professional army." He was the Soviet Union's greatest strategist. The Nazi military theorist, Gen. von Cochenhausen, writing a history of modern war science, entitled it "From Prince Eugene to Tukhachevsky."

Even with no details of the plotters' possible plans to seize power or the degree of their involvement with a foreign power made public, their court-martial helps to explain some of the Kremlin's recent policies. The heresy hunt and spy mania, on the crescendo since January, indicate that the Government had its suspicions of some such conspiracy even before the suicide of Vice-Commissar of Defense Jan Gamarnik on May 31, apparently tipped the conspirators' hand.

The earlier comments in the press—in "Pravda" and the "Red Star," army paper—were couched in the bare, lean language of the Russian Old Testament.

"Pravda" headed its editorial, "Crisis of Foreign Bourgeois Espionage." It pounded on the simple themes of patriotism and treason with sledge-hammer blows, and dismissed with blunt contempt the quoted comment of the German press that the trial evidenced the weakness of the Soviet Government.

"The unmasking of this band and its trial are signs of the strength, power and invincibility of Soviet construction," the editor wrote. "It is no crisis for the Soviet Union, but for the espionage of capitalist countries."

Mass Meetings in Moscow.

Muscovites went about their ordinary business all day, but last night they assembled in mass meetings of nearly every organization in the city to pass resolutions demanding protection of the revolution from its betrayers.

Infantry troops paraded through the streets as usual with their familiar husky marching songs. The customary endless queue coiled snake-like around Red Square waiting to enter Lenin's tomb.

The public reaction is perhaps explained by the only certain thing about the trial—its ultimate verdict. The court-martial was conducted under the most rigid provisions of the Soviet criminal code, and the previous confessions of all the accused made the actual trial resemble the slow unwinding of the last act of an Aeschylus tragedy.

Under the law passed after the murder of Sergei M. Kirov, Joseph V. Stalin's chief aid, at Leningrad in December, 1934, the military collegium of the Supreme Court can try such cases as this secretly without giving a hearing to either defense or prosecution. The law specifically forbids any appeal or mercy plea, and directs the immediate carrying out of "supreme measure of national defense—shooting."

High Officers Sat in Trial.

The court-martial included Marshal Simion M. Budenny, newly-appointed commander of the Moscow garrison; Marshal Vassily K. Bleucher, commander of the Far Eastern Red army; Gen. T. I. Alknis, aviation chief; Gen. B. M. Shaposhnikov, chief of the general staff; Gen. I. P. Belov, newly-appointed White Russian commander; Pavel E. Dibenko, new Leningrad district commander; Gen. Nikolai Kashirin, commander in the Northern Caucasus, and Gen. Josef Goriachi, Cossack commander.

Judge Vassily V. Ulrich, who presided at the earlier treason trials, headed the court-martial.

Washouts Block Three Trans-Continental Lines in Montana.

The water carried away part of the roadbed of Highway 87, just south of Klein. Two bridges on the route between Roundup and Billings were washed out. The three major railroads operating in Montana reported washouts had temporarily disrupted all east-west train service.

GERMANY, ITALY BACK IN NEUTRALITY PATROL

Four-Power Agreement Reached for Protection of Warships.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 12.—Great Britain announced tonight the conclusion of a four-power agreement guaranteeing the safety of foreign warships in the neutrality patrol off Spain and returning Germany and Italy to the patrol.

All four powers whose warships from the international fleet—Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany—agreed not to take retaliatory action before consulting among themselves in the event any of their vessels are attacked.

Full details of the agreement were withheld for the present. The accord will be submitted to both the Spanish Government and the insurgent junta. Thereafter, the full non-intervention committee will discuss it. Views of the Russians, who objected to the private four-power conversations, will then be entertained.

A majority vote of the 27-member non-intervention committee might nullify the four-power arrangement, but British sources said they deemed this unlikely.

The agreement also seeks a pledge from both Spanish factions that they will "do their best" to avoid recurrence of incidents and to create more safety zones in Spanish waters where patrol ships may anchor safely.

The conferees were British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, German Ambassador Joachim von Ribbentrop, Italian Ambassador Count Dino Grandi and French Ambassador Charles Corbin.

Germany and Italy withdrew from the neutrality committee May 31 as a result of Spanish Government airplane attacks on the German pocket battleship Deutschland and the Italian supply ship Barletta. The Germans also shelled the Spanish Government seaport of Almeria.

POLISH COURT GIVES JEW 19 CENTS FOR MOB DAMAGE

(Copyright, 1937.)

WARSAW, June 12. — Leib Krawczyk, Jewish owner of a clothing store wrecked in the anti-Jewish rioting on May 13 at Brzesc (Brest-Litovsk), has been awarded one zloty (about 19 cents) as "moral satisfaction" by the Pinsk District Court. He had sought 490 zlotys from the state as compensation for goods stolen or destroyed.

Nine men who "assisted" in demolishing Krawczyk's store were sentenced yesterday by the same court to serve six months in prison, but the sentences were suspended for three years and will then be canceled, on good behavior. One of the nine had stolen jewelry which he said he had found in the street during the rioting. All said they merely had been pushed into Krawczyk's store by a mob.

Fourteen Jewish families have been forcibly removed from the village of Branszczyk by hostile residents there and now are homeless wanderers, a Jewish newspaper reported yesterday. Sixteen other Jewish families were driven from the village of Trzecianka, near Brzesc, because a Jew riding a bicycle ran over and killed a peasant child.

Gen. Liuzzi's name appeared without his title in a list of 175 Italian soldiers who died in what a communique called the "war against Bolshevism and for Fascist civilization." All were casualties in the Spanish insurgents' unsuccessful Guadalajara offensive last March.

Newspapers eulogized the general in obituaries. He was a three-time winner of medals of valor in the Alpine region during the World War and was one of the earliest military proponents of Fascism.

KILLING OF TWO ITALIANS LAID TO FASCISTS

Families of Carlo and Nello Roselli, Murdered in France, Say Deaths Were 'Obviously Political.'

FRENCH FIND NO ROBBERY MOTIVE

Pair Had Long Been Opposed to Mussolini's Administration — Received Threatening Letters.

By the Associated Press.

BAGNOLES, France, June 12.—Thirteen years to the day after the killing of the Italian Socialist and anti-Fascist, Giacomo Matteotti, two Italian brothers who long had opposed the Fascists in their country, were found dead in a thick woods near here yesterday.

They were Carlo Roselli, former Socialist leader in Italy, and Nello Roselli, once professor of history at the University of Florence. Both were expatriates who had been newspaper men in Italy before and during the early days of Fascism.

Members of their family declared yesterday their deaths were for "obviously political" reasons and that they often had received threatening letters because of their activities against the administration of Mussolini.

Carlo Roselli belonged to a "secret society which had numerous ramifications in Italy," said Joseph Nitti, son of Francesco Nitti, exiled former Premier of Italy, and friend of the family.

"Murder of the Roselli brothers could have been only a premeditated execution committed by experts in political crime," he added. "Nello Roselli, famous savant in Italy, was killed only to wipe out an embarrassing witness to the death of Carlo."

Dagger Near Scene.

A dagger engraved with the Italian word "Eroi," (hero), lay near their bodies in a ravine. There were few other definite clews. The throats of both had been deeply slashed.

The coroner said last night that Carlo Roselli had been shot through the head, then stabbed. Nello was stabbed through the heart with a dagger.

Police said a young Italian who arrived at Bagnoles the same day as the Rosellis but stayed at a different hotel was questioned and released.

French authorities abandoned any idea robbery was the motive for the crime when they found 25,000 francs (about $1100) in bank notes in Carlo Roselli's pocket. They said they thought the brothers had been killed in the automobile which was found upset near their bodies. They also said it was a political crime, "deliberately planned and boldly executed."

The Matteotti killing in 1924 was attributed to Fascists who sought to please Mussolini by removing one of his enemies. The incident for many years has been a point of dispute and the cause for much criticism of Mussolini.

Carlo Roselli had fled Italy in 1929, escaping from Lipari Island prison, to which he had been banished by Mussolini.

Nello Roselli had gone to Paris when he likewise could not get along with the Fascists.

Mrs. Carlo Roselli declared that a "young Italian" had been arrested for questioning, that he had represented himself as a former student in her husband's classes at the University of Genoa, and that he twice had visited the brothers at Bagnoles.

Two Women Sought.

Police would not comment. They were known, however, to be searching for two women who had been seen in company of the Roselli brothers and who police thought might have lured them into a trap

Mrs. Roselli declared her husband has organized the Liberty and Justice League of Italy to fight Fascism before his imprisonment at Lipari. The organization still functions secretly in Italy despite efforts by Mussolini to stamp it out, she said.

The prefect of Paris police said that Carlo Roselli also had been ordered expelled from France in 1931 but that the order never had been acted on.

Attendants at the hotel where the Rosellis stayed declared a "strange person" telephoned Carlo Roselli Thursday and arranged a meeting in a nearby village.

The brothers left the hotel and a short time later two cars roared along the country roads and through a string of villages. Peasants said one car apparently was chasing the other. Lights on the machines were on, although it was broad daylight. One of the cars was found yesterday wrecked near the highway. Within was a bomb and fuse that had been lighted and then snuffed out. It was thought to be the car the Rosellis had used.

There was a bloody glove in the car and an empty cartridge clip, indicating a fight may have occurred. Police thought the brothers may then have been taken prisoner or lured to a house and killed and their bodies taken to the woods where they were found yesterday.

Carlo Roselli was 48 years old, his brother 37. Carlo left three

LONDON, June 12.—Great Britain announced tonight the conclusion of a four-power agreement guaranteeing the safety of foreign warships in the neutrality patrol off Spain and returning Germany and Italy to the patrol.

All four powers whose warships from the international fleet—Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany—agreed not to take retaliatory action before consulting among themselves in the event any of their vessels are attacked.

Full details of the agreement were withheld for the present. The accord will be submitted to both the Spanish Government and the insurgent junta. Thereafter, the full non-intervention committee will discuss it. Views of the Russians, who objected to the private four-power conversations, will then be entertained.

A majority vote of the 27-member non-intervention committee might nullify the four-power arrangement, but British sources said they deemed this unlikely.

The agreement also seeks a pledge from both Spanish factions that they will "do their best" to avoid recurrence of incidents and to create more safety zones in Spanish waters where patrol ships may anchor safely.

The conferees were British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, German Ambassador Joachim von Ribbentrop, Italian Ambassador Count Dino Grandi and French Ambassador Charles Corbin.

Germany and Italy withdrew from the neutrality committee May 31 as a result of Spanish Government airplane attacks on the German pocket battleship Deutschland and the Italian supply ship Barletta. The Germans also shelled the Spanish Government seaport of Almeria.

(Copyright, 1937.)

WARSAW, June 12.—Leib Krawczyk, Jewish owner of a clothing store wrecked in the anti-Jewish rioting on May 13 at Brzesc (Brest-Litovsk), has been awarded one zloty (about 19 cents) as "moral satisfaction" by the Pinsk District Court. He had sought 490 zlotys from the state as compensation for goods stolen or destroyed.

Nine men who "assisted" in demolishing Krawczyk's store were sentenced yesterday by the same court to serve six months in prison, but the sentences were suspended for three years and will then be canceled, on good behavior. One of the nine had stolen jewelry which he said he had found in the street during the rioting. All said they merely had been pushed into Krawczyk's store by a mob.

Fourteen Jewish families have been forcibly removed from the village of Branszczyk by hostile residents there and now are homeless wanderers, a Jewish newspaper reported yesterday. Sixteen other Jewish families were driven from the village of Trzecianka, near Brzesc, because a Jew riding a bicycle ran over and killed a peasant child.

GEN. LIUZZI KILLED IN SPAIN, ITALIAN MOURNING DISCLOSES

Name Appears Without Title in List of 175 Dead in Guadalajara Drive.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, June 12.—Fascists paid tribute today to Gen. Alberto Liuzzi, the first high-ranking Italian officer officially announced as killed in the Spanish civil war.

Gen. Liuzzi's name appeared without his title in a list of 175 Italian soldiers who died in what a communique called the "war against Bolshevism and for Fascist civilization." All were casualties in the Spanish insurgents' unsuccessful Guadalajara offensive last March.

Newspapers eulogized the general in obituaries. He was a three-time winner of medals of valor in the Alpine region during the World War and was one of the earliest military proponents of Fascism.

KILLING OF TWO ITALIANS LAID TO FASCISTS

Families of Carlo and Nello Roselli, Murdered in France, Say Deaths Were 'Obviously Political.'

FRENCH FIND NO ROBBERY MOTIVE

Pair Had Long Been Opposed to Mussolini's Administration — Received Threatening Letters.

By the Associated Press.

BAGNOLES, France, June 12.—Thirteen years to the day after the killing of the Italian Socialist and anti-Fascist, Giacomo Matteotti, two Italian brothers who long had opposed the Fascists in their country, were found dead in a thick woods near here yesterday.

They were Carlo Roselli, former Socialist leader in Italy, and Nello Roselli, once professor of history at the University of Florence. Both were expatriates who had been newspaper men in Italy before and during the early days of Fascism.

Members of their family declared yesterday their deaths were for "obviously political" reasons and that they often had received threatening letters because of their activities against the administration of Mussolini.

Carlo Roselli belonged to a "secret society which had numerous ramifications in Italy," said Joseph Nitti, son of Francesco Nitti, exiled former Premier of Italy, and friend of the family.

"Murder of the Roselli brothers could have been only a premeditated execution committed by experts in political crime," he added. "Nello Roselli, famous savant in Italy, was killed only to wipe out an embarrassing witness to the death of Carlo."

Dagger Near Scene.

A dagger engraved with the Italian word "Eroi," (hero), lay near their bodies in a ravine. There were few other definite clews. The throats of both had been deeply slashed.

The coroner said last night that Carlo Roselli had been shot through the head, then stabbed. Nello was stabbed through the heart with a dagger.

Police said a young Italian who arrived at Bagnoles the same day as the Rosellis but stayed at a different hotel was questioned and released.

French authorities abandoned any idea robbery was the motive for the crime when they found 25,000 francs (about $1100) in bank notes in Carlo Roselli's pocket. They said they thought the brothers had been killed in the automobile which was found upset near their bodies. They also said it was a political crime, "deliberately planned and boldly executed."

The Matteotti killing in 1924 was attributed to Fascists who sought to please Mussolini by removing one of his enemies. The incident for many years has been a point of dispute and the cause for much criticism of Mussolini.

Carlo Roselli had fled Italy in 1929, escaping from Lipari Island prison, to which he had been banished by Mussolini.

Nello Roselli had gone to Paris when he likewise could not get along with the Fascists.

Mrs. Carlo Roselli declared that a "young Italian" had been arrested for questioning, that he had represented himself as a former student in her husband's classes at the University of Genoa, and that he twice had visited the brothers at Bagnoles.

Two Women Sought.

Police would not comment. They were known, however, to be searching for two women who had been seen in company of the Roselli brothers and who police thought might have lured them into a trap.

Mrs. Roselli declared her husband has organized the Liberty and Justice League of Italy to fight Fascism before his imprisonment at Lipari. The organization still functions secretly in Italy despite efforts by Mussolini to stamp it out, she said.

The prefect of Paris police said that Carlo Roselli also had been ordered expelled from France in 1931 but that the order never had been acted on.

Attendants at the hotel where the Rosellis stayed declared a "strange person" telephoned Carlo Roselli Thursday and arranged a meeting in a nearby village.

The brothers left the hotel and a short time later two cars roared along the country roads and through a string of villages. Peasants said one car apparently was chasing the other. Lights on the machines were on, although it was broad daylight. One of the cars was found yesterday wrecked near the highway. Within was a bomb and fuse that had been lighted and then snuffed out. It was thought to be the car the Rosellis had used.

There was a bloody glove in the car and an empty cartridge clip, indicating a fight may have occurred. Police thought the brothers may then have been taken prisoner or lured to a house and killed and their bodies taken to the woods where they were found yesterday.

Carlo Roselli was 48 years old, his brother 37. Carlo left three children and his wife. They came to Bagnoles last May 28 and registered as Italian newspaper men. Carlo had been wounded while fighting with the International Brigade for the Spanish Government and came here to recuperate.

The Roselli brothers became leaders of the Justice and Liberty organization in Paris after their flight from Italy. The organization for several years attempted to found an anti-Fascist group within Italy, and in 1933 and 1934 more than 100 of its members were arrested in that country. Most of them were imprisoned.

Carlo Roselli had roused the disfavor of Mussolini for allegedly aiding Filippo Turati to escape from Lipari Island. Turati once had been Mussolini's right hand man but had incurred the anger of his chief.

CAPTURED IN HOTEL OPPOSITE CAFE ROBBED

Man Admits $42 Holdup—Discharged Salesman From Cleveland, O.

Police, inquiring at the hotel a few minutes later, after the robbery was reported to them, learned that a man answering the description of the robber, who registered yesterday afternoon, had just gone to his room on the fifth floor. They found the man preparing for bed and when they walked in he remarked, "You got me." The $42 was in his pockets and a .45-caliber automatic pistol was in an open handbag. A sign, "Do Not Disturb" was on the door.

The prisoner, booked as Weldon W. Babcock, 34 years old, of Cleveland, O., signed a statement admitting the holdup, which he said was his first. ALDERMEN VOTE TO BAR ELEVATED ROAD TO TERMINAL Adopt Resolution in View of Projected Riverfront Memorial—Franchise Will Expire July 8.

The Terminal Railroad Association and the St. Louis Bridge Terminal will be notified by the city, under a resolution adopted yesterday by the Board of Aldermen, to quit use of the elevated railroad tracks along the riverfront by July 8, in anticipation of the establishment of the proposed Jefferson Memorial National Park.

The purpose of the resolution, which recited that the 50-year franchise for use of the streets on which the tracks were constructed would expire July 8, was to open the way for conferences on removal of the tracks, or new agreements with the companies. It provided that the Board of Public Service might consent to the temporary use of the tracks after July 8.

A quo warranto suit to oust the Terminal Railroad from the St. Clair County riverfront was filed in Circuit Court at Belleville yesterday by State's Attorney Louis P. Zerweck.

Alleging that the Terminal had usurped land for its tracks and wrongfully prevented public access to the river, the petition asserts that the Terminal is without title to the property or authority to use it, that the Terminal has usurped rights of the public to use the riverfront between Front street, East St. Louis, and the river, and that it prevents competing water shippers from docking thier vessels. But for the alleged usurpation the riverfront could be improved, the petition adds.

East St. Louis civic organizations long have been seeking access to the river. The use of the property by the Terminal grew out of the use by the Wiggins Ferry Co. and the East St. Louis Connecting Railroad, both now owned by the Terminal. President Henry Miller of the Terminal declined to comment on the suit, pending receipt of a copy of the petition.

"We have had the river front fro.. the Municipal Bridge to Venice ever since the Wiggins Ferry Co. was chartered, about 1850," he said.

In the motion, the men, two of 10 named in 23 indictments, assert that records of the County Board of Supervisors, which picks grand juries, and the County Clerk and Circuit Clerk, will bear out their contention the jury was drawn illegally. Wagner promised to file a detailed statement later.

PROVIDENCE CITY WORKERS STRIKE FOR SECOND TIME

Out Today Alleging "Spite" Layoffs of 250, Following Walkout Monday.

By the Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 12.—Hundreds of city workers went on strike today, the second walkout within a week, in protest against what Chairman William Kane, chairman of an independent workers' Executive Committee, charged were 'spite" layoffs of 250 men.

The first walkout last Monday, ended within a day after City Council appropriated additional funds for the workers.

The new strike, voted at a midnight mass meeting, came as city officials prepared to maintain emergency service such as garbage collection.

Kane said the city employes would not return to work until the men affected by the "mass layoffs are reinstated in their jobs, and guarantees given against any future mass layoffs of workers." The strikers said they would "as far as possible protect the public," by maintaining "skeleton forces to make certain no harm comes to the people through failure of the pumping stations, and to preclude the immediate necessity of dumping raw sewage into the bay."

BREWERY UNION WON'T PAY A. F. L. EXTRA DUES

Executive Council Rejects Assessment Because of Drivers' Jurisdiction Dispute.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, June 12.—The executive council of the International Brewery Workers' Union was today the first American Federation of Labor affiliate to refuse to pay an extra dues assessment to the A. F. of L. "war chest" to fight John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization. The brewery workers are an industrial type union.

The council in session here this week voted to refuse payment of the 1 cent per month assessment until, International President Joseph Obergfell said, the A. F. of L. restores jurisdiction over beer truck drivers to the union. The dues would amount to $480 a month. The assessment is not binding since it was ordered by high A. F. of L. leaders, but not approved by a national convention.

The fight over beer truck drivers involving the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, is of nearly 40 years' standing. The question of jurisdiction was raised at the 1900 A. F. of L. convention and again at the 1913 convention, and then was dormant until beer became legal in 1933. Then the A. F. of L. gave the Teamsters' International the right to organize the brewery drivers. This, Obergfell said, was a violation of rights delegated to all international unions.

MAYOR REPLIES TO LETTER ON SMOKE, DEFENDS NEW LAW

Material Reduction in Gases to Result From Washing He Tells Hospital Committee.

Mayor Dickmann defended the new St. Louis smoke ordinance requiring the washing of low grade coal in replying yesterday to a letter from the Executive Committee of St. Louis Children's Hospital inquiring what was being done to eliminate smoke.

The opinion of "those who are informed upon this subject," he wrote, was that a "material reduction in smoke and sulphurous gases" would result. He said he had asked the Joint Engineering Council of St. Louis to interview applicants for the position of smoke commissioner and that he expected to receive their recommendation as to whom he should appoint within the next few weeks.

Results of the new ordinance, the Mayor added, would depend largely upon enforcement and public cooperation.

NEWSPAPER GUILD OPEN TO PRESS AGENTS

Admission of Those Serving Theaters Voted as Fourth Convention Ends.

The American Newspaper Guild, at the conclusion of its fourth annual convention yesterday at Hotel Statler, opened its ranks to press agents for theaters and moving picture companies.

This was done by action of the Guild's international executive board whic hauthorized the New York Guild to admit theater press agents and the Los Angeles Guild to admit motion picture press agents.

Guilds in both cities had been petitioned by groups of press agents seeking membership. The executive board decided to admit them, for the present, with the understanding that in the event industrial unions were organized in the theater and motion picture business, the Guild would relinquish jurisdiction.

Earlier in the convention the Guild, in voting to affiliate with the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization, had decided to expand its membership by making employes of newspaper business, advertising and circulation departments eligible. Previously membership had been restricted to editorial department workers.

Chicago and Toronto were recommended at the convention for meeting places next year. The choice between them was left to the executive board.

The American Historical Society, Inc., New York, a genealogical publishing house, yesterday filed suit in Circuit Court here for $4575 against Mrs. Isabelle Bond Sibley, former St. Louisan, on an alleged contract to publish a history of Mrs. Sibley's family.

The petition charges Mrs. Sibley, who formerly lived at 17 Vandeventer place, but who now lives in California, retained the publishing house to bring out an elaborately printed history of the Bond-Scudder family from which Mrs. Sibley is descended. The petition recites she agreed to pay $2000 for this but charges she later rescinded this contract.

Other contractual items for which recompense is asked are: The American families volume, $500; engraving of Bond-Scudder coat of arms, $700; steel portraits of Mrs. Sibley's parents and a chart of the Bond-Scudder family, $1000. E. McDonald Stevens and former Circuit Judge George E. Mix represent the publishing house.

Toast Drunk in Poison by Mistake.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 12.—Alex Theuerkorn, 52 years old, defeated his old friend, Herman Foster, in eight out of 10 chess games and suggested a toast to celebrate his victory. He went into Foster's kitchen, filled two glasses from a bottle which he thought contained wine and drank. As Foster raised the second glass to his lips, Theuerkorn suddenly gasped, "don't drink that," and collapsed. He died yesterday at receiving hospital. Foster explained the bottle contained poison. He had forgotten it was in the kitchen.

Divorces Rudy Vallee's Friend.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 12.—A divorce was granted yesterday to W. R. Johnston Jr., a radio announcer, from the former Evelyn Gresham. The petition charged abandonment. Under the decree, Judge Miller restored Miss Gresham's maiden name. Johnston said she was the companion of Rudy Vallee in Boston recently when a newspaper photographer's camera was destroyed while he tried to photograph the two coming from a theater.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Objects to Uses of Tax Money.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial on J. P. Morgan and his attitude on taxes has some points in it that bear analysis. For example, you say most of us pay our bills because our morals require us to do so. Therefore, why should we not as readily pay our taxes because it is morally right that we should?

Permit me to make a simple comparison. I buy a suit of clothes and pay $50, expecting to get all wool, well tailored and fitted. I buy it on faith because I believe I will receive honest value and, when I receive the bill, I pay it when due. That is a moral obligation. Suppose, after I have worn the suit 30 days, it turns out to be shoddy goods and that the merchant misrepresented the article. I would be incensed, demand an adjustment or refuse to patronize this merchant again because I think he is dishonest.

Now, let's take a look at our tax laws, our appropriation bills and the administering of such laws by the Government.

First, trace through our appropriations for relief. Under the guise of emergency, we have the W P A and its high-powered distributer of public funds, not for useful things, the "all-wool" variety, but for boondogglers and shovel-leaners. Is that honest merchandise the Federal Government is selling us or shoddy goods?

The Government can get by with it because its power is supreme. Does the Government try to disprove these claims for selling dishonest merchandise? Well, there has been much said about having a census of the unemployed—even on the editorial page of the Post-Dispatch. Good politics forbids that this census be taken because it would uncover a scandal the like of which we have not seen—not even the Teapot Dome upheaval. Of course, it would lose votes to pare down relief.

I am not defending Morgan and his crowd. I am paying twice as much Federal and State tax this year as I paid last year. I hope to continue to make an honest return, but when I do, it galls me to think that not a cent goes for debt retirement and that a large percentage of it could be saved by cutting out extravagance, starting at the top. There is only one way the rank and file in this country is going to become tax-conscious and that is to widen the base—bring more single persons and families with moderate incomes into the fold, make public officeholders pay like any other individual. Then we would get somewhere. It's easy to spend the other fellow's money, but if you have to dig into your own pocket, even if it's only a $10 bill, you are less likely to approve wild spending. Of course, there is no chance to change our tax laws this or next session, because there's an election coming in 1938.

So we go round and round, condemning the rich, strangling business and playing up to the galleries. How long can business stand it? DOVER.

High-Priced Root Beer.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ROOT beer sells at every drug store and drink stand in town at 5 cents a bottle. I asked for a 5-cent bottle at the Municipal Opera drink stand a few nights ago, and was told that the price was 15 cents—200 per cent over the regular price. What possible excuse is there for such a glaring and inexcusable gouge as this at a city-operated drink stand? Who gets the graft? W. S. B.

The Electric Bus.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WONDER if the gentleman who prefers street cars to busses has ever met that delightful compromise, the electrically-driven bus? I have never understood why it is not more widely used, for it has the virtues of both and the faults of neither. Operating silently from an overhead trolley, it has acceleration, speed and mobility.

It would be well to give every consideration to the adoption in St. Louis of this ultimate in mass transportation which provides comfort for passengers and public alike in eliminating the noise of the street cars and the nauseous fumes of the bus. R. C. WOODS.

Monkeys in the Shade.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN connection with the river-front bond issue, they should be sure to plant a lot of shady trees around the Jefferson Memorial there, because the whole proposition seems to be just that.

There will be no need to spend a lot of money for monkeys to put in these trees—they made a lot of these out of conscientious voters when the thing was put over. OSCAR STANKEY.

Negro Social Workers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I DO not believe that the provision in the bill before the Board of Aldermen requiring the resignation of married women as social workers will affect the Negroes to any degree, either in efficiency or morale. There are college-trained young men and women among this group who cannot find employment. There are women among the colored social workers whose husbands' salaries range to $3000 and $4500. I believe only married women who are the breadwinners in their families should be retained.

The youth of St. Louis who have prepared themselves are at the cross-roads of life. Give these young men and women the torch of civilization and they will carry on. HENRY W. WHEELER.

BIGGEST TAX LOOPHOLE OF ALL.

Let us suppose that the inquiry and the congressional action urged by Mr. Roosevelt to deal with tax-dodging are completely successful. All the underhand subterfuges which he described in his recent message are brought into the light. Congress then passes an ironclad set of laws "specifically and exclusively aimed at making the present tax structure evasion-proof," as the President recommended.

Then the widespread, amazing, bold and ingenious methods of tax avoidance and tax evasion of which he complained would become things of the past—but an even wider loophole would remain for the use of persons who wish to escape payment of income taxes. And it would come into greater use than ever before.

We refer to the tax-exempt security. Its continuance is costing the Federal and state governments millions upon millions of tax revenue; the estimates range from $300,000,000 to a half-billion dollars annually. The total of tax-exempt issues now outstanding is more than 44 billion dollars, according to Treasury reports.

What this amounts to is special tax immunity for the person of large means—"a comfortable cyclone cellar for the rich man," as a writer in the Wall Street Journal phrased it several years ago. Because of the low rate of return, the small investor is not attracted to such securities. To the man in the upper brackets, the tax-exempt feature is a welcome means of avoiding heavy surtax levies. It has been computed by the New York World-Telegram that, for a man with an income of a million a year, Government securities at 3 per cent are a better investment under the present income-tax laws than shares in a private enterprise paying 14 per cent!

Important as it is to end the practices to which Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary Morgenthau have called attention, their significance in revenue is only a drop in the bucket compared to the tremendous losses resulting from the tax-exemption-security loophole.

The injustice and the danger from this provision have been emphasized by economists and officials of all political shades. Coolidge, Hoover, Mellon and Ogden Mills are some of those who have urged that it be abolished. President Roosevelt, in December, 1934, called on Congress to remove the tax-exempt feature.

It is chiefly inertia that has prevented its abolition through the long years that this provision has been the subject of denunciation. Now that a drive is under way to eliminate tax-dodging practices, why not broaden it to include the biggest loophole of them all?

OUR PROBLEM IN PUERTO RICO.

Episodes of the last few days have brought home the fact that this country has a full-fledged colonial problem in its administration of Puerto Rico. The leader and seven members of the island's Nationalist party have just arrived at Atlanta to serve prison terms of from four to 10 years, for conspiracy to overthrow United States rule. On the same day, 12 to 15 shots were fired, supposedly by party members, at the United States Judge who sentenced the eight men.

Only a few months before, on Palm Sunday, a riot took place at Ponce in which 20 persons were killed and nearly 200 wounded. After an investigation of this clash, Arthur Garfield Hays, noted New York lawyer, has just made public a report laying full responsibility upon the administration of Gov. Blanton Winship. The affair was, he says, "a massacre by police officials of innocent and unarmed Puerto Ricans. The responsibility should rest on the Governor, who ordered that the demonstration should not be permitted."

Puerto Rico's troubles are complicated by political unrest, bad economic conditions and terrific overcrowding of population. The independence movement has been growing, but the policy of administrators has been one of suppression. Says Mr. Hays' report: "Civil liberties for the last nine months have been denied the people where they wished to hold parades and demonstrations on subjects that interested them."

The details of all these matters must await the congressional inquiry which will probably be made. Certainly, however, no inquiry is needed to establish the Puerto Ricans' right to campaign for independence if they so desire. The Nationalist party is a minority group, and it cannot be said that self-rule would be a panacea for the island. Nevertheless, suppression is not the American way to face a problem. It can lead only to unrest and strife.

THE GUILD STEPS OUT OF ITS ROLE.

What is the fundamental purpose of a labor union? Is it to strive for the improvement of the working conditions of its members, or is it to announce opinions for public consumption on controversial issues on which its membership may or may not be united?

This question suggests itself on reading the list of resolutions adopted at the closing sessions of the St. Louis convention of the American Newspaper Guild. These resolutions favor a wide variety of policies and propositions, including the President's court plan, independent political action through a farmer-labor party, appropriation by Congress of not less than three billion dollars for expanding the W P A, the Black-Connery wages-and-hours bill, state labor acts to complement the Wagner Act, and the pardon of Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings. Other resolutions oppose another variety of policies and propositions, such as Fascism in Spain and elsewhere, the Sheppard-Hill war mobilization bill, police brutality in handling steel strikers and the use of mails for "strike-breaking purposes."

Whether the Guild has advanced its interests and those of its membership by this series of public policy declarations is indeed doubtful. Newspaper men are readers and opinion-holders. That there is a wide divergence among them on many public issues is proved almost every time a group of them gathers. The resolution in favor of packing the Supreme Court may represent the majority of the convention delegates; it may or may not represent the views of the majority of Guildsmen. In any case, it does not represent the views of all Guildsmen, and many of them will be likely to feel that a pronouncement on the subject was an unnecessary invitation to dissent.

One of the objections which some publishers have raised in connection with the rise of the Guild has been that it threatens, in their opinion, freedom of the press. So long as the Guild attends to the work for which it was organized—the betterment of conditions of employment of newspaper workers—it is difficult to see how it threatens a free press. But if it becomes a pressure organization, the Guild need not be surprised if that doubt continues in the minds of many with whom it will have to deal.

The United States Chamber of Commerce, together with its more active component parts in the larger cities, illustrates the point. A local chamber of commerce can do, and often does, much that is of benefit for the community. Yet, in recent years, these groups have tended more and more to take public stands on policies and actions which obviously are outside their legitimate field.

There is a virtue in cultivating one's own garden that the Guild, as well as other organizations, may find to be a way of wisdom as well.

ON THE INDUSTRIAL FRONT.

A highly dangerous situation was averted early yesterday when Homer Martin, head of the C I O auto workers' union, persuaded a group of union men and sympathizers to call off a proposed demonstration at Monroe, Mich. The men planned to march on a steel mill where a picket line had been routed by tear gas a few hours before. Since the mill was guarded by regular police and civilians hastily sworn in as special officers, armed with rifles and shotguns, bloodshed doubtless was prevented by Martin's success in stopping the march.

At a time when tension is high and tempers are boiling in many of the strike zones, such a pacific gesture as Martin made is all to the good, not only in this particular instance, but as a general example. Adequate machinery for negotiation has been set up. Congress has certified the workers' right to collective bargaining, and the Supreme Court has upheld the law. There is no reason for violence or threats on either side. An armed factory gate and an armed group of demonstrators are equally to be condemned.

The fact that neither side is fully acquainted with the use of collective bargaining technique is one explanation for the sequence of strikes, and the spectacle of new walk-outs following apparent settlements. There have been impulsive and misguided actions by both parties; unauthorized strikes by workers and failure by employers to carry out terms.

The most dangerous spots on the industrial front at present are caused by the Republic Steel Co.'s effort to resist signing a union contract and to continue operations. "Big Steel" has seen the handwriting on the wall and has made terms. Other independents that still hold out are not trying to operate their plants. The Republic's stubborn policy brought about the South Chicago demonstration, where eight men were killed when police fired on the crowd.

Unauthorized strikes that cripple a whole community, tear gas and bullets pouring from picketed factories, police with itchy trigger fingers—all these have brought violence to the industrial scene. The country needs more such peace moves as Homer Martin's at Monroe.

COLLOQUY IN NAZIDOM.

Dr. Willy Hoppe, rector of the University of Berlin, is examining a student, later expelled with two others, charged with taking a forbidden course in theology offered by a pastor of the Confessional (opposition) church. It goes like this:

"What would you do if Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler ordered you to commit a crime?"

"Hitler does not ask me to commit crimes," the student retorted.

"But what would you do if he did order you to commit a crime?" the rector insisted.

"I should refuse," said the student.

Turning to the clerk who was making the official record of the "trial," the rector said: "Make formal note of the fact that the student refuses to carry out orders of Der Fuehrer."

Great stuff!

ARE WE ENTITLED TO IT?

Senator Clark and Representative Cochran have introduced bills in their respective chambers of Congress to delay for one year the deadline for states to enact approved unemployment insurance laws. They have done this in the hope that Missouri employers will not lose the unemployment insurance taxes which they paid to the Federal Government in 1936.

This activity on the part of these Missouri members of Congress is wholly understandable and doubtless will be appreciated by employers in this State. Yet there is a question whether an effort along this line should be successful. An overwhelming majority of the states met the Jan. 1 deadline. Some states even had special sessions primarily for that reason. Missouri had just as much chance to get a law passed in time as did the 36 states which qualified under the Federal law for credit for its 1936 unemployment insurance contributions to the Federal Treasury.

There seems to be only one way to awaken Missouri to the crying need for State government which will be responsive to the public needs. That is to allow the ill effects of misrule to accumulate until a popular uprising will be inevitable. Missouri has lost its 1936 unemployment insurance taxes because the last State administration, for political reasons, failed to call the 1935 Legislature in special session last year, when this issue, relief and old-age assistance were in urgent need of attention. Under such circumstances, is it fair for Missouri to ask for special treatment at this time?

ST. LOUIS COUNTY'S STANDING ARMY.

St. Louis County is a howling wilderness, full of fierce robber gangs and skulking gangsters, where law and order have not yet arrived and every citizen who goes out after 9 p. m. must carry a gun. That, in effect, is the portrait of our pleasant suburban region painted by its constables in explaining why they have issued special deputy's badges to 677 persons, of whom only 57 perform regular police duty. M. Ralph Walsh, County Prosecuting Attorney, is looking into the matter, and his inquiry brought the hair-raising explanation.

Normandy, it seems, is farthest removed from civilization, for in that wild and woolly frontier township, Constable Hogan has had to issue 283 deputy's commissions in order to repel the underworld. Only eight of these deputies work at it as their regular trade. There aren't that many citizens going armed in other sections, but on the whole, the law west of the county line seems to be mostly in private hands.

There are some sizable communities in St. Louis County, each with its own police force, and residence districts have private watchmen. In addition, there is the Sheriff's force, with its 112 special deputies. The State highway patrol also operates in this region. That sounds like plenty of policing, but seemingly it isn't. St. Louis County has 620 private cops, almost half the number of police officers and detectives in the City of St. Louis, which has four times the county's population.

It's time to curb all this Nick Carter stuff in the county, and round up the surplus badges.

IT TAKES A BIT OF DOING!

—From the Glasgow (Scotland) Record.

Labor and Management in France

Pledging continuance of social progress, French Premier calls on both sides in industrial system to further national welfare rather than own interests alone; with new rights, workers have broad responsibilities, he asserts, but those of employers are even greater; urges respect for mutual liberties and adherence to democracy.

From an Address by Leon Blum, Premier of France, Before Chamber of Deputies; Reprinted From Vital Speeches Magazine.

TODAY, from the eminence of this tribunal, I should like to address a solemn appeal to the organization of capital and labor.

I shall not address the workers in the style which I have at times heard. I shall not say to them: Enough has been done for you already. What more do you want? Just be calm. Nor shall I say to them: You have the Government you wished for; you can have confidence in the men who govern you; trust them and let them work.

I know that we have done a great deal within a year, but the very fact of having done so much does not mean that at present we should call a halt to our progress. Social progress, like the human progress conceived by the men of the French Revolution, is a continuous process.

In this connection, Taine once wrote of "our modern theory of progress which bases all our hopes upon the infinite ability of science to advance, upon the growth of man's well-being as a result of the practical application of the discoveries of science, and, finally, upon gradual growth of reason within the human mind, once knowledge of these discoveries has become sufficiently diversified among the people."

Yet now I should like to talk in a very different key.

And, furthermore, the workers have a very definite duty toward themselves, which is their own self-discipline, and a duty toward the nation, for whose welfare they are becoming increasingly responsible. They can no longer limit themselves to the defense of their own particular interests, but should fuse these interests with the broad interests of the nation: its prosperity, its security and the name and prestige of France outside the limits of the French democracy itself.

And now I should like to appeal to the management of France and earnestly request that it return once more to its position of last year, which was, after all, one of loyally and frankly seconding our effort. Its responsibility is even greater than that of the working class.

Unfortunately, representatives of management have come to believe at times that not only must they defend their material profits but their very existence as a social and economic class. I maintain that that fear is groundless. No revolutionary policy of indirect expropriation, under the nose of a blind and casual Government, is at present being pursued. Neither the present forms of the body politic nor the law of the Republic have been threatened. In short, the authority of management is not in jeopardy. (Interruptions from the Right, applause from the extreme Left, a Rightist Deputy interrupts violently.)

Whatever the Government, there must always be the discipline of work, and, it follows, of authority; an authority that should not be less energetically exercised in a Socialist regime than in another.

Under the present Government, management possesses authority because the heaviest responsibilities weigh upon it. Yet the authority of management is neither arbitrary nor absolute. That which was once called "management by divine right" has become an anachronism, has disappeared. It no longer exists for anyone in France. The authority of management should exist as a principle and as a fact only in so far is it is established by custom and by law.

I only ask of management that it work with us toward effective co-operation in a spirit of mutual consideration and understanding, with full respect for mutual rights and liberties. That, I repeat, is the nation's will. It is the definite will of this chamber.

I only wish that I could find words like those spoken by Mr. Baldwin, when two days ago, in the House of Commons, he appealed for harmony to the forces of capital and labor. (Reprinted in part in the Post-Dispatch of June 7.—Editor's note.)

My appeal is perhaps less moving. Yet at least I hope it will be understood, because it is not the plea of a particular man. It is not even the plea of a Government. It is the plea of the very nation itself, and you are soon to pass upon it with your sovereign will.

In reality, the history of these present years constitutes the supreme test of democracies. French democracy is resolved to prove to itself and to an expectant world that it knows how to combine the will for social progress with the spirit of wisdom, of method and of order, and even, if need be, that it knows how to combine its passionate attachment to democratic institutions and the methods of peace with the spirit of energy and decision.

WHIPPING BOY.

From the Des Moines Tribune.

HENRY FORD says that the riot at his Dearborn plant was caused by a group of newspapers which were out to build their own news. Now the Postoffice Department, through Jesse M. Donaldson, first deputy assistant, says the Republic Steel Corporation has hired the newspapers to bring pressure on the President to intervene in the strike situation.

Accused first by industry and then by the Government of precisely the same ambidextrous treatment of news, the newspapers are in a fair way to become the whipping boys of 1937.

Well, gentlemen, you of industry and you of the Government, it won't work. You're both far too intricately entangled in the problem of settling America's labor problems to avoid the responsibility of acting your age. So our advice is to snap out of it.

Stop snarling at those whose job it is to report the news as it happens, and make the news itself a little more pleasant reading. Don't blame the mirror if your face isn't all you'd like to have it.

Mr. Roosevelt at His Best

From the Chicago Daily News.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S soundest ideas and sanest policies relate to national defense and to the conservation of natural resources. As to both, he tracks closely the path of the first Roosevelt.

In his latest conservation message to Congress, there is much to commend. There are some sentences that the Daily News fully indorses. Here is one:

"For instance, our recent experiences of floods have made clear that the problem must be approached as one involving more than great works on main streams at the places where major disasters threaten to occur. There must also be measures of prevention and control among tributaries and throughout the entire headwaters areas."

That is a step away from engineering megalomania, and away from the pork barrel, also.

Then the President says: "Taking care of our natural estate, together with the stopping of existing waste and building it back to higher productivity, is a national problem. At last we have undertaken a national policy. But it is not wise to direct everything from Washington."

This last sentiment is quite familiar to the readers of these columns.

The President nevertheless recommends another national board for the general supervision of conservation and some more regional boards. If administrative boards were made of lumber, Mr. Roosevelt would be one of the principal agents of deforestation, despite his love for trees. But in this case, he proposes to denature his boards. They will lack much of the usual authoritarian flavor.

We wish the squire of Hyde Park would go a bit further and study the measures by which old Gov. Hoard made Wisconsin a cow-and-grass State. The Amish "hook-and-eye" folk of Eastern Pennsylvania who went to Washington some weeks ago to beg that they not be saddled with a Government subsidy for a schoolhouse also know much about practical erosion control and conservation.

Freed of unconscionable taxation and given a fair chance at profitable cultivation, self-interest will dictate to most farmers and landowners policies that will enhance the value of their soil assets. It is along such lines, supplemented by rational engineering, that genuine conservation will at last be achieved.

RIDDLE OF RIDDLES.

From the New York World-Telegram.

THE National Puzzlers' League, which makes a pastime of solving the toughest brain-teasers, is reported to be still seeking the "perfect riddle."

We enter this one:

Why is scrambled, duplicated, overlapping taxation, the thing that hits nearly everybody first and hardest, the last thing to be tackled resolutely, effectively and co-operatively by a self-governing people that suffers from it?

Or is the tax muddle in these United States itself the perfect, permanent riddle?

Taxpayers' leagues should affiliate with the puzzlers for intensive work on the grand national tax acrostic. It involves more than pastime or play—painfully more.

ON THE RE

By DOROTHY THOM

Our Pending Revolution i

IN the midst of the oppressive Washington heat, the present Congress is being urged to pass without delay a series of bills which, if they go through, will change radically the entire structure of government in the United States.

These bills are not isolated measures, but add up to a consistent picture. And the picture is of a tremendously centralized Government, with a power and authority vested in the President not far from equal to the power and authority vested in Mussolini or in Stalin.

Powers which include legislation, backed up by the police authority, are to be vested in commissions, and these commissions are to be responsible, not to Congress, but to the executive. Legislation will be initiated, not in Congress, but in an executive secretariat and a National Planning Board, the latter, again, to be attached, not to the legislative branch of government, but to the President.

States' rights in all the most important fields of activity are to be done away with. The independence of the states is to become the independence of local soviets, or of prefectures. We are to turn the country into a sort of colonial empire under a high commissioner, and local governments will function by the will and grace of the central executive. The executive will remain in one respect what it now is, but this condition of affairs will be definitely legalized. We shall be ruled in the final instance by an invisible government of an anonymous secretariat.

I am not exaggerating. Four bills which have been introduced in Congress are aimed definitely in achieving these results. They are profoundly revolutionary. And what gives the whole program an atmosphere of awful frivolity is that we are, apparently, to make a revolution without even knowing it!

We are not going to be asked to fight for principles of radical reorganization demanded by the necessities of our times. Our children are not going to be able to say: "There stood our fathers, and in full consciousness of their historic role took this step." Not at all!

We are going to be cajoled into revolution, with the pretense that it is all innocuous, and really not at all important. We are going to lope along like silly sheep, following the good shepherd to an unknown fold. Or are we? Or are we?

Four bills have been introduced. And Congress is asked to rush them through, at a time of year when it is most difficult to arrange hearings, when in large parts of the country the public interest is at the lowest ebb; when Senators and Representatives are sweating and tired.

Thus, in the hope of some vacation before the summer heat broils our representatives at their desks, are we asked quickly to make that rendezvous with destiny which the President promised us last June. We are to keep that date without deliberation, without adequate hearings, without public debate.

It is possible that the people of the United States want to change the system of government under which the nation has been living for 150 years. It is possible that they may come to think that the times demand such changes. They have the right so to will and to act.

But it is impossible to believe that the people of the United States actually have the remotest idea of the true significance of the proposals which are being made under the general motif of "extending the frontiers of social progress."

It is possible that the people of the United States want to make a revolution. But if we want one, then, in heaven's name, let us make one in full consciousness of what we are doing. If we wish to turn the Congress of the United States into a mere sounding board and rubber stamp, vesting its traditional powers in commissions all held in the hands of the President, let us decide to do so after giving thought.

Two revolutions in this country have been made—by the people, and in struggle. Shall the third be not made, but merely tolerated?

The bill for the reorganization of the executive department is presented as a measure for insuring us a competent, disinterested civil service, something which public-minded citizens have demanded for

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Our Pending Revolution in Government

IN the midst of the oppressive Washington heat, the present Congress is being urged to pass without delay a series of bills which, if they go through, will change radically the entire structure of government in the United States.

These bills are not isolated measures, but add up to a consistent picture. And the picture is of a tremendously centralized Government, with a power and authority vested in the President not far from equal to the power and authority vested in Mussolini or in Stalin.

Powers which include legislation, backed up by the police authority, are to be vested in commissions, and these commissions are to be responsible, not to Congress, but to the executive. Legislation will be initiated, not in Congress, but in an executive secretariat and a National Planning Board, the latter, again, to be attached, not to the legislative branch of government, but to the President.

States' rights in all the most important fields of activity are to be done away with. The independence of the states is to become the independence of local soviets, or of prefectures. We are to turn the country into a sort of colonial empire under a high commissioner, and local governments will function by the will and grace of the central executive. The executive will remain in one respect what it now is, but this condition of affairs will be definitely legalized. We shall be ruled in the final instance by an invisible government of an anonymous secretariat.

I am not exaggerating. Four bills which have been introduced in Congress are aimed definitely in achieving these results. They are profoundly revolutionary. And what gives the whole program an atmosphere of awful frivolity is that we are, apparently, to make a revolution without even knowing it!

We are not going to be asked to fight for principles of radical reorganization demanded by the necessities of our times. Our children are not going to be able to say: "There stood our fathers, and in full consciousness of their historic role took this step." Not at all!

We are going to be cajoled into revolution, with the pretense that it is all innocuous, and really not at all important. We are going to lope along like silly sheep, following the good shepherd to an unknown fold. Or are we? Or are we?

Four bills have been introduced. And Congress is asked to rush them through, at a time of year when it is most difficult to arrange hearings, when in large parts of the country the public interest is at the lowest ebb; when Senators and Representatives are sweating and tired.

Thus, in the hope of some vacation before the summer heat broils our representatives at their desks, are we asked quickly to make that rendezvous with destiny which the President promised us last June. We are to keep that date without deliberation, without adequate hearings, without public debate.

It is possible that the people of the United States want to change the system of government under which the nation has been living for 150 years. It is possible that they may come to think that the times demand such changes. They have the right so to will and to act.

But it is impossible to believe that the people of the United States actually have the remotest idea of the true significance of the proposals which are being made under the general motif of "extending the frontiers of social progress."

It is possible that the people of the United States want to make a revolution. But if we want one, then, in heaven's name, let us make one in full consciousness of what we are doing. If we wish to turn the Congress of the United States into a mere sounding board and rubber stamp, vesting its traditional powers in commissions all held in the hands of the President, let us decide to do so after giving thought.

Two revolutions in this country have been made—by the people, and in struggle. Shall the third be not made, but merely tolerated?

The bill for the reorganization of the executive department is presented as a measure for insuring us a competent, disinterested civil service, something which public-minded citizens have demanded for years. The bill, however, contains many things that have nothing to do with the civil service per se. It creates, first, an anonymous secretariat of six men "with a passion for anonymity," of powers mysterious, to fill a need unclarified. These men are to be a kind of privy court of intimate advisers, responsible to no one except the President.

The bill further creates a National Planning Board, which by its nature will become the chief instrument of projecting legislation, and this board is also responsible, not to the legislative branch of government, but to the President.

The wages-and-hours bill is presented as a measure of social justice. It creates a Labor Standards Board, to be appointed by the President, of five men at salaries of $10,000 a year each, and these five men are to hold the power of life and death over American industry, both interstate and intrastate. Congress will do no more than fix a general objective.

It will be up to these five men to decide hours, rates of minimum pay and labor standards of all kinds, for all parts of the country, setting one standard here and another there, their edicts having the force of law, and disobedience entailing fine and imprisonment.

The seemingly innocuous water and flood control plan, launched for the conservation of the nation's resources, provides for the creation of seven regional authorities covering the entire country, charged to project programs of the widest scope, including conservation measures affecting every farmer, water control leading into power development, all programs eventually to be subject to Washington's approval, and co-ordinated through the President. It will be possible, through these authorities, to control agriculture completely.

And the Supreme Court is to be sufficiently enlarged to make it the instrument of the President's majority, and for excellent reasons. The President must control the Supreme Court if this program is to go through without constitutional amendment.

Even a liberal majority, of men like Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo will not do. Because these men are constitutionalists, still believing in the rights of the states and in a Federal Government of limited powers. To pass these measures, one needs on the bench men who believe more in the President than they do in the Constitution.

Whatever democratic government may or may not be, it is deliberate government. There is no legislative body in the world capable in a few week's time of formulating a measured judgment about changes so profound, or of hearing about them from their constituents in the country. Nor is the public asked to take time to consider.

On the contrary, other completely minor issues are thrown into the arena to swamp the headlines of the press and deflect the attention of Congress—such things as the new purge of the rich, the economic royalists being Mr. Roosevelt's Jews and Trotskyists. Whenever the public attention needs to be diverted, arrest some priests for immorality, or discover a sabotage plot among the state engineers, or get after the owners of yachts who have incorporated them! That's the modern technique, apparently, for treating the people as though they were endowed with no sense or reason.

"We face an even greater crisis than in 1922," said the President, in a speech exhorting support for the plan for reorganizing the judiciary.

We do indeed. And the question before us, as Americans, is whether we are going to face it, or go grinning dumbly toward an uncertain fate, trusting the laws of chance and the President. If we are going to face it, we had better imitate the hunger and bonus marchers and stage a march on Washington with just one demand: that Congress hold its historic power of deliberation, and give this country time to consider where it is going, and why.

For it is possible to take steps which never again can be retraced. The processes of history are not always reversible. We can start a program which then will go on, under its own impetus, invested with police powers which the people cannot control. I cannot recall a case in history where a popular body, having yielded its powers, ever was able to recapture them.

GEN. CLAYPOOL HEADS U. C. V.; JOINT REUNION AGREED TO

Confederate Veterans Elect St. Louisan After Voting to Go to Gettysburg With G. A. R.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSON, Miss., June 12. — The United Confederate Veterans agreed yesterday to "bury the hatchet" and smoke the pipe of peace with their Yankee opponents of the Civil War in a joint reunion at Gettysburg on June 26 of next year.

After settling this controversial subject, which has been before the U. C. V. for the last three years, the veterans engaged in a spirited internal fight over election of a new commander-in-cheif, finally choosing Gen. J. M. Claypool of St. Louis, commander of the Missouri division.

630 Men Who Have Been Aiding Rebels Expect to Sail from Lisbon.

LONDON, June 12.—Six hundred and 30 Irish volunteers who have been fighting for Spanish insurgents on the Madrid front will return to Dublin next week. The volunteers expect to sail from Lisbon in a Portuguese vessel.

(Dublin heard early in May that Gen. Eoin O'Duffy's Irish Brigade was coming home. Two reasons were given. The Irish Free State's non-intervention act forbidding replacements; and the fact that the unit, its ranks depleted, was in danger of being broken up.)

40-HOUR WEEK FOR ALL URGED BY TEXTILE MAN

C. T. Murchison, Head of Institute, Also Favors Minimum Wage and Bar on Child Labor.

CRITICISES BILL BEFORE CONGRESS

Manufacturer Testifies He Cares for Standards of Living of Employes Through Church.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Congress was urged to put the 40-hour work week into effect throughout the nation by Claudius T. Murchison, director of the Cotton Textile Institute, in his testimony yesterday on the Black-Connery wage and hour bill.

He was unsparing in his criticism of the bill, which would give an administrative board power to fix different wages for different industries and to adjust the work week upward and downward.

"To my mind, the bill is the epitome of legislative tragedy," Murchison told the congressional committee conducting hearings on the administration legislation. "It is a disillusionment for those whose hopes were high. It is sheer fantasy for those who would be realistic, and yet, within its broad, monstrous, lugubrious form it holds the germ of economic sanity and progress."

He proceeded then to suggest an alternative program.

Favors Bar on Child Labor.

The Cotton Textile Institute, representing 70 per cent of the productive capacity of its industry, desires immediate passage of a bill prohibiting child labor, he said, and also favors a minimum wage and maximum work week established by law.

He suggested the three issues ought to be split into separate legislation, however, instead of being handled together as in the administration bill.

Murchison advocated establishment of a nation-wide 40-hour work week, with provision for adjustments in special cases, and a flat minimum wage for all industry, with differentials only for broad geographical divisions.

Under questioning, he said the textile industry now has a $12-a-week minimum wage, but that he believes it could go along with a $13-a-week minimum without injury. He urged that the minimum be $1 higher in the North than in the South.

As it stands, he contended, the Black-Connery bill would bring "the death knell of organized labor concurrently with the death knell of freedom in industrial enterprise."

"The minimum wage, in effect, serves merely as a beginning and an excuse for the control of all wages," Murchison continued.

He proposed that the legislation be administered by existing Government agencies, but conceded a new board would be necessary if Congress decided to go beyond the fixing of a "mere subsistence wage" and into the field of "fair minimum wages" for each industry.

Discussion of Adequate Wage.

Murchison's testimony came after a former president of the National Association of Manufacturers had refused, under questioning, to express any opinion as to whether $16 a week is an adequate income for a family of four.

The witness, John E. Eggerton, of Nashville, president of the Southern States Industrial Council, was asked by Representative Wood (Dem.), Missouri, if he thought $16 a week was enough to "rear a family of four with the ordinary comforts of life."

Edgerton, who opposed the Black-Connery bill, but said he believed a minimum wage of $11 or $12 a week to be high enough if a law were passed, said, "I'm not going to answer such a question as that. I don't think its relevant to this proposition at all." He testified that in employing men he didn't "inquire into standards of living."

"I couldn't enter into considerations of that sort," he added. "I must consider what a man can do and what he can produce.

"I attend to those other things through my church connections and my philanthropic connections."

GOVERNMENT SPENDING MUST GO ON, HOPKINS SAYS

In Address Written for Graduating Class, Declares W P A Program Is Essential.

WELLESLEY, Mass., June 12.—Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, declared today that the upsetting of the W P A program before the unemployed were absorbed by industry "will save business a few pennies in taxes, but for every penny saved from Uncle Sam it will have to give dollars to future depressions."

In an address read for him by Aubrey Williams, Deputy W P A Administrator, Hopkins told the graduating class of Banson Institute for Business Education that there was "no choice other than to carry on with a policy of protective spending against depression."

Asserting that the depression "has been stopped," he wrote: "Recovery has advanced to the point where production, measured in absolute terms, is about equal to 1929. It would take a pretty severely prejudiced individual to deny that the Federal works program has played an important part in this recovery."

Hopkins could not attend because of a sudden call to appear today before the Senate Appropriations Committee at Washington.

HOUSE SAYS ROOSEVELT WILL NOT RUN AGAIN

Wilson's Adviser, 78, Expects President to Do Some Writing After He Retires.

MANCHESTER-BY-THE-SEA, Mass., June 12.—Col. Edward Mandell House of Texas, confidential agent and adviser of President Woodrow Wilson, said yesterday President Roosevelt "will probably do some writing after he retires."

Asked if he thought Roosevelt would seek another term, House asserted: "Roosevelt will not be a candidate for a third term."

"President Roosevelt is my friend," House said, then steered the interviewer away from politics.

Approaching his seventy-ninth birthday and slightly stooped by age, House is still keen.

"I've never seen the people of this country so bent for peace," House said. "England and France want to maintain peace in Europe. Ninety per cent of the people in those countries would compel peace and the Italian and German people also are vehemently opposed to war.. If war should break out, however, it will happen overnight and some trivial thing might upset the applecart and start it going."

DESCRIBES PURPOSES OF CATHOLIC WORKERS

The Rev. P. H. Furfey Tells of Movement in Church Begun Four Years Ago.

The development of a school of personalism in the Catholic Church, based on individual translation into action of fundamental precepts found in the New Testament and incorporated in papal encyclicals was outlined to a Post-Dispatch reporter today by the Rev. Paul H. Furfey, head of the sociology department of the Catholic University and an exponent of the Catholic Worker movement.

Father Furfey, who spoke last night on "The Catholic Revolution" at St. Louis Cathedral Hall, Newstead avenue and Lindell boulevard, under auspices of the local unit of the movement, regards it as the expression of a viewpoint rather than a formal organization.

"If we differ with any group in the church," Father Furfey said, "it is because we are actually super-orthodox, for we merely attempt to exemplify in action in this modern world the living, breathing realities emphasized in the New Testament and by the Popes."

Personal Catholic Action.

Distinctly a youth movement, the advocates of personalism practice personal "Catholic action," extending individual aid to the needy, occasionally appearing on picket lines, recognizing a feeling of personal responsibility for social injustice.

The promotion of racial equality, Father Furfey said, was only a practical adaptation of the teaching of the brotherhood of man, expressive of the "mystical body of Christ."

Both clergy and laity are represented in the movement, he said, which was instituted in New York four years ago by Miss Dorothy Day, a former Communist, and a handful of followers. No attempt had been made to create a mass movement, he said, and it was not numerically strong, although its official journal has about 100,000 subscribers.

Active workers in the "personalist revolution," Father Furfey said, comprise about 15 or 20 persons in each city. The unit here has been especially active in assisting Negroes. Father Furfey pointed out that the intellectual and spiritual influence of what has grown to be a world-wide movement constitutes its greatest strength.

Tenets of Organization.

While the Catholic Worker organization believed in direct political action against superfluous wealth, it was not opposed to wealth per se, Father Furfey said. It does teach that the accumulation of wealth should not be an end in itself.

While supporting certain aspects of the labor movement it does not indorse any especial particular organization nor, indeed, does it agree with all the elements in any organization. It is free, too, from "any spirit of hate or feeling of class warfare," Father Furfey said, believing social injustice may be rectified by spiritual and intellectual adjustments as well as by practical personal endeavors. There is scant room for social abstractions in the movement. Its founders lived in the slums, shared the outlook of the unfortunate and those active in it today operate with little or no financing among all conditions of men.

Ways of Earthquakes Described by Expert

Impossible to Predict, U. S. Chief of Seismology Says—Idea of 50-Year Immunity After Temblor Is Fallacy.

The prediction of earthquakes is one major problem that seismology has not yet solved, declared Capt. N. H. Heck, chief of the division of terrestrial magnetism and seismology in the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, to day as the Eastern section of the Seismological Society of America concluded its annual meeting at St. Louis University.

"Every test has proved that prediction in time and space is now impossible," said Capt. Heck. "The place is fixed as that where an unknown stress is growing that will eventually reach the breaking strength of the crust, and usually this is not at or near the surface, but five to 30 miles down—and in many cases much more.

"It is possible that the time of occurence of an earthquake is not necessarily the very uncertain instant when the stress exceeds the strength," he went on, "but is set by the action of a small extraneous force in no way related to the earthquake-producing force."

Importance of Study.

But this is all the more reason why studies of all reported quakes should be continued, he said, because that is the only way in which an approach to prediction can be made. It is of the utmost importance in the saving of lives and property, as well as in such commercial fields as insurance, that an attempt be made to determine the location of stresses that are seeking release through earthquakes.

Capt. Heck warned against the popular fallacy that an earthquake, having relieved tremendous subterranean pressure, is a guarantee of a 50-year period of immunity for the stricken area. True, there were no recurrences of the disastrous Charleston quake in 1886 and that of Yakutat Bay, Alaska, in 1899, but often a severe stress may continue to exist along a fault not far distant from one at which a similar strain was relieved. As an example, he cited the Santa Cruz disturbance of 1865 and that at Hayward in 1868—both near enough to San Francisco to cause considerable damage there.

A problem that seismology can solve, said Heck, is the location of buried faults. In the past, he pointed out, great dams and other important structures were actually built across such faults.

Use by Oil Companies.

That the seismograph is being put to some of the practical uses suggested by Heck was made clear in a paper read by Paul Weaver, Huston, Tex., for F. Bryan Eby and Robert P. Clark, consulting geophysicists also from Huston.

"In the year 1936 and the first half of 1937," the paper stated, "in the Gulf Coast area alone, 36 oil and exploration companies were using 88 seismograph crews. This number of parties in the year 1936 explored 20,000,000 acres at a cost of $9,500,000. The finding of many new structures and the development of many new oil fields during the same period emphasizes that this money was well invested."

The use of the seismograph in the field, especially in coastal swamps, has resulted in the development of smaller and lighter instruments—a recent one weighing but eight ounces and being no larger than a flash light battery, the paper stated. Better instruments have also meant better results, it continued, so that salt deposits were recently predicted within 10 feet of their actual location 7200 feet below the surface.

Two Samples of Research.

Samples of the detailed studies of quakes and of crustal structures, asked for by Capt. Heck, were the reports of the Rev. A. J. Westland, S. J., of Spring Hill College, Mobile, Ala., who is now doing research work here, and that of Miss Florence Robertson of St. Louis University. The latter paper concerned itself with the earth's crust throughout Missouri, and the former was a detailed study of the effects and probable cause of the Ohio earthquake of March 2 of this year.

Others who read papers included L. B. Slichter of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, who served as chairman of the meetings yesterday and today.

All possible encouragement and help should be given to amateur seismologists, it was decided at yesterday's business meeting. A committee, headed by the Rev. James B. Macelwane, S. J., of St. Louis University, will seek means of supplying boys with blue prints for the construction of inexpensive instruments, of affording them the personal guidance of experts, and of publishing the results of their observations. An amateur can build a seismograph for $10, Father Macelwane said, and its upkeep is negligible.

QUEEN MARIE SAID TO HAVE SERIOUS LIVER AILMENT

One of Eight Specialists Who See Her Says Condition Is No Cause for Alarm.

By the Associated Press.

SINAIA, Rumania, June 12.—Eight physicians who conducted a three-hour examination were reported yesterday to have found the dowager Queen Marie of Rumania suffering from a serious disease of the liver.

Prof. Hans Eppinger of Vienna, one of the specialists, said the 61-year-old Queen's condition "is held to be serious but not the occasion for immediate alarm."

One of the physicians who came to Queen Marie's summer home here for the examination said a radium treatment started by a Rumanian physician was approved and would be continued.

Premier George Tatarescu, who came to Sinaia by special train, saw the Queen while the physicians exchanged opinions.

The Rumanian official news agency said the fact so many doctors were called in was not to be interpreted as indicating the Queen's condition was more serious. "The royal family is merely taking all measures to assure the Queen the most expert attention," an agency official said.

Physicians other than Eppinger who took part in the examination were J. Fernand Besancon of Paris, Walter Meyer of Zurich, Nicola Pende and Aldo Castellani of Rome, and three Rumanian physicians. Fees of the foreign specialists were reported to have been $1250 and expenses each.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Vice-President Garner said yesterday he was going home tomorrow for a vacation.

Emerging from a Cabinet meeting at the White House, Garner told reporters "the boss," referring to President Roosevelt, had given him permission to go. He beamed as he returned to the capitol to clean up last-minute business.

The Vice-President's decision to go on vacation, his first during a session of Congress in 34 years, was regarded as an indication there was little chance for early adjournment of Congress. Garner said he would be gone about five weeks. His chief job is to preside over the Senate and that can be easily delegated.

SIR JOSIAH STAMP LOOKS AT RECOVERY

Thinks Co-Operation on Equalization Funds Big Factor in World Outlook.

The most significant economic fact of the decade, Sir Josiah Stamp, British industrialist, told members of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday at the Jefferson Hotel is the co-operation that has been achieved through equalization funds in the control of international monetary exchange.

With the attainment of that last fall, Sir Josiah said, the world "got around the most important corner in the psychology of recovery," and nations can now meet on common ground to discuss common economic problems.

One way or another, he said, the processes of economic recovery have begun in all countries, and the means used in each country, although varied, have seemed to meet particular needs. "If the method works in its own country," he said, "let us respect it for what it has done."

As examples of opposite methods working toward the same end, Sir Josiah cited the "pump priming" expenditures of government in the United States and the British insistenct on governmental economy and a balanced budget; the tax here on undistributed profits, and the British tradition that businesses should build up a reserve out of profits to provide for expansion and the payment of dividends in periods of depression.

He mentioned these things, he said, simply to illustrate the proverb that "one man's meat is another's poison."

Whichever way may be the "right" way, Sir Josiah said, the United States had recovered confidence by spending Government money freely and unbalancing its budget, but he added, the time had come to get to work to bring the budget into balance. "If you don't do it soon enough," he said, "you may find that you will not be able to do it at all."

The improvement in agriculture which has come with removal of the annual "overhang" in wheat production, and the emergence of Russia as an important gold-producing nation, Sir Josiah said, were, next to the improved condition in international monetary exchange, the most important economic factors influencing recovery. Russia, he said, had increased its gold production sevenfold in the last few years.

Of gold he said that the idea that it was the "say all, be all and end all of economic life" was a "tremendous delusion," but true, so long as the world continued to believe it true.

Sir Josiah and Lady Stamp departed last night for Washington, and will sail next week for England. In St. Louis they were the guests of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Ivan Lee Holt.

SOME NEW LOWS FOR THE YEAR IN STOCKS

Several Motors in This List; Steels Among Conspicuous Losers; Slight Recoveries Late; Pace Generally Slow.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 12. — Market leaders slipped a little today, influenced largely by the steel strike situation.

Mild buying support was evident here and there during the brief session on the theory of an oversold market and that any really constructive news could bring a substantial rally.

Early losses of fractions to more than two points among steels, motors, coppers and rails were reduced in some instances before the close.

The pace was slow throughout, transfers approximating 350,000 shares.

Wheat at Chicago lost 2½ to 2⅞ cents a bushel, and corn was down 1⅜ to 3⅛. Cotton yielded 65 to 75 cents a bale.

Sterling was up ¼ of a cent at $4.93 11-16, and the French franc was unchanged at 4.45 cents.

Hitting the Bottom.

Bottom marks for stocks for 1937 were hit by General Motors, Chrysler, Vanadium, Motor Products, Boeing, Consolidated Edison, Electric Power & Light, Public Service of N. J. and American Can, among others.

Conspicuous losers were Bethlehem, Inland Steel, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Westinghouse, General Electric, Santa Fe, New York Central, Celanese, Loew's, Lone Star Cement, Yale & Towne, Newport Industries and Air Reduction.

Budd Wheel and Packard were about even, along with Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corporation, Continental Oil, North American and Socony-Vacuum.

While steel shares again lacked vigor, observers in this field stressed the point that increased demand from farm machinery manufacturers was offsetting in part the drop in orders from motor makers, who are preparing to change over into new models. Inquiries for railroad and structural steel were said to be continuing well above a year ago.

In line with recent slipping tendencies displayed by the coppers, talk was heard of a possible cut in the price of the red metal to 12 or 13 cents a pound before fall.

More Cheerful News.

While strikes continued to affect trading, brokerage quarters gave attention to the monthly survey of the National Industrial Conference Board, which disclosed that daily average wages in 25 industries during April rose to 68.4 cents an hour from 65.9 cents in March, while the average work week declined from 41.7 hours to 41. Employment was 1.5 per cent ahead of March and 1.9 per cent higher than in the 1929 period.

Others, watching building material stocks, studied the figures of the F. W. Dodge Corporation, indicating residential construction contracts in May were 20 per cent above the aggregate for the same 1936 month but considerably under the recovery peak established in April.

Business news was a bit spotty.

COTTON FUTURES STEADY, AT 13 TO 15 POINTS OFF

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Favorable weather in the belt brought week-end liquidation in cotton today to carry prices back to within a few points of the recent lows.

October declined from 12.12 to 11.99 and closed at 12.03.

Futures closed steady, 13 to 15 lower. July, 11.98@11.99; Oct., 12.03@12.04; Dec., 12.00; Jan., 12.03; March, 12.05; May, 12.08n. Spot, quiet; middling, 12.48. n—Nominal.

Cotton futures opened quiet, down 6 to 7 points, on lower Liverpool cables and continued favorable weather. July 12.05, Oct. 12.09, Dec. 12.07, Jan. 12.09, March 12.13, May 12.16.

July liquidation, together with Southern and local selling, brought an easier tone to early dealing. Prices rallied a few points from initial levels on spot house buying of July, after which the market developed a sagging tendency as more favorable features in the weather came in for attention.

While offerings were not large, the demand was limited. Shortly after the first half hour, further declines were registered, carrying the market off to net losses of 14 to 16 points in the more active positions. October eased from 12.12 to 12.02.

The Commodity Credit Corporation, in a statement, said that no concessions from the loan cotton price would be made during the period June 25-Jan. 1, 1938, and that the small amount of cotton released in the past few weeks indicated that the present demand had been satisfied.

Liverpool declined largely in sympathy with easiness of Bombay.

GOVERNMENT BOND LIST FAIRLY STEADY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 12.—United States Governments displayed a fairly rugged front in a quiet session today, with the majority of issues ranging not more than ⅛ of a point in either direction. An unsettled gold situation abroad, with heavy shipments of the yellow metal to the United States has made the Federal list somewhat nervous.

Bethlehem's 4¼s climbed a bit and the 3¾c dropped down a minor fraction.

The railroad group was inactive, reflecting uncertainty over the extent of a possible summer recession in business. About even were St. Paul 5s of 1975, Northwestern 4¾s and Erie 5. Illinois Central 4¾s lifted a little as did Northern Pacific 4s.

Other corporate issues moved narrowly. Loew's 3½ and Shell Union 3½s improved a little. Lower were Studebaker 6s, International Hydro Electric 6s and Western Union 5s.

Foreign obligations were ragged, with weakness apparent in Brazilian and Colombian loans. Italy 7s and Japan 5½s were improved.

Uncertainty still overhangs most of the foreign list.

GOVERNMENT BOND LIST FAIRLY STEADY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 12.—United States Governments displayed a fairly rugged front in a quiet session today, with the majority of issues ranging not more than ⅛ of a point in either direction. An unsettled gold situation abroad, with heavy shipments of the yellow metal to the United States has made the Federal list somewhat nervous.

Bethlehem's 4¼s climbed a bit and the 3¾c dropped down a minor fraction.

The railroad group was inactive, reflecting uncertainty over the extent of a possible summer recession in business. About even were St. Paul 5s of 1975, Northwestern 4¾s and Erie 5. Illinois Central 4¾s lifted a little as did Northern Pacific 4s.

Other corporate issues moved narrowly. Loew's 3½ and Shell Union 3½s improved a little. Lower were Studebaker 6s, International Hydro Electric 6s and Western Union 5s.

Foreign obligations were ragged, with weakness apparent in Brazilian and Colombian loans. Italy 7s and Japan 5½s were improved.

Uncertainty still overhangs most of the foreign list.

BUILDING AND LOAN APRIL VOLUME ABOVE YEAR AGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 12.—The United States Building and Loan League today reported savings and building and loan association lending in April, the bulk of which was in the home ownership field, totaled $125,386,000, an amount unsurpassed in any previous month since 1929.

This volume was 16.7 per cent higher than in March and 14.3 per cent higher than a year ago.

New home construction loans totaled $37,669,000, the highest mark in eight years, and, according to the league, about 10,650 homes were financed with the aid of this money.

Morton Bodfish, executive vice-president of the league, said rising building costs were reflected in the fact that the average association new construction commitment was approximately $450 larger than a year ago.

Repair and modernization, home purchase and refinancing were other uses to which April loans were applied.

STEEL MEN STILL OPPOSE CONTRACT; PARLEY RECESSES

Conference in Gov. Davey's Office Goes Over to Tuesday After He Makes Seven Proposals.

RECOGNITION OF C I O MEMBERS DENIED

Union Willing to Sign on That Basis and Does Not Demand Closed Shop and Check-Off.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., June 12.—Representatives of opposing sides in the strike against three major steel producers were unable to agree here last night on a seven-point settlement plan proposed by Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio and the conference in the executive mansion was recessed to Tuesday.

The list of 73,000 idle workers at mills of Republic Steel Corporation, Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. and Inland Steel Corporation was increased by thousands when workers walked from the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's Cambria plant at Johnstown, Pa.

The prolonged peace conference here between representatives of Republic, Sheet & Tube and John L. Lewis' steel union broke up nearly 11 hours after it had convened.

Hopes Progress Was Made.

Gov. Davey said of the conferees "it was very interesting to see them smiling as they shook hands and said 'good night.'" Asked if he felt progress had been made toward settling the seven-state strike, the Governor said "we hope so."

After Davey urged the companies to sign a S W O C contract recognizing the union as collective bargaining agent for its own members only—the point at issue throughout the two and one-half week-old strike—company representatives said they had not changed their intention against signing.

Union representatives — Philip Murray, national S W O C chairman, and John Owens, Ohio C I O director—insisted, meanwhile, on a contract. "We are not going to walk out—we are willing to wait for days," a union spokesman said.

Conferences in Indiana.

Gov. M. Clifford Townsend of Indiana, after separate Indianapolis meetings with labor leaders and representatives of two Indiana plants involved in the strike, said "the situation has reached a very definite point of dispute and that's the signing of a contract."

As a precautionary measure, the City Council at Youngstown last night passed an ordinance authorizing Mayor Lionel Evans to increase the police force and provide sufficient funds for any supplies he deemed necessary in the event of a strike emergency.

Anthony Hubbard, president, said the Youngstown central labor body would meet Sunday to determine whether a general strike should be called. He said the strike, if ordered, would not be in support of the steel strike, but a "protest against city and county measures in the strike."

Senate Committee to Investigate Alleged Interference With Mail.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Allegations of interference with mail service to strike-bound plants will be one of the principal subjects covered in the investigation, ordered yesterday by the Senate Postoffice Committte. Members may bring up any other phases of the strike they wish, for the inquiry was designated as a "preliminary" one.

Chairman McKellar (Dem.), Tennessee, in charge of arrangements, said he wanted to inquire into reports that the Republic Steel Corporation had offered to provide guards to escort the mail through picket lines.

W. W. Howes, Assistant Postmaster-General, told the committee yesterday that "abnormal" deliveries of food packages to the steel plants had been discontinued because the safety of postal employes was endangered. He denied charges of interference.

Senator Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, said it was apparent from testimony on his resolution to investigate the postal angles of the strikes "that there has been a breakdown of law and order in strike areas."

The first witnesses will be postal employes involved in the strike mail controversy and Lewis J. Guarnieri, attorney for Republic Steel.

Republic to Reopen New Wire Mill at South Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 12. — Republic Steel Corporation announced today it would reopen the only idle department at its South Chicago mills.

James L. Hyland, Republic district manager, said at a press conference the new wire mill, opened in April and closed since the start of the strike two weeks ago, would resume operations Monday with 125 men employed. Normal employment, he said, was 175. Hyland said steel output at the plant now was 85 per cent of capacity.

The manager said new men were not being hired for work in the wire mill, but that the force would be recruited from former employes returning to work.

Hyland said no additional police protection would be asked. Four hundred and fifty officers are working in three daily shifts of 150 each. Rioting near the Republic property on Memorial day cost eight lives.

Union leaders report they are considering extending their campaign for sole bargaining contracts to other steel mills operating in this area.

JACOB BAKER ESTATE FRAUD SENTENCES

Six Sent to Jail, One to Prison by U. S. Judge in Pittsburgh.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, June 12.—Seven more defendants in the Baker Estate fraud case were sentenced yesterday to prison or jail terms.

They had been convicted of conspiracy to defraud in soliciting funds to press claims against the Jacob Baker estate which the Government contended did not exist.

United States District Judge F. P. Schoonmaker sentenced Attorney William Morrow Cameron Smith of Washington, to a year and a day in a Federal penitentiary.

Six others, sentenced to six months in jail, were William S. Miller, Indiana, Pa.; W. H. C. Sprengel, Fred F. Sprengel, David J. Anderson and Henry Wolfard, all of Johnstown, and the Rev. Norman H. Blough of Davidsville, Pa.

Meantime, trial of four other persons indicted on the same charges proceeded, with Mrs. Lillian A. Ryan of Portland, Ore., one of the defendants and the mother of 16 children, on the stand.

Mrs. Ryan repeated the story she told a week earlier, that valuable documents that would have proved the existence of the estate were stolen from her in the Federal Building.

She declared she had traced the history of "several hundred" Baker descendents and produced charts she said had been used in this work.

Defense counsel offered as evidence a deed of a "Jacob Baker" Mrs. Ryan uncovered in Philadelphia, but the court sustained the Government's objection, ruling:

"The deed itself is irrelevant because you have said you will not attempt to prove that there exists a bona fide Jacob Baker estate, but that the defendant (Mr. Ryan) believed such an estate existed and therefore acted in good faith."

MAN SHOT IN CALIFORNIA IS WANTED IN ST. LOUIS

Found to Be Suspect Who Got Away After Arrest on Robbery Charge.

By the Associated Press.

LONG BEACH, Cal., June 12.—Chief of Detectives Walter Lentz said yesterday that a man known locally as Jerome E. Edwards, formerly operator of a Seal Beach gambling house, had been identified through fingerprints as Peter J. McCann, wanted in St. Louis on a robbery charge.

McCann was shot by an unidentified assailant as he left his automobile last week and is in a serious condition in a hospital.

Lentz said St. Louis police told him McCann had escaped on April 2, 1934, while awaiting trial on a robbery charge.

Peter J. McCann was identified by Houston Cooper, clerk in a United Cigar Store at 500 Pine street, as the man who robbed him of $30 July 19, 1933. A robbery warrant was issued and, pending trial, McCann was sent to City Sanitarium for observation, but escaped from the institution. It has not been decided whether authorities here will send for the California prisoner or which department would bear the expense.

STRIKE AT BETHLEHEM PLANT IN JOHNSTOWN

Men Walk from Mill Employing 12,000 After Conference Fails; Operations Continue.

By the Associated Press.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 12.—The Bethlehem Steel Corporation felt the effects of a strike today when workmen walked out of the huge Cambria plant, joining 73,000 men idle in the seven-state steel strike.

The walkout, timed for the changing shifts at midnight, was orderly, but Sheriff Michael J. Boyle of Cambria County announced he had asked Gov. George H. Earle's office for State police "to assist in maintaining order in this strike." He said he had been assured the police would be supplied.

Bethlehem, second largest producer in the industry, employs 80,000 men, and there are 12,000 to 15,000 in the Cambria plant. Company executives declined to comment on the number who had left their jobs here. The steel workers' Organizing Committee, which called the strike, asserted that 10,000 were idle. However, operations at the plant continued.

David Watkins, sub-regional director of the steel union forces, said today there was "every possibility" that the strike movement will spread to all plants of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, employing 80,000 men.

Watkins said: "I hope it spreads fast."

He reported he had suggested to officials of the United Mine Workers they call strikes in the five captive mines of the corporation in the Johnstown area. They produce coal only for the steel mills. Between 2200 and 2500 miners are employed in the five mines.

Some workers remained inside the gates, others walked into the plant as the shift changed. There were cheers for those who left the mills and boos for those who entered.

Watkins and company executives conferred late last night in an attempt to prevent the strike, but after an hour Watkins left the meeting and announced: "The company again refused to sign a contract."

Watkins then called what union leaders said was a "pep" meeting and in a hall that accommodated 1000 persons and was nearly filled, union men held up their hands, signifying their desire to strike.

The strike was called by Watkins in support of a walkout on a Bethlehem Corporation subsidiary railroad, the Conemaugh and Blacklick.

"But," said Watkins, "our strike . . . is more than a sympathy strike; we have specific demands of our own to make. We want signed contracts with the Bethlehem governing wages, hours, recognition and working conditions."

The railroad men, supported by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, also had demanded, and been refused, a contract.

Mayor Daniel J. Shields early today announced that he had ordered all drinking places in the strike area closed.

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 12.—Spokesmen for the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, a C I O affiliate, announced last night the union had voted, 455 to 50, to accept an agreement ending a seven-week strike at the Bucyrus-Erie Co. plant in South Milwaukee affecting 1128 production workers and 500 office workers. A three to four cent wage increase was given to hourly workers, to be charged against a bonus announced last March.

MURPHY, UNION WAR ON 'WILDCAT' STRIKES

Governor Orders End of Utility Walkouts — Auto Workers Promise to Obey Contracts.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 12. — Separate campaigns against unauthorized, "wildcat" strikes were begun today by Gov. Murphy and members of the United Automobile Workers of America.

Murphy directed his efforts against a recurrence of strikes which twice within three weeks paralyzed the Consumers Power Co. and deprived a half million inhabitants of the Saginaw Valley—an area embracing 13 counties—of electrical service.

Union officers strove to bring order out of the chaotic labor situation in the automobile industry, vaguely threatened "discipline," and sought to fulfill a promise to return 37,000 idle employes to their jobs in plants of the General Motors Corporation in five cities by Monday.

The Governor attacked "willful and irresponsible persons" within union ranks but renewed guarantees that "every legitimate right of labor should be and must be recognized."

"I know many people have dissented with the policy of the Governor," he said, "but I will continue to maintain a policy of peace.

"It will be done firmly, too. Anyone who thinks I am not strong in my convictions has the right to test me out."

Would Prevent Utility Strikes.

Murphy said he had instructed sheriffs from Flint, Saginaw and Bay City—the three largest of nearly 200 communities which were without light and power during recent strikes of Consumers Power Co. employes—to forestall any further "irresponsible action."

He said the plans would involve the maintenance of an adequate force of officers, specially recruited if necessary, to guard against utility strikes and provisions for emergency operation of utility plants should regular employes refuse the task.

U A W A leaders, in seeking a revision of their present contract with General Motors, delivered an informal pledge to "live up to our contracts." The pledge was made as Wyndham Mortimer and Ed Hall, vice-presidents of the International Union, conferred with Harry W. Anderson and Floyd O. Tanner, officers of the corporation.

"We promised the company to do all we could to get all of the employes back to work Monday," said Mortimer. "We regret that the men took precipitate action without consulting us. Unquestionably, if these authorized strikes keep up, discipline will be absolutely necessary."

George T. Christopher, vice-president of the Packard Motor Car Co., said 1000 die makers and 1500 other employes who were without work in other departments as a result of a strike in the plants would return to work Monday. John Anderson, organizer for the Committee for Industrial Organization, said terms of the truce provided wage increases of 3 to 27 cents an hour and negotiation of other demands.

Wage Increase in Wheel Plant.

Also was announced settlement of a four-day strike in the Budd Wheel Co. plant. The agreement affects more than 2600 employes, and provides an eight-hour day, a 40-hour week, with time and a half for overtime and double time for holiday work, abolition of piece work, a week's vacation with pay, a blanket wage increase of 3 cents an hour with minimum rates of 65 cents an hour for women and 75 cents for men, and accords the U. A. W. A. recognition as sole bargaining agent.

In Battle Creek, Mich., Mayor J. R. Hamilton conferred with four officers of the W. K. Kellogg Co., cereal manufacturer, and five representatives of the Council of Grain Processors, an American Federation of Labor union, following a strike vote in which the sealed ballots were as yet unopened.

Company executives declined to discuss a report that a part of their office staff had set up headquarters in a Chicago hotel and that the postoffice had been notified to deliver all the company's mail to that city. The union is seeking wage increases, a six-hour day and a closed shop within 15 days. A company spokesman said it would not consider the latter demand, but would discuss the other points.

Hoover in 1919 Proposed One-Man Dictatorship to Save Russia

Told Wilson No Government Could Be Established Without Economic Reorganization —Didn't Think Bolsheviks Would Last.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Confidential documents in the State Department files, made public yesterday, disclose that in 1919 Herbert Hoover proposed to President Wilson that a one-man "economic dictatorship" be set up to save Russia.

The proposal was made in a letter from Hoover, then Director General of Relief on the Supreme Economic Council, in Paris, to President Wilson, dated June 21, 1919.

State Department officials said they had no knowledge of its previous publication and included it in a volume of diplomatic correspondence concerning American relations with Russia in 1919.

Hoover predicted the eventual downfall of the Bolshevik Government, or its swing to the right, and declared no government in that vast disorganized country could become established without economic reorganization.

Proposed to Give One Man Power.

He also emphasized that it was vitally necessary to set up one country as the economic mandatory and give one man the power to administer the gigantic task of putting Russia back on its feet.

Hoover's letter said he wished to lay before President Wilson "what appears to me (after peace) the greatest outstanding situation in the world insistent for solution, and that is Russia." He emphasized that he did not wish to approach the possible solution "from any point of view other than purely its economic phases."

"Sooner or later," Hoover wrote, "the Bolshevik Government will fall of its own weight, or it will have swung sufficiently right to be absorbed in a properly representative government. Already about one-half of the area of the old Russian empire is under non-Bolshevik influence.

"No government of any character can stand in this country without an economic reorganization. Such reorganization primarily revolves on two positive factors, first, currency, and second, transportation.

"By and large there can be no hope of any form of stable government unless these two primary things can be solved. It is already the defeat of Bolshevism and will be the defeat of any government that takes its place.

"The re-establishment of currency, transportation, the stimulation of production, and the normal flow of distribution, is sheerly a matter of some sort of economic dictatorship, backed by sufficiently large financial and moral support of the allied governments. These appropriations would need to be expended fundamentally in commodities and railway rolling stock for import into Russia and for the establishment of a currency. I do not believe that the sum involved is extraordinarily large if such an economic dictatorship could have command of the resources already in Russia.

Time for Development.

"Furthermore, it appears to me that some such an economic commission, if placed upon an economic and not political basis, could, if conducted with wisdom, keep itself free from conflicting political currents and allow a rational development of self-government in Russia. I have no idea that such self-government can develop overnight in a nation totally inexperienced and without tradition, but there can be no foundation on which such government can emerge so long as populations are mad from starvation and unemployment and the lack of the very necessities of life.

"I wish to add one suggestion to you in organization of such a commission. It is utterly impossible that it could be organized on the basis of any inter-allied commission with all the conflicting financial and trade interest that lies therein. It is necessary to set up one government as the economic mandatory, with the support of the other governments, and to set up some one man as the head of the commission, who should choose his own staff for the great administration that will be involved.

"Such a staff could with judgment be composed of representatives of each nationality, but they must be definitely responsible to the head of such a commission and not independently responsible to different governments."

APPROVES CORONADO REORGANIZATION PLAN

U. S. Judge Moore Accepts Proposal Which Minority Group Opposed.

A reorganization plan for the Coronado Hotel was approved yesterday by United States District Judge George H. Moore, who ordered that all claims for fees and allowances in connection with the reorganization be filed within 90 days.

Under the plan, which was opposed by a minority group of bondholders, the holders of $2,145,000 in first mortgage bonds which have been in default since 1931 will get stock in a new company to be formed to hold title to the property. A loan of $325,000, secured by a new first mortgage, will be obtained from the R F C to pay delinquent taxes and reorganization expenses.

Bondholders will get 90 per cent of the new company's Class A stock, which will be the voting stock, and 80 per cent of the Class B stock. Ten per cent of the Class A stock will be reserved for allotment, under the terms of a management contract, to Preston Bradshaw, who owned the old company, and 20 per cent of the Class B stock will go to the general creditors of the old company.

The plan provides for a voting trust agreement for 10 years and a seven-year contract for Bradshaw's services as manager at $9000 a year. Objecting bondholders had contended that Bradshaw's equity had been wiped out and opposed provisions made for him in the reorganization plan.

Snead Lead

CRUICKSHANK RALLIES AND HAS 285 FOR FOUR ROUNDS

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., June 12.—"Slammin'" Sam Snead, West Virginia sensation, signalized his first bid for the U. S. open golf championship today by shooting successive rounds of 70 and 71 for the near-record total of 283. This displaced the 72-hole figure of 285, posted by Bobby Cruickshank, in the hottest fight ever waged for the crown.

The 24-year-old Snead, manifesting amazing poise and skill under his first championship fire, cracked par for the incoming nine of his fourth round to take possession of the lead.

Snead's title chances were fortified as Big Ed Dudley, Philadelphia, who had led Sam by only a shot at the turn, began to weaken. Dudley lost four shots to Snead on the tenth and eleventh.

Snead's total was only one stroke short of the championship record of 282, set at Baltusrol last year by Toni Manero. The West Virginian had successive rounds of 69, 73, 70 and 71. His aggregate was five under par for the route.

Hot on Snead's heels was Ralph Guldahl, Chicago pro who picked u pthree shots on Sam by going the turn in 33, three under par, with the aid of an eagle three on the eighth, and a deuce on the ninth.

Snead and Guldahl started the final round at 212 for 54 holes.

Guldahl, as a result of his dazzling spurt, needed only a 37, one over par for the last nine, to tie Snead. A par finish for the big Chicago pro would give him a 69 and and a new championship record of 281.

Al Heron, Reading, Pa., professional, was disqualified for reporting 25 minutes late for his third round in the U. S. open golf championship today.

The U. S. Golf Association announcement said Heron was barred for "having no adequate excuse." Heron explained he was unable to learn his starting time last night but didn't [illegible] the second round [illegible]. Heron barely qualified at 152.

COAST CONFERENCE TO HAVE A COMMISSIONER

LOS ANGELES, June 12. — The Pacific Coast Conference voted yesterday to hire a commissioner of athletics to investigate possible reports of subsidization of athletes.

Prof. Hugh C. Willett, conference president, said the commissioner would not be named until winter. The nominee will not be an "athletic czar," it was said..

Willett said the move was in line with a nation-wide program by the National Collegiate Athletic Association which seeks to "improve conditions under which college athletics are conducted."

By Robert Morrison.

NORMANDIE GOLF CLUB, June 12.—Sara Louise Guth, Algonquin's defending champion, and Mrs. R. I. Caughey, 1936 runner-up, Triple A., moved into the final of the Women's District golf tournament today. They advanced by identical scores, 5 and 4. Miss Guth eliminated Mrs. Harold H. Scott, Glen Echo, and Mrs. Caughey won from Mrs. J. L. Bauman, Algonquin.

It was the fourth straight year Miss Guth reached the district final. She won the title in the three previous years, beating Mrs. Caughey at Sunset last season, 6 and 4.

WELL REWARDED WINS PRINCESS PAT STAKES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 12.—Well Rewarded, entry of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago, won the $20,000 Princess Pat stake for two-year-old fillies at Washington Park this afternoon in a photographic finish with an outsider, Hermana. Inhale, heavily-played favorite, owned by John Hay Whitney of New York, was third.

It was the first running of the stake, which had a gross value of $20,310.

Mrs. Mars' filly won $14,560 or that sum as first prize.

PEPPER MARTIN HITS TWO DOUBLES; BROWN DRIVES IN ONE RUN

By J. Roy Stockton
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

BOSTON, June 12.—Lonnie Warneke, displaying some of the pitching skill that has won him a place among the National League leaders, scored his seventh victory of the season as the Cardinals defeated the Boston Bees here this afternoon.

The score was 4 to 1.

Warneke held the Bees to five scattered hits, two of which came in the eighth inning when Boston put across its only run. With one out, Lopez coaxed a walk, the only pass issued by Lon, and after a pinch batter for MacFayden had forced Lopez, Garms advanced him with an infield single. Then English, batting for Warstler, singled to right, scoring the only Boston run.

Warneke struck out five batters in pitching his best game of the season.

MacFayden, likewise, was in good form, but that big third inning ruined him. The Cards scored their fourth run in the seventh on Ogrodowski's second single and Pepper Martin's second double.

Warneke helped his game along by inserting a sacrifice to advance Ogrodowski in the third, and before the inning was over the Cards had three runs. Pepper Martin's double, Brown's triple and Padgett's long fly followed Warneke's sacrifice.

It was Ladies' day, but the customers apparently were saving their money for tomorrow's double-header, and the paid attendance was estimated at not more than 5000. About 2500 women attended.

Don Gutteridge was in uniform for the first time since he was spiked by Clay Bryant May 31, and went through a short workout, but Manager Frisch decided to give the wound more time to heal and Bordagaray continued at third base.

Parker, Moran and Magerkurth were the umpires.

The game:

THIRD—CARDINALS — Ogrodowski singled to center. Warneke sacrificed, Fletcher to Cuccinello. Pepper Martin doubled to center, scoring Ogrodowski. Brown tripled to right-center, scoring Pepper Martin. Padgett flied to Gene Moore, Brown scoring. Medwick walked. Mize flied to DiMaggio. THREE RUNS.

GARDEN OFFICIALS SEEK RE-ARGUMENT OF APPEAL CASE

CLUB PLANS TO SUE ALL THOSE CONNECTED WITH CHICAGO FIGHT

President Kilpatrick Thinks Judges Will Reverse Their Decision in Braddock Squabble.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 12.—It's a fight to the finish so far as Madison Garden is concerned and President John Reed Kilpatrick and his aids have indicated they'll try every blow in the legal book to hold James J. Braddock to his disregarded contract to defend the heavyweight championship against Max Schmeling.

After consulting the Garden's attorneys following the ruling handed down in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia which upheld the decision of Federal Judge Guy L. Fake of Newark in refusing an injunction to prevent the Braddock-Joe Louis fight at Chicago, Col. Kilpatrick yesterday revealed that two more moves are under consideration.

(1) The Garden is seeking a reargument of the appeal, and (2) regardless of the outcome of this move it intends to "sue all those, both in Chicago and in this city, who induced Braddock to disregard his promises."

Cannot Prevent Fight.

In view of the time it took to get this far with the involved legal dispute, it appears improbable that any steps can be taken in time to prevent the Braddock-Louis scrap at Chicago June 22. The time originally set for the Braddock-Schmeling affair, June 3, was past before it was decided the champion couldn't be compelled to go through with it.

Col. Kilpatrick said, however, that he expects the motion for a reargument to "come up for a hearing very shortly." His hopes for a reversal of the decision reached by Judges J. Whitaker Thompson and John Biggs, who overruled the dissenting opinion of Judge Joseph Buffington at Philadelphia, were based, he said, on the discovery by the Garden's attorneys that they apparently had "overlooked weighty legal authority and possibly have omitted consideration of certain pertinent facts."

Kilpatrick, in his first comment on the Philadelphia decision, placed considerable emphasis upon the remarks of Judges Thompson and Biggs that "we are forced reluctantly to the conclusion that no forcible negative covenant is now in effect," and the dissenting opinion of Judge Buffington, who said, "every element of equity and fair dealing" is with the Garden and that Braddock's "contract-breaking conduct is unjust."

Expects Them to Change.

"Even the other two judges, though they decided against the Garden, expressed themselves as being reluctantly forced to their conclusion because of what is apparently their interpretation of some involved legal point," his statement said. At a reeharing the "controlling authorities" and "omitted facts" will be brought to their attention, "and I confidently expect that this will be sufficient to have them change their minds."

Kilpatrick did not reveal any details of the proposed suits against promoters of the Chicago bout, but in Chicago Joe Foley, co-promoter with Mike Jacobs, was not worried about them.

"Naturally, the Garden is putting up a battle, but our contracts are all in order and our fight will go on, regardless," he said.

Hard Workouts Planned.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 12.—Unperturbed over the Madison Square Garden Corporation's intention of suing everyone involved, World Heavyweight Campion James J. Braddock and Challenger Joe Louis planned heavy training maneuvers today for their 15-round battle at Comiskey Park June 22.

Promoter Joe Foley said the Garden's latest maneuver in its legal battle, in which it lost the first two rounds, would make no difference as far as the Braddock-Louis bout is concerned, that "it would go on, just as planned."

The champion, who showed spirit and punching power in a brisk boxing drill at his Grand Beach (Mich.) camp yesterday, planned another stiff workout with the gloves today.

Louis was given a surprise 15-round boxing assignment against five sparring partners today, after resting yesterday. Trainer Jack Blackburn said John Roxborough and Julian Black, the Bomber's comanagers, had decided on the full-length drill to fortify Louis' stamina, and as a "test in case of emergency," then conceded the session was ordered because of Joe's failures at distance in his bouts with Schmeling and Bob Pastor.

PITCHER WITH THREE NO-HIT GAMES WILL JOIN THE SENATORS

RICHMOND, Va., June 12.—Newton "Bucky" Jacobs, the slim pitching ace who hurled three no-hit, norun games for the University of Richmond this spring, has signed a contract to join the Washington Senators this season.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Goose and the Golden Eggs.

FIFTEEN race tracks, all but one of them operating on the pari-mutuel betting plan, are laying golden eggs for the promoters today. If we figure an average daily mutuel handle of only $150,000, that means $2,250,000 in wagers are poured into the mutuel hoppers at the race tracks.

Of this sum the promoters will keep about $200,000 and it only takes a little multiplication to show that if there were 300 racing days a year the grand total handled would be around $675,000,000, of which the promoters' share would be $54,000,000.

The eggs are so large and so golden that more than one expensive racing plant is said to have been paid for completely by the profits of a single season. Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Florida and California get the cream of the profits.

On the Other Hand.

ON the other hand, there are localities where no golden eggs are laid. The promoters are having a hard time keeping the original nest egg. Due to bad management, failure to protect the public, damage done to track patronage by handbooks and in some cases, to outright crookedness, several race tracks have not kept out of the red, or have passed out of the picture.

Texas, for example, has just repealed its race track betting law, completely wiping out several heavy investments such as that at Arlington Downs. Apparently something was rotten in Denmark and Gov. Allred kept up the fight for months, finally getting repeal bills through both houses.

Texas promoters wanted to get rich too quickly and to do it they killed the goose that laid the golden eggs.

Washington Park Wobbly.

ANOTHER race track that appears to be starving in the midst of plenty is the fine plant of Washington Park, now suffering from too much handbooking in Chicago.

Owners of the New Orleans Fair Grounds track are trying to peddle that property; Fairmount race track has reverted to its original owners through failure to pay notes. Latonia is having a very jittery career and has cut its spring campaign, with a threat to abandon its fall campaign.

But, in the main, the race horse betting fever continues to rage throughout the country, paying fabulous profits in many centers, despite promotion efforts to cover them up.

The Mutuels Did It.

THE mutuel betting system is responsible for the magnificent race tracks constructed over night and their Arabian nights profits. In the major centers of racing prosperity, which include New England, Maryland, Florida and California, daily betting handles of from $300,000 up, with promotion "takes" netting as high as 10 per cent, furnish the bait for new adventures in horse racing.

New York, about the last stand of the bookmaking system of betting—in the long run the best for the wagering public—is now threatened with a change to mutuels. Easy collections and fabulous dividends have launched a legislative battle to bring the machine form of betting into the New York racing area.

Because a two-year referendum to the voters of the State is necessary, the change has been held up.

As Belmont Viewed It.

THE dangers of this situation were foreseen long ago by one of racing's strongest and most sportsmanlike supporters — the late August Belmont. In a letter written to Bert Collyer in February, 1923, Belmont said:

"To base judgment on the advantages of the pari-mutuel in Kentucky and possibly in Maryland, is not quite in order, but I do indorse your view as to New York racing.

"I have always been against having the pari-mutuel here for fear it would end in trouble by reason of the enormous revenue it would yield near such a large and rich city as New York has grown to be."

Mr. Belmont's judgment appears to have solid footing. If huge profits can be reaped in Los Angeles, Boston, Maryland and Florida, imagine what the harvest would be in New York.

The receipts from Metropolitan racing under the pari-mutuel plan would go far toward balancing the national budget, if the United States Government could cut itself in on the profits as the States do.

Hazardous Occupation.

ARE our athletes growing softer? Or is the brand of baseball played today growing harder? The number of accidents this year, already far ahead of the average for this time of year, is causing some wonder as to the reason.

The bean ball has been responsible for more than its usual quota of casualties, this season; but it does not account for the many others. Failure to put through the "dead" ball seems to have had a lot to do with the situation.

Notwithstanding legislation planning reducing the liveliness of the ball was passed at the winter meetings, manufacturing difficulties prevented the change from going into effect.

On the other hand, there have been complaints that the 1937 baseball is livelier than ever before and blame for the number of accidents has been laid at the door of a faster sphere.

"I blame the staggering number of accidents resulting from batted balls on the livelier baseball," said Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies, himself an injury victim. "I have seen balls hit to my infield that bounced like jackrabbits when they reached the shortstop and second baseman. The balls this season are actually alive."

However, it seems unlikely that the ball can have been made livelier because, if the manufacturers did not have facilities or time for deadening the 1937 baseball output, neither could they have had time to increase the liveliness of the ball.

Time Brings Changes.

TIME was when Jewish baseball players in the majors were rarer than diamond-studded hen's teeth. Baseball's personnel largely was made up from men of Irish and German extraction. Attempts of Jewish players to crash major league lineups encountered hostility from the players. Their jobs were made difficult. Many found the going too rough.

Today, several boys of Jewish origin are playing in Organized Baseball, and some have achieved great popularity.

One of the most promising of the new crop is Morris Arnovich of the Phillies, who came up from the Superior club of the Northern League three years ago. Arnovich is the first Jewish player the Phillies have had since Erskine Mayer, who helped pitch Pat Moran's Phils into an unlooked-for pennant in 1915.

Arnovich, an outfielder and a hard hitter, has a winter job. A Jewish boy, he is basketball coach in a Catholic high school!

PRAHA, June 12.—Rain forced postponement of the doubles match of the Czechoslovakian-Yugoslavian Davis Cup tennis series today.

The Czech pair of Roderich Menzel and Ladislaus Hecht was leading Ferenc Puncec and Josef Pallada, 2—6, 6—1, 6—0, 7—6, when a postponement was ordered until tomorrow.

The Czechs won both of Friday's opening singles matches and need only one more victory to clinch the series and a berth in the European zone finals against Germany.

SARA GUTH TO PLAY MRS. CAUGHEY FOR DISTRICT GOLF TITLE

women's par. Her greatest advantage during this stretch was three holes. She lost this margin after the fifth hole, but regained it at the turn. Thereafter she matched "perfect" figures to gain the victory.

Once Mrs. Caughey gained the upper hand, which wasn't until the ninth hole, she had little trouble in turning back Mrs. Bauman. One up at the turn, she won the tenth, eleventh, thirteenth and fourteenth holes to quickly eliminate the Algonquin woman.

Her scores failed to come near those made by Miss Guth in the other matches. She had a 48 for the first nine and was twice over par on the last five holes.

Miss Guth won the first two holes from Mrs. Scott, the second when the Glen Echo player put her second shot in a water-filled trap and took out with a penalty. An iron shot into a marshy spot at the right of the third hole caused Miss Guth to lose, but she regained her 2-up advantage on the fourth, Mrs. Scott conceding after being in the rough.

A par three on the fifth gave Miss Guth a three-hole advantage, then she slipped and lost two holes, badly messing up the 570-yard seventh when she went into two ditches en route. She returned to a 3-up lead by shooting the eighth and ninth in par and birdie four.

MISS STEPHENS EASILY ANNEXES 100-YARD DASH

FRANCIS FIELD, June 12. — Helen Stephens ran to an easy victory in the girls' open 100-yard dash here this afternoon in one of the feature events of the twenty-second annual Church track and field meet, defeating May Brady and Edna Gustafson, by five yards. Her time was 11 seconds flat.

The race was originally scheduled to be a handicap affair, but due to lack of sufficient data on which to handicap the runners, C. A. Neavles, official of the Ozark A. A. U., ruled that the race should be run from scratch.

Miss Gustafson, St. Louis, broke first, seemingly beating the gun. Miss Stephens quickly took first place and soon pulled away to a good lead. Miss Brady came from behind to take second by inches from Miss Gustafson.

Ed Waite, Washington University sprint champion, easily won the senior 100-yard dash in 10 seconds flat.

O. H. Duggan of St. John's Methodist came within two-tenths of a second of equaling the 220-yard low hurdle record in the opening event. Duggan, winning by 10 yards topped the lows in 25.4 seconds.

Brooklyn Gets Waite Hoyt From Pirates for Cash

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, June 12. — The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced the purchase of Waite Hoyt, veteran right-handed pitcher, from the Pittsburgh Pirates in a straight cash transaction.

Hoyt, once known as the "boy wonder" of the Yankees, has been in the majors since 1919, playing with the Red Sox, Yankees, Tigers, Athletics, Dodgers and Giants before going to the Pirates in 1933. He was given his unconditional release by the Dodgers June 7, 1932, and signed soon afterward by the Giants only to be released again before the start of the 1933 season. He will be 38 years of age in September.

With the Pirates he proved a consistent winner but has been used almost exclusively as a relief hurler this year. He won one and dropped two decisions.

Although the purchase price was not announced, it was believed to be for the waiver price of $7500. At the same time, Manager Burleigh Grimes of the Dodgers released Harry Eisenstat, young southpaw, to Louisville on option in order to make room for Hoyt on the roster.

The deal was the second made in two days by the Dodgers. Yesterday they obtained 35-year-old Fred Fitzsimmons and cash from the Giants for young Tom Baker, a right hander.

SPORT SALAD

A Moving Pitcher.

WES FERRELL of late has been moving around,
And many suspect that he's Hollywood bound;
When a star in the movies, Wes thought he would prove,
Said Manager Cronin, "I guess it's your move."
So Ferrell for Newsom to Washington went,
And Newsom for Ferrell to Boston
was sent;
But it looks as though Cronin and
Harris, by heck,
Were just simply swapping their pains in the neck.

On His Weigh.

The coming of Rick Ferrell to the Senators probably means the going of "Shanty" Hogan. "Shanty" was weighed in the balance and found wanting. Wanting to take off about 30 more pounds, but couldn't.

"Shanty," whose protracted battle with the butter fats has attracted widespread attention, is a good catcher, too. But the scales are against him.

John Henry Lewis could use some of that extra poundage that Hogan is toting around. The light-heavyweights rarely get in the big dough.

The scales, however, meant nothing to Bob Fitzsimmons, who fought and licked 'em all from middleweight up.

His near-namesake, Joe, might give him a little trouble, but John Henry wouldn't mind taking him on in case.

Russell Van Atta ran his winning streak to one straight Thursday and the Browns' to three. A pleasant time was had by all, including Buck Newsom and Ben Chapman, who witnessed the downfall of their former teammate from a box.

Incidentally Van Atta looked like manna from heaven to the Browns, starving in the midst of a pitcherless wilderness.

Now that the courts have made straight the way for the Braddock-Louis fight in Chicago on June 22, all they have to do is oil the hinges on that million-dollar gate that was showing signs of creaking.

Gene Sarazen has been quoted as saying that Sam Snead is not only the greatest golfer who ever lived, but that he is the only golfer he ever saw without even a minor defect. Praise from Sir Hubert sometimes sounds like boloney.

Looks like the only hope left to the Madison Square Garden is to get their case in the United States Supreme Court, where they might get a 9-0 verdict on a foul, like they do in baseball.

See where Jimmy Braddock again announces that he will knock out Joe Louis. If Jim keeps repeating that, he'll begin to believe it himself.

He may be right at that. In about 10 days we'll know for sure.

The Fairmount track has changed ownership but the name of the new owner hasn't been divulged. Probably some dark horse.

Speaking of dark horses, see where a daily double paid $2350.2 at Long Branch the other day. Indicating that Long Branch specializes in long shots.

ALICE MARBLE LOSES FOURTH FINAL ABROAD

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 12.—Alice Marble's bid for her first championship of the year failed again today when the American singles titleholder lost to Jadwiga Jedrzejowska of Poland 6—1, 9—11, 6—1, in the final of the Beckenham tennis tournament.

The defeat marked the fourth time in which the San Francisco star had failed in the final round of a tournament. She previously dropped a decision to the Polish champion in the St. George's Hill competition and fell before Anita Lizana of Chile and Freda James of England in the Middlesex and Surrey tourneys, respectively.

Porter Favored In Marathon; 75 Will Start

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Mel Porter, representing the Millrose Athletic Club of New York, was the favorite among 75 distance runners entered today in the National A. A. U. marathon championship.

The starting time for the race over more than 26 miles from historic Mount Vernon to the White House was 1 p. m. (St. Louis time).

Porter, recognized as one of the nation's best long-distance competitors, never has won the marathon. Two other Millrose athletes, Fred Ward and Bill Steiner, were expected to provide the strongest competition.

This trio won the team championship for Millrose last year.

Pat Dengis, a Baltimore mechanic who won two years ago, also was given an excellent chance of victory.

Clarence DeMar of Keene, N. H., who has won perhaps more marathons than any American, was seeking his first triumph here. Jose Rios of Perru represented South America.

Garment Union Representatives Get Out of Washington, Ind., On Advice of Sheriff.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Ind., June 12.—Three organizers for the Amalgamated Garment Makers' Union, a C I O affiliate, left Washington late yesterday on the advice of Chief of Police Harry Opell after a crowd of approximately 300 men and women gathered in front of their downtown hotel.

Police said the crowd included employes of the Reliance Manufacturing Co. here, who went to the hotel after holding a mass meeting at the factory and voted, leaders said, against joining the union. The organizers, Hugo Rasmussen, Frank Kwallek and Mrs. Otie Jenney, left the city in automobiles, escorted to the city limits by several automobiles containing members of the crowd. Two representatives of the Senate Civil Liberties Investigating Committee arrived earlier in the day.

PERRY, N. Y., June 12.—A truckload of farmers escorted three men described as C I O organizers from picket lines at the Perry Knitting Co. plant yesterday and ordered them to "get out of town and stay out." The farmers, armed with pitchforks and shovels, appeared at the plant, but after employes went to work without being molested by pickets, retired. The farmers were reported to fear that C I O activities might mean a strike in nearby packing plants.

TOM GIRDLER ASSAILS GUFFEY FOR STAND IN STEEL STRIKE

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., June 12.—Tom Girdler, Republic Steel Corporation chairman, asserted yesterday Senator Guffey (Dem.), Pennsylvania, "condones the reign of lawlessness" which Girdler said prevails in "many communities" affected by the widespread steel strike.

Guffey asked the Senate to investigate the conduct of Republic, Inland Stel Co. and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. in connection with the "holding and use of machine guns" and criticised the producers for not signing contracts demanded by the strikers.

"When Senator Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania rises in the Senate to attack the Republic Steel Corporation for not signing a contract with th C I O, he not only condones the reign of lawlessness now being carried on by the Lewis union in many communities throughout the country, but he brushes aside as of no consequence the many thousands of our employes who are opposed to such a contract." Girdler said 23,000 Republic employes who "did not heed the strike call" are at work, believing "as American citizens they were free to work if they so chose." Many additional thousands of employes desire to return to their jobs, Girdler said.

MURDERED RANCHER'S EMPLOYE RELEASED BY PROSECUTOR

Harold Bushong Freed in Killing of Palmer Gilliland; Two Others Still Held.

By the Associated Press.

GAINESVILLE, Mo., June 12.—General W. Rogers, prosecuting attorney, who filed first degree murder charges against three men Tuesday, withdrew the charge against Harold Bushong, 39-year-old employe of the murdered rancher, Palmer Gilliland, yesterday.

Rogers spent most of Thursday night at West Plains, questioning Buoy and Ralph Taylor, brothers, who are still held under murder charges.

Counsel was retained by the Taylors yesterday. At the request of their attorney, Prosecutor Rogers canceled plans to hold a preliminary hearing on June 19, and announced last night that instead they would be arraigned Monday, with date of hearing to be set at that time.

REORGANIZATION BILL MODIFIES ROOSEVELT PLAN

Robinson Measure Would Eliminate Placing of Independent Agencies Under Departments.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Confidential copies of the Government reorganization bill by Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, disclose that it proposes a number of major modifications in the program recommended by President Roosevelt.

The copies were distributed to members of the Senate Reorganization Committee. They show the bill would retain the major framework of the Roosevelt proposal, but would authorize only one new Government department, instead of the two suggested by the chief executive.

Furthermore, it would eliminate one of the most controversial items in the President's original program—the placing of present independent boards and agencies under executive departments.

Meets Some of Roosevelt Ideas.

The bill would carry out some of the President's ideas, however, in that it would:

1. Give the chief executive broad authority to shift or abolish Federal agencies.

2. Put the civil service under a single administrator, instead of a commission.

3. Abolish the general accounting office.

4. Give the President six executive assistants.

Republicans have served notice they will fight the broad general authority in the bill for the President to shift, or abolish, Federal agencies.

With certain exceptions, the measure would permit the President to transfer, reorganize, or abolish agencies, provided he gave Congress 60 days in which to veto his changes.

The exceptions would be that he could not abolish an executive department, or independent establishment, or the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve Board and could not transfer the functions of the forest service, the army engineers with regard to flood control, or the Mississippi River Commission. Neither could he create any new agencies.

Instead of having power to put independent establishments such as the Interstate Commerce Commission under regular departments, the President could only transfer their "routine administrative and executive functions which are common to other agencies"—such as preparation of estimates for appropriations and procurement of material.

Would Create New Department.

The bill would create a Department of Public Welfare headed by a Cabinet officer, and change the name of the Interior Department to the Department of Conservation.

It would not authorize the Public Works Department proposed by the President.

To replace the general accounting office, the bill would create a general auditing office. This would be "an agency of Congress, independent of the executive." The Auditor-General, appointed by the President for 15 years, would have authority to audit expenditures after they are made and report on them to Congress. He could not, however, rule on expenditures in advance. In the past the Comptroller-General has blocked many proposed outlays by administration officials.

The President would be empowered to increase the compensation of Government officials and employes by 25 per cent, except for many of those positions where Congress specifically has fixed the rates of pay.

HEINE BOILER CO. PLANT VOTE

Workers to Decide July 1 If C I O Union Represents Majority.

A plant election will be held July 1 at the Heine Boiler Co., 5319 Shreve avenue, to determine whether Lodge No. 1144, Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel & Tin Workers, affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization, represents a majority of the workers for collective bargaining.

The company consented to the vote, which will be supervised by the National Labor Relations Board. David Shaw, regional attorney for the board, said the firm agreed to withdraw recognition from a company union and would re-employ eight men alleged to have been discharged for union activity.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU—By BOB BURNS

THERE'S a lot of men travelin' around the country today givin' lectures to business men on how to run their business, but it would be surprisin' to know how few of them lecturers have got a business of their own. Most of 'em would starve to death if it wasn't for what they pick up lecturin'. A lady came through Van Buren one time lecturin' on "Economy in the Home." My stingy uncle, Uncle Skinny Flint, started courtin' her because he figgered if he got a woman that understood economy like that he could save money. At their first meal he pointed to the table and he said "You got twice as much food on the table as we can possibly eat." His wife says "Yes, I always do that so I can economize on the left-over dishes."

The Take-Out Double

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright, 1937.)

NOVICES are taught, and rightly taught, to hold the take-out double in the utmost respect. It has been found that beginners have a tendency to double for a take-out when they have "support for anything that partner can bid." As every good teacher gently but firmly points out this is putting the cart before the horse. The doubler's partner has not yet indicated that he has anything and therefore, there can be no question about supporting something that may not exist. Accordingly, minimum requirements have been established for the take-out doubles and the novice is impressed with the fact that he must have at least three honor tricks before using this effective but dangerous weapon.

As players become more experienced, however, they come to realize that the take-out double may be used flexibly instead of arbitrarily. This does not mean that they take any considerable liberties with the honor trick requirements. The flexibility to which I have referred comes from using a take-out double in lieu of dangerous overcalls. Let us consider a case in point.

♥ K Q 9 7 5 3
♣ A J 7 4

WEST
♠ K 7
♥ A J 10 6 4
♦ A 9 5

EAST
♠ 9 8 4 3
♥ None
♦ J 10 7 4 2

SOUTH
♠ A Q J 10 5
♦ K Q 6 3
♣ Q 5

This hand occurred in a match point duplicate game. At all tables South opened with one spade. Those West players who did not truly appreciate the effective range of take-out doubles stepped squarely into a bottomless pit by overcalling with two hearts. From that point on, whether or not East rescued, the carnage was terrific.

Two or three West players were shrewd enough and experienced enough to realize that they had a safer bid at their command than two hearts. Obviously, the hand was too good to pass over one spade, especially in a duplicate game. But also obviously, an overcall at the eight trick level with the suit ranking next to the opponents' spade suit, was highly dangerous. These few Wests solved the difficulty by doubling one spade for a take-out. It then was North and South who were under pressure. North correctly redoubled, but when East bid two diamonds, South was properly reluctant to double. The advantage of West's previous action now became apparent. He was not even tempted to show the heart suit since he had discovered that the opponents had most of the strength and his partner very little. North naturally could not double two diamonds and, in blissful ignorance of the heart situation, made the natural bid of two hearts. East passed and South rebid the spades. West remained discreetly silent and North took one more fling toward game by rebidding hearts.

At some tables South went on with spades. At others the contract remained three hearts. But, in either case, the results were eminently satisfactory to East and West. The object lesson, as I started out to say, is that a take-out double often is more conservative than an overcall.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Dealer opened the bidding with one no trump. Second hand passed. Third hand bid two spades. Fourth hand passed. What should dealer now bid with ♠ J 7 6 2 ♥ K Q 6 ♦ K J 10 ♣ A K 6?

Answer: Three spades.

Ice-Cold Food Bad for Dogs

By Albert Payson Terhune

PEOPLE seem to think dogs enjoy ice-cold food in red hot weather. Perhaps dogs do enjoy such a diet. But it is decidedly bad for them. Here is the idea:

In ancient days the wild dogs ate nothing that was chilled. The meat they crunched and the grass they chewed were of body heat or at least the heat of the surrounding atmosphere. The modern dog's stomach and digestive system are geared to the same temperature for food. So when you take bread or meat or cereal or other fare from the icebox on a hot day, and put it into his feeding dish, you are risking his health.

If you must give him food that has been kept in icebox or cellar, set it aside where the flies can't get at it and don't let him have it till it has had time to lose its chilliness.

True, a dog can drink cold water and he can lap up a plateful of ice cream with no injury to himself. But lapping is such a slow process that the liquid has a chance to grow warmer before it reaches his stomach. Whereas he gulps his food in big mouthfuls, and there is no time for the chill to be taken off it.

It is all a question of simple commonsense. But commonsense is applied far too seldom to the treatment of dogs.

"Life's Thrills Easily Found By Mankind"

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

"IF you have it in you to find life exciting," writes Upton Close, "you will keep interested if you have only a square foot of grass or the people in a cafeteria to study.

"If you haven't that divine gift you'll be bored to eath though you be a world traveler, a millionaire, a Cleopatra, or a Don Juan," he adds, writing as world wanderer.

Actually he seems to envy the stay-at-homes, the folk who feel that they are "stuck" in a small place and cannot get out. Provided, of course, that they have eyes to see what life is.

A world-traveler catches glimpses of many people; a stay-at-home sees people grow or decay from year to year. He sees more deeply into life. It is not just a swiftly moving picture.

Truly it is a Divine gift to see what is before our eyes and not just look at it. Some have that gift, others do not have it. It is the secret of finding the thrill in life.

Pearl Buck says that her father "never touched the fringe of human life, never knew its stuff, never felt its doubts or shared its pain. And so he lived, a happy soul, and never knew he died."

She calls him a Fighting Angel, but it is said that she first thought of calling him a Blind Angel; and that would have been truer to the fact. He passed through life without seeing it.

There are many such souls. Others see it dimly, at times and only in spots. No wonder they find it dull and unexciting. They look far off for what is nearby, and miss the thrill.

For one who has eyes to see, life is as deep, as full of mystery and excitement, in a village as in a city. Most great men have been small-town men, who saw greatness in humble scenes.

If we find life drab and dull it is because we have eyes but see not. When our eyes are opened, humanity is the greatest show on earth, not only for the cynic, but for one who loves it.

Modern Use of Refrigeration a Summer Boon

Frozen Fruits and Vegetables Are Healthful as Well as Delicious.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

NOT long ago I saw an old picture of a street in New York in 1895, in which was shown an ice wagon making its regular rounds. When the picture was published it was called "Summer Luxuries." Yet there is no one today in even moderate circumstances, who cannot have plenty of this luxury.

We naturally turn to cool things in the summer, and our enjoyment has been greatly enhanced by modern methods of refrigeration.

Egyptians knew that evaporation would cool liquids. Frescoes dating back to 2500 B. C. show slaves fanning jars with palm leaves for this purpose. Caves and primitive food cellars were used up until a short time ago. Home refrigeration is a comparatively recent development.

We naturally turn to fruits in the summer time, and the fresh frozen fruits and vegetables which can now be obtained in packages are delicious and healthful. The packer of fresh frozen fruits waits until the fruit, or vegetable, is dead ripe on the tree, vine or bush before picking it. At this point of growth, Nature has put the best of everything into it. It is then immediately frozen fresh, usually within a few minutes, by the modern quick-freezing method, which completely stops all further chemical and enzyme development. Thus we have retained all of the flavor, color, tenderness and health-giving values just as they were the moment it was hanging ripe on the tree or vine.

The shipper of fresh fruits must pick slightly on the green side and permit the fruits and vegetables to ripen in transit.

After being frozen these fruits can be shipped a long way without changing in quality whatever.

Fruits are desirable as summer food because they contain a large amount of sugar in a form that is easily absorbed, and because they furnish sufficient energy rapidly without necessarily heating the body. Their "specific heat" is not as high as protein, which is one of the reasons for their popularity.

Fruits contain fruit acids, but these immediately turn to alkaline salts in the body, and the effect of eating fruits is to make the body alkaline rather than acid.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

» by WYNN «

For Sunday, June 13.

KEEP the meeting social and on the trail of innocent pleasures; this is no day for wondering which side the balance will be on in business matters. Take a mental vacation, too, for at least this one day. Improve with family.

All But the Dust.

All the great thinking of the world has led to the same result: it has had to abandon the world as the source of life or any of its activities. Many sages have attacked the problems of cause and effect, working from effects backward through to causes and back to the causes of those causes—all to arrive at the same conclusion: all of man except the dust comes from elsewhere.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead may present problems of competition and responsibility in occupation, if this is your anniversary. Avoid emotional home decisions. Opportunity stronger from March 3. Danger: Sept. 3-Oct. 29; Jan. 15-Feb. 24; and from May 13.

For Monday, June 14.

THIS and next week (until Sunday the 27th) are rather quick on the tongue and trigger; get along with others, avoid law and disputes. Today; highly emotional; keep it on the happy side; avoid the doubtful element in all deals.

Our Sense Limitations.

What is a man? This is, a human being. Ignorant men of great learning have stated man to be a body which is animated in some mysterious manner — the learning of these men has not been in terms of actual thinking so much as in observation. And observation without thinking is always a liar. For we cannot see the real causes of anything with our observing sense perceptions.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead features changes in joint moneys, home, and friendships, which can be good. If born on this date therefore embrace new openings based on past experience. Danger: Sept. 4-Oct. 29; Jan. 15-Feb. 25; and from May 13.

Bathing Suit Days

By Gladys Glad

DOWN in the southern extremity of India, there is a Hindu nobleman who prefers for his meals such seemingly inedible odds and ends as nuts, bolts, screws, nails—and for a light lunch, carpet tacks. This gentleman, moreover, likes his meals served hot. And so he warms up his hardware diet with a blow torch. It's hardly a diet one would recommend to the average individual. And I don't imagine that even this Hindu lad overindulges at mealtimes.

There are many girls, however, who do gorge themselves at mealtimes. They thoughtlessly overindulge in foods that aren't conducive to health and figure loveliness, and when bathing suit days roll around, they get panicky because of the excess avoirdupois they have acquired.

The bathing suit days are nearly here, and the trickiest of the newest suits I've seen so far is a London creation that bids fair to become the outstanding vogue of the coming season. Made in gay daisy prints and lustrous Celanese, this new type of suit is processed with tiny lastex stitches in a shirred design which gives a kind of pebbly surface. And it is so pliable that one size will fit any figure from a 12 to a 20.

That doesn't mean that any girl is going to look good in any of the latest bathing togs, however, if she's supposed to be a size 14 and has gained enough poundage to make her look like a size 18 or 20. Even if your new two-way stretch suit will mold itself closely to your figure, if that figure of yours is flabby with fat you still don't have much chance of being the belle of the beach.

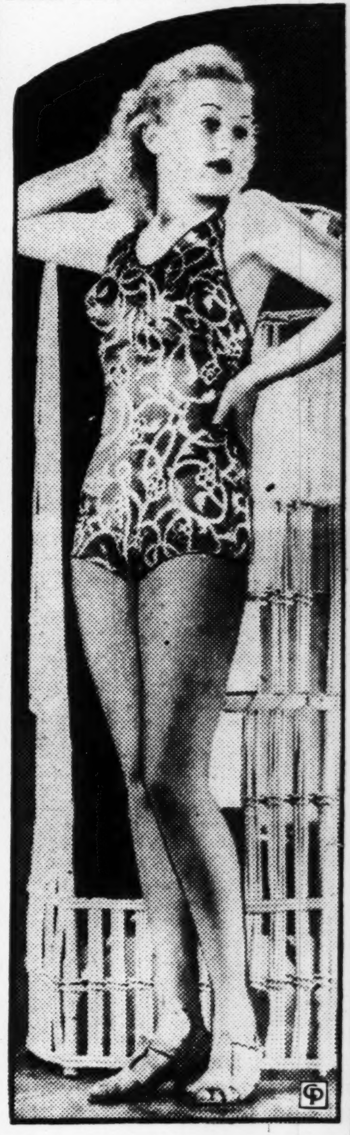
WHAT most women desire more than anything else, I think, is a slender, youthful figure. Fat not only detracts from the loveliness of a woman's appearance, but also tends to rob her of her youthful pep and vivacity. And if there's any one time when excess flesh becomes a discomfort and a burden, it's during the hot summer months that are rapidly approaching. It is a mystery to me how anyone can possibly prefer the discomforts that result from overweight during hot weather.

In the summer the body is satisfied with far less fuel than in the winter, you know. Rich, heavy dishes just naturally are supplanted by light salads, vegetables and fruits. And as a consequence, a well-planned reducing routine is very simple to follow, because the foods involved are the foods that comprise most ordinary summer dishes.

Food is required chiefly as fuel for the work of the body. Our bodies must do something with every morsel of food that we put into them. If we eat only enough to fulfill our bodily requirements, our weight remains normal. If we eat too much, the excess is stored away on the body as fat.

And if we reduce our intake, our bodies draw upon their fat reserve and our weight actually decreases.



BETTY GRABLE WEARS HER NEW SWIMMING SUIT.

Wild Life on the Lawn

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

WHEN America struggled for freedom all the furniture was inside the house.

One hundred years later they moved it out on the porch.

And today it's all on the lawn.

Take the Californian eight-cushion soft with convenient magazine rack and one hundred and forty-two ash-trays. It looks lovely on the terrace in the summer twilight when the shadows stretch themselves like cats on soft rugs. This sofa has a quart of whisky hidden in each leg.

The first furniture landed on lawns when early American families threw at each other. It looked so comfy they let it stay.

Then they added the English tea-table, which is free lunch on wheels under the magnolias.

The society photographers marched up six abreast and took pictures of the ladies in large hats and shoes, against a background of nasturtiums and anchovies.

The wooded estate with its rolling hills and trackless wastes presents an ideal background for a social concentration, for it is well known that society people go to a party just to get away from each other.

We'll all live on the lawn this summer because that is the coolest place in the house.

The only thing under a roof will be the car. This will fool the kitchen flies who will wait for us in the dining room.

The California outdoor furniture habit started when the folks grew tired of moving it back and forth when leasing the bungalow to Eastern guests. Now the host lives on the lawn and points out his own house to tourists with candid cameras and round-trip tickets.

The outdoor furniture is painted red and green. It always looked that color anyway when you wakened in the morning with a three-cornered headache and eyes that looked like hail-stones on a tin-roof.

Living outdoors is healthful even if you have to have outdoor furniture for the experiment.

Thumbnail Review of New Movies

By Colvin McPherson

SHOW BOAT—There never was an American operetta like "Show Boat" and this revival, with Irene Dunne, Allan Jones, Charles Winninger, Paul Robeson and Helen Morgan is surely the best version. Offered with "She Had to Eat," a double-bill inevitability, at the FOX.

PICK A STAR—Hal Roach comedy that doesn't pretend to be much, and isn't, but has a lot of laughs contributed by Jack Haley, Patsy Kelly, Laurel and Hardy, Mischa Auer and Lyda Roberti. "The Good Old Soak" uncorks some pre-repeal drama that tastes terrible. At LOEW'S.

THIS IS MY AFFAIR—Robert Taylor helps President McKinley with a little matter of state. And helps himself with Barbara Stanwyck. Continuing with the Jones Family's fifth, "Big Business," at the AMBASSADOR.

WINGS OVER HONOLULU—What an aviator's bride goes through, in the interest of his future and Uncle Sam's. Ray Milland as aviator, Wendy Barrie as bride. In "Night Key," Boris Karloff unlocks the city for burglars, then helps police catch 'em. Both films run until tomorrow night's summer closing, at the MISSOURI.

Morgan Twins Back From Abroad—Gloria Swanson's Perpetual Youth.

By Alice Hughes

(Copyright, 1937.)

NEW YORK, June 12.

EVERY season in this town has its compensations, which is, of course, the only reason we are able to exist at all without being carted off to the tannery or the loony-bin. Thus, even as the red-hot pavements of Fifth avenue blister our pinkies, the trans-Atlantic sailing furor leaps into high gear and furnishes us with many a pranksome hour.

Only the other day, with mercury flirting with 90 and up, the gallant Normandie came snouting up the Hudson with a wondrous cargo. The Glamorous Morgan twins, Gloria Vanderbilt and Lady Furness, came back from the coronation wearing their favorite black wool jacket costumes, complete with silver fox, and looking lovely as ever. Blonde Glenda Farrell represented Broadway, and so did the perennial Gloria Swanson, who positively gets younger by the clock. Gloria, showing that matchless dental display, received the press in a simple beige two-piece dress. Her hat was a natural straw fedora with a brown band. And she was in tip-top form, for years of experience and good horse-sense have taught her how to handle the prying Fourth Estate. The reporters down the bay all dote on her.

For instance, one news-sleuth nearly felled the rest of us by asking her age. But it didn't slow up Swanson, who promptly replied "Thirty-eight." This set the more catty of us to figuring. But she entered films at 15—which would be 23 years ago, according to her figures. I, for one, won't quarrel with the reckoning. She's too good a fellow—and what's a year or two between friends?

There's a rumor rushing around the heated city that sumptuous Mary Lewis, formerly a light of opera, is to divorce her millionaire spouse, Bob Hague, after six years together. Career-trouble is the story. It is said that Mary wants to emerge from her retirement and again trill in the spotlight, and is now in Oslo, Norway, brushing up on her Wagner. She sang a week at a local night club last winter—and it is said Mr. Hague didn't care much for the idea.

The stork was about to drop in at the home of Mrs. Sally Graham, of here, a few days ago, and it behooved her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Legault, to make a rapid move. So she dashed into the street and pulled the lever of the nearest box she found—which brought fire engines, a carload of cops and a gas emergency squad, but no doctor. A lenient Judge promptly forgave Mrs. League for this breach of the peace—and later a seven-pound daughter arrived at the Graham home.

Speaking of youngsters, a local constable picked up a vagrant the other day and brought him to the station house. The hobo was two years old, and, like the movie gangsters, wouldn't talk. Finally, cajoled with warm milk, he announced that his name was Mickey Mouse, and that his father's name was Mickey Mouse. And not another word would he give out until his distracted father rushed in and claimed him. Neither, it developed, was Mickey Mouse.

Delmonico Roast

Another delicious dish where there can be economy in the meat purchase. Buy one pound round steak and one-half pound lean pork and have it ground twice. Mix with the meat one chopped onion, one minced pepper and season with one-half teaspoon sugar, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon each pepper and paprika. Add one cup crumbled breadcrumbs and one well-beaten egg and shape into a loaf. Dredge over the top a mixture of one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons flour and one-half teaspoon sugar. Place in a baking pan and cook in a hot oven for 15 minutes without any liquid, then pour around the meat two cups tomato pulp, one finely minced onion and one bay leaf and continue cooking from 30 to 40 minutes longer. Serve on a platter with the gravy strained into a gravy boat and served separately.

Maple Cake

Cream well one cup of shortening with one cup of granulated sugar and one cup of maple sugar. If the latter is soft, all right; if hard, it must be grated. Pack it firmly into the cup so you will get a cupful. Sift three cups of cake flour with three teaspoons of baking powder. Add to the mixture alternately with one cup of milk. Beat stiff but not dry the whites of six eggs with a little salt added before beating. Fold into the cake mixture. Bake in oven at 375 degrees. This makes three layers. Put the layers together with maple-fudge frosting, and frost top and sides with the same. Decorate with nut meats.

Serve a bowl of grated cheese with the dish of stewed tomatoes for a change, each person adding a sprinkling after being served.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

My dear Mrs. Carr:

MOTHER and Dad think I am still a very small child and too young to wear makeup. Now, Mrs. Carr, I am 14 years old. To me, this seems old enough to wear just the least bit of rouge and lipstick. My parents have said that if I obtain your approval, I may have them. Please put this in your column so that girls my age may have this problem solved.

ANXIOUS.

I really think your mother and father are the ones to decide this matter. I feel that it places a good deal of responsibility upon my shoulders. You know they probably feel as I do, that it is a pity to begin using cosmetics so young, if you want your young skin to remain fresh and to maintain the real tints of youth. Unless you are a little sallow or undernourished looking, you should postpone the use of it.

There is no doubt that girls now begin this very young, not realizing that the best of cosmetics are not any too good for the skin. As a matter of protection in sun and wind, a little cold cream at night carefully washed off in the morning, giving the skin a good chance to breathe naturally, is not a bad idea. If you really need a little color, because you are a trifle sickly looking (because of unnatural color), then use just the barest smudge of rouge and lipstick. The trouble with those so young is that, once beginning it, they overdo the matter and make themselves look too sophisticated and old; or appear like a crude magazine cover.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

THANKS so much for your letter to "Animal Lover." I see that you are on our side. Your column is certainly a most popular one and an excellent feature for the paper. Please continue to say a good word in the future for poor kitty, all animals and our Humane Society.

You have no idea some of the conditions our society is forced to face. As you write: "It is certainly an uphill game to deal with some of the situations confronting us, brought about by ignorance, hate and idiotic phobias. God bless you.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

MAY I answer the question of "Hick From the Sticks?" I happen to be a native of Indiana and would like to give the origin of the word "Hoosier." Early Indiana history finds a reason for this word. When the early settlers arrived along the Ohio River, the place was more or less wild and so the custom was to ask who was at the door before opening it. They inquired "Who's here?" This merged into "Hoosier."

I have never heard of the residents of other states being referred to as Hoosiers; generally these Western pioneers were called "hillbillies." One does not necessarily have to live in the country to be called a "Hoosier."

JUST ANOTHER ONE.

I can send you names of books of this kind, if you will send me self-addressed, stamped envelope or you can write Angelo Patri, in care of this paper, for suggestions of books. You, also, will get suggestions at the children's department of the Main Library, Thirteenth and Olive streets.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE written to you before with splendid results. Now I am wondering if you could help me again through your column. I write lyrics for fun and I would so love to get in touch with someone who would write music to go with them. I have tried in various ways to get in touch with such a person or firm and have been "bitten" by many a song shark. I would like to hear from anyone who has had success along this line. Surely there must be someone "within the sound of my voice," who would like a try at making songs of my lyrics.

AMATEUR SONG WRITER.

I should think you might, when advertising in the want ads of the newspapers find someone who would be dependable; stating, of course, that they must furnish best references. I can send you the names of one or two firms who occasionally take amateur work of this kind and have it set to music. If you care for these send me self-addressed, stamped envelope. I am doing this only because you live out of the reach of these places in the country.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

MUNY OPERA'S NEW BASSO

John Gurney, Here for Four Productions, Decided on Singing Career While at Harvard Business School.

By Martha Jackson

JOHN GURNEY, METROPOLITAN OPERA BASSO, WHO MAKES HIS INITIAL APPEARANCE HERE NEXT WEEK IN THE "FORTUNE TELLER."

BUT for the timely advice of the director of the Harvard Glee Club, John Gurney, Municipal Opera's basso-baritone catch from the Metropolitan, would have followed in his father's successful footsteps to become president of a ball-bearing manufacturing company. Instead, on the strength of that encouragement, Gurney turned his back on the comforts of a berth in the family business to find his own way in the cold-cold musical world. Not a bad choice for a beginner, when you consider that it led him, discounting the lean years, straight to New York's Metropolitan—ambitious goal of all young singers.

On vacation from the Met, Gurney will sing leading roles in four productions here this summer—the Fortune Teller, Music in the Air, the Bartered Bride and Robin Hood. He was rehearsing for the first of these, the Fortune Teller, when we talked to him at Forest Park this week.

Incongruously conventional looking in his double-breasted brown business suit, against the bird-of-Paradise effect created by the gaudy coats and colorful slacks of the rest of the men, Gurney was obviously not the usual theatrical personality.

Better than that, he turned out to be a very nice person. He's simply a good-looking, well-bred young man who made his college athletic teams, toured with the glee club, and grew up to marry his promdays sweetheart. He fails entirely to remind you of his good notices. Self-depreciating to a fault, he is, in short, the kind of well set-up young man you'd want your Cousin Sam to know at Harvard.

That's the way he impressed us, as he outlined his story in answer to our questions. "No," he shook his head and smiled, "I don't suppose I'd ever had the nerve to go into music as a career if it hadn't been for Dr. Archibald Davidson at Harvard. Of course, music had always been a great natural interest with me, but I'd always thought I'd go into father's business after I finished school. Why, I majored in physics (remember the ball bearings!) at my college, Oberlin, and went on to the Harvard Business School for post-graduate work with every intenton of making good on my business training."

"But when the Glee Club director, Dr. Davidson, insisted that it was a 'shame' "—here he laughed apologetically for digging up this flattering comment on his voice—"that I didn't intend going on with my music, I began thinking seriously on the subject. So seriously indeed, that when I finished my year at Harvard, I told my father that the business career was out. I wanted to sing. Of course, he ridiculed the idea, but finally consented to send me to France to study for just one year. It was his idea that my teachers would show me the futility of continued study, that I would come back then to the ball-bearing plant and go to work. Retaining my music, of course, for an avocation."

A nice solution, and everybody happy, only it didn't work out that way. At the end of his probationary year, Gurney came back to the United States, but not to go on out to Jamestown, N. Y., and his desk in the business. He had an engagement with the old American Opera Company. Father still thought this singing a temporary whim, but by now he knows better. From that day to this, and it's been over 10 years, son John has made his living by the grace of his vocal chords. Father, as is usual in such cases, is boastfully proud of him.

That engagement with the American Opera Company, opening in Chicago and touring the East, South and New England, for which Gurney had to learn all the Italian and French roles in English, he considers a lucky beginning. For soon thereafter came the depression and (reluctantly this came out), the impetus of this successful tour recommended him to agents and helped secure badly-needed jobs.

Scarce as jobs were for singers during that time, Gurney managed to pay his way with any odd engagement that came along. He sang in quartets, he sang in churches. He filled stray concert assignments and, strangely enough, landed in Ziegfeld's next to last Follies. He had one spot and he sang some Scotch number in a kilt and all the trappings. That's about all he remembers of this experience, aside from the fact that it was fun.

After the Follies closed, he took on an engagement that he remembers only too well—that of the baritone at Roxy's Theater. "I sang four shows every day and five on Saturdays and Sundays. Boy, if you don't think that was work!" he exclaimed with a wry twist of the lips. This job lasted a year.

For four years following, he was in concert, singing to women's clubs ("bless them for wanting to hear bassos—depression or no depression"), civic clubs, state colleges, community concerts and high schools. Everywhere he observed these two things: That the so-called "good things," opera especially, were better received than the "program pieces" the average concert audience is supposed to enjoy best; and that high school students are invariably good audiences, in fact, he laughed, "they'll mob any singer they enjoy for autographs. Which is very pleasant for the unestablished singer!"

Two years ago, he had the unusual experience of singing with the Russian Opera Company, an all-Russian unit in New York that gives nothing but the works of Russian composers, and the opportunity to sing, in Russian, his favorite role—"Boris," in Boris Goudenouv. And from there, last spring, to the Met.

Since Chaliapin, the great Russian basso, is always associated with the role of Boris, Gurney was reminded to tell us of his great admiration for the man. He told of first hearing the Russian when in college at Oberlin, and how he secretly thought then how wonderful must be the life of a singer. "I believe I even was silly enough to think I could do as well myself —then! A green college kid!"

Although he has never met his hero, Gurney got uncomfortably close to him one night. It was when he was first in New York. Chaliapin was singing in concert, and the Gurney seat was, by necessity of finances, far-removed from the stage. Gurney noticed, however, a vacant seat in the stage-tiers and made up his mind to occupy it himself after the first group of songs were over. Acting on that idea, he sneaked downstairs, stood in the wings while Chaliapin was taking his bow, and walked out immediately after Chaliapin came back stage. "The crowd," he recalled with a twinkle, "thinking I was Chaliapin coming out for an encore, began to clap loudly, but stopped when the mistake was evident. Seeing my confusion, however, the whole audience was in an uproar of laughter and started the applause anew until I had to take a bow myself! One of youth's most miserable moments, as you can imagine!"

Asked if he and the whole family (there's the college sweetheart life, a boy of six and a girl, aged two) weren't in a veritable dither while waiting for the outcome of his Metropolitan audition last spring (it took three days), he shook his head and said, "No, for after you've had as many auditions as I've had, you learn to sing 'em and forget 'em. Ninety-nine out of a hundred you never hear from again anyway."

He did admit to a bit of celebration the night the news came through, and to a pride of achievement in having become a member of the Metropolitan group.

"Of course I hope to be there from now on. The magic of the name, the prestige that comes automatically with a singer's association with the Met, is something to live up to. As your roles grow larger there, you can, practically speaking, command larger fees in other fields. And a Metropolitan singer needs other fields—like the radio, movies and concert—for the season lasts only 16 out of the 52 weeks in the year."

It's that same practical reason that's brought him to St. Louis, for he will candidly tell you that, aside from the valuable and unique experience St. Louis offers, it's a favorite hunting ground for New York and Hollywood scouts. Which is reason enough for any ambitious young basso to grab up the chance to sing here, despite the melting heat that usually characterizes the Forest Park summer.

Gurney thinks this is his second trip to St. Louis. Vaguely he remembers from his dim college days singing here with the Oberlin College Glee Club. That, you may be sure, was a much-feted event.

Gurney is, thankfully, a hardworking young man, with New York radio, church and concert engagements to keep any extra hours filled. In fact, he's been so busy ever since that one year in Paris that he has no time for "favorite sports"—unless you'd count as such his fancy lawn-tending duties at his Long Island home. But he's still glad he chose the musical career over the business one, even though it didn't turn into the "wonderful life" he boyishly thought it surely must be. Like most singers, he's still studying (under Mme. Marie Gay, who trained and introduced Lily Pons, Nino Martini and Bruno Cagtagni) and rather plans to be a "music student" the rest of his life.

Gurney has occasion to remember the Middle West, and especially Lincoln, Neb., for it was there he finally located his most valuable warm-weather concert-prop — the rubber collar. Several years ago he was singing July and August concerts up and down the Corn Belt, and crumpling three to four shirts and collars each concert. Recalling from way back some reference to a rubber collar, he began inquiring around as to whether the species had become extinct. It seems that in Lincoln it still thrived, so Gurney bought himself a supply, used these nice shiny new-looking rubber collars to create the impression of the well dressed young man withstanding the heat and the effort of singing. In case anyone cares, that Lincoln haberdashery still keeps Gurney in rubber collars when the occasion to use one arises.

Still quite new to art as it is practiced at Forest Park, Gurney is eager to get into the swing of things. And his first effort in that direction, we state purely on suspicion, will be to discard the conventional brown suit for one of those country-gentlemen slacks-and-shirt outfits the other boys wear.

Glass Coffee Bottles

The gay glass coffee bottles are particularly nice when breakfast is served in bed. The coffee stays hot en route and there is no danger of spilling. They are also nice when serving after-dinner coffee in the living-room or extra coffee may be poured into them and the bottle placed on the dining-room table for those caring for a second cup.

Woman's Changing of Her Name—Table Service at Dinner Party.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

AT ONE time it was said that when a woman married she changed her name. Today it seems that most women simply add a name to their own maiden name. Is it really best form not to change the name as was once the custom?

Answer: Woman has never done anything else since man has had a last name to give her. When a woman whose maiden name was Mary Maude Sinclair Smith marries John Jones, her legal name becomes Mary Smith Jones. Socially she may call herself whichever combination of her former names she chooses to prefix to her new name Jones. She can keep them all or drop all except Mary and be simple Mary Jones. For that matter, if she is usually called Maude, she can drop Mary and take the name Maude instead. In other words, she can become Maude Sinclair Jones, or Maude Smith Jones just as well as Mary Jones.

Dear Mrs. Post: In a newspaper account of a party given for a new daughter-in-law, should she be referred to as a daughter or as a daughter-in-law? I notice that one paper says one thing and another paper says the other.

Answer: It is quite possible that the reporter heard the daughter-in-law call her mother-in-law "mother," or perhaps heard the mother-in-law speak of her son's wife as "my daughter." Either of these practices, which are not at all unusual (or wrong), do lead to a great deal of confusion.

Dear Mrs. Post: We are three women living alone, I being very much younger than the other two. Usually I carve and do the serving at the table since we have no maid. When we have men guests at our table do you think it would make them feel more comfortable if I asked one of them to do the carving and have the roast put in front of him instead of in front of me?

Answer: It is much better that you continue to do the carving and serving, unless your visitor is one who comes often and has plainly shown that he prefers to carve.

Dear Mrs. Post: My maid's telephone voice apparently sounds like mine and all my friends are becoming annnoyed because they ever can tell the difference. With a reason like this, would you say that I should instruct her to answer, "This is Mrs. Brown's residence"? I know you have said that this form is ordinarily more suggestive of a business office than of a private house.

Answer: My only objection is to the word residence. You could have her say, "This is Mrs. Brown's house," certainly.

Living Room Based On Unusual Colors

By Elizabeth Boykin

"YOU'LL fall off the Christmas tree when I tell you the color of my new living room," announced Phylis, a good friend whom we don't see often but always enjoy thoroughly. "It's sky blue pink, nothing more or less:

"It was unintentional but it's turned out to be quite grand. You see I had my living room walls painted in very pale off pink, which I adore. I wanted my glass curtains to be just the same color only a tiny shade deeper, but naturally I couldn't buy ninon exactly the right tone. When I started in to tint them myself, I found that my walls had a violet cast if you put pure pink alongside of them. So I added sky blue dye to pink in order to get just the right tone. Now they're simply lovely. But if that's not sky blue pink I don't know what you'd call it.

"I made them criss-crossed but rather severe looking and pulled back in a tailored fashion quite high and caught with very nice gold tie-backs. I blew myself to these as I wasn't having draperies. And I've bought a light beige rug, one of those unusual weaves. Beige doesn't sound so practical, but our living room doesn't get such hard use so I thought the rug would just look beiger and beiger as it gets dirty. Then later when I get tired of it, or the cleaning bills on it, I can have it dyed. In the meantime I think it's the smartest thing in town. . . . I've used a brilliant shade of turquoise for several pieces of furniture, then a turquoise painted ceiling. The rest of the furniture is slip covered in a twill sort of cotton fabric with a pale beige ground and shades of dusty pinky purples in the pattern. The effect of the whole room is powdery and really smart, I think. I've two rather dramatic paintings and a tall gold papered screen to introduce contrast against the walls. Gold brackets to hold some figurines, a turquoise tea set and silver bowls to hold flowers in pinky purples (like petunias!) are the accessories that accent the room. I'm adding new furniture piece by piece. Eventually I hope to have most everything in Queene Anne walnut.

Advice for Mothers

By Marjorie Hillis

Author of "Live Alone and Like It"

THE other day, I came on this sentence in a book I was reading: "She had got so used to being called the plain one of the family that she had given up taking pains about her appearance." It reminded me of a conversation I had heard in another city.

"Jane wears the most awful clothes," one woman said. "She laughs about it herself. She says she might as well—when she does get all fixed up for a party and comes downstairs, her mother says, "Jane, your hair is a sight and your slip shows, and I don't know why in the world you ever bought that dress. It doesn't suit your type." Her mother is probably right, Jane says, but she goes to the party feeling like a pricked balloon, and gets about as much attention."

"It wouldn't be so bad if she didn't live opposite the Joneses," another woman explained to me. "The Jones girls are beauties, and when they come downstairs dressed for the same party, their mother says, 'Darlings, you look perfectly lovely! Your dresses are too sweet. There won't be any other girls half as pretty as you two at the dance tonight.' I know because I've heard her—and they go to the party sure they're going to have a marvelous time, and they do! It's too bad Jane can't borrow Mrs. Jones as a mother for a season or two."

I think a lot of girls are less attractive than they need to be because their families rub in their faults instead of stressing their good points. The plump girl is pt to be told she's too fat by brothers and parents till she thinks that's all anyone notices about her, anyway, and there's no use struggling. She's usually sensitive about it to start with and hates having it mentioned. If she were just told that her face is pretty and her hair is lovely and, incidentally, she'd be still prettier if she took off just a little weight, the chances are that she'd be careful of her diet, as well as not developing an inferiority complex that can do a lot of harm.

The same principle works with most girls who don't have good complexions, but do have good features, perhaps; or with girls who stoop because they are conscious of being tall, but have nice, slim figures; or those who have some other fault, as well as some good points. The faults can be picked on with disastrous results, through the best of intentions—and often are. The girls would work much harder to overcome them if they thought they were merely flaws in an otherwise promising appearance—and they'd suffer a lot less, too.

Praise often accomplishes miracles where criticism doesn't have any effect at all, except an unintended one. And there's too little praise in a great many families. Apple-sauce is as nourishing at home as anywhere else.

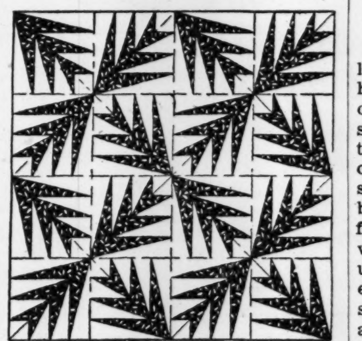
Palm Quilt



PALM PATTERN 1370

PALMS! What stateliness they call to mind, and what a beautiful quilt they've inspired! Loveliest in green against a light ground, other colors would also be effective. Mainly triangles, the simple patches join to form a 7½-inch block, one you'll find amazingly easy to piece. Pattern 1370 contains complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

Thick sandwich fillings, such as cheese, may be mixed with soft butter. Only one "spreading" is then necessary for the sandwiches.

Consideration Of Children's Summer Dress

"Good Manners and Good Taste Are More Important Than Physical Comfort."

By Angelo Patri

THE warm days make clothes an irritation. The children beg for relief. They want to wear shorts, bathing suits and whatever other abbreviations of costume the law and regulation allow. Mothers are torn between their dread of neighborly criticism and the children's demands. How little can the children wear and still stay within the safety margin of public approval?

The stay-at-home children have the best of it. They can shed most of their garments and enjoy the freedom of movement and the coolness that results. The baby can be stripped and laid on his bed to exercise his body and enjoy the feel of the air flowing over it. It is the older children that get into trouble with hot-weather garments and society's opinions about them.

Good manners and good taste are restrictions on desires and feelings that we could ill-afford to be without. We can live in community groups only when we observe that decent regard for the rights and opinions of others which we have ascribed to in our national code. The children have to learn to limit their wants and wishes accordingly lest they be visited by unexpected punishment.

Shorts are not the costume for young girls attending school. Of course girls have the right to wear them. Equally, of course, mothers or half-grown boys have the right to object to their wearing them in classrooms where their boys are. The question is not one of Rights so much as it is one of manners and good taste. The price for wearing such a costume, for insisting upon the right to wear it in formal gatherings, such as school and church, costs too much. It is better to wear a cool summer costume acceptable to the formal standards of school or church and keep the shorts for recreation time.

THE same thing holds for the half-grown boys who show a preference for gym shirts, bathing suits that consist of brief trunks, on occasions that call for neither gymnastics nor bathing. Good taste selects the fitting costume for the occasion. When boys and girls of later adolescence insist upon wearing informal dress on formal occasions one suspects that it is not just a matter of the temperature.

During the warm months young people who go to beach parties ought to be careful not to offend the niceties of good manners. It is most annoying to a hostess of advanced age to face a tableful of undressed young people when the setting is formal as a dining room service can make it. Picnics on the beach are one thing and dining room service is quite another, and good manners call for strict observation of the difference.

Young people must remember the feelings of the older people about them and not offend them by under-dressing even in warm weather. It is possible to be cool and still be good-mannered. Good manners, another term for common decency, are more important to young people than their physical comfort for the few hours of social obligation.

Angelo Patri has prepared a leaflet entitled, "A Parent's Prayer," which is an inspiring example for parents to follow in bringing up children. It is suitable for framing. Send for it, addressing your request to Mr. Angelo Patri, Child Psychology Department of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

Chocolate Mousse

Always a welcome dish on any luncheon or dinner menu. Add one-half cup powdered sugar to two ounces melted chocolate and then stir in slowly one cup cream. Bring to a boil in a double boiler, stirring constantly. Then add one tablespoon gelatine dissolved in three tablespoons boiling water, three-fourths cup sugar and one teaspoon vanilla. Strain into a bowl and stir until the mixture cools and thickens. Then fold in one quart of stiffly whipped cream. Pour into a mold and pack in ice and salt for three to four hours before serving. The housewife with electric refrigeration will freeze this dessert right in her unit.

Corn Pudding

Two tablespoons butter; two tablespoons chopped green pepper; one tablespoon chopped celery; one small onion, chopped; two cups milk; one can corn; one chopped pimiento; one and one-fourth teaspoons salt; one-eighth teaspoon pepper and three eggs, beaten. Melt the butter in a saucepan. Add the green peppers, celery and onion and cook slowly for five minutes. Then add the remaining ingredients, turn into a well-greased baking dish. Set in a pan of hot water and bake in a slow oven for one hour or until a silver knife inserted into the center of the mixture comes out clean. Serves six to eight.

A knife sharpener is as essential a piece of household equipment as the coffee pot. Not even an expert carver is able to do much with a dull knife.

COOK COOS

By Ted Cook

News item from Washington says—

"Instead of a bean soup ration, American soldiers are eating food prepared by well-trained cooks who must all go through a strict training. A typical noon meal in the army consists of roast chicken with dressing (fresh beef or pork), mashed potatoes, canned peas, cucumber and onion salad, vanilla ice cream, white bread, raspberry jam and lemonade."

What! No chocolate eclair?

Judging from the propaganda in England and America, army life is just one continuous round of delightful dalliance. It will probably end with boys wearing berets and knickers, and carrying feather ticklers.

Academic authorities are already disagreeing concerning the genesis of the sit-down strike. Some say it stems from the labor travail in Milan which turned Italy toward Fascism. Others write thousands of words to build up the contention that sit-down strikes are a very recent innovation from France.

"All such talk," says Magnus B. Bottlcap, 'is so much bilge. Why it is that scholars can't see beyond their noses is what gives me a constant rheumatism between the shoulders and my receding chin. The sit-down strike started innocently enough in motion-picture theaters. Millions and millions of husbands began sitting through double features. They'd go into a theater and by the time they got out they were so tired, weak and hungry that they didn't have pep enough to work next day at the factory. Besides, they had only a few minutes' sleep between the time the show was over and the time the alarm clock sounded. Nobody asked me, but I'm telling everybody —the blame for sit-downs should be placed squarely where it belongs —on the frail shoulders of the motion-picture exhibitors of America."

Hartley Buys Carol's Prize Horse — She Quarrels With Duke Who Finally Agrees to Accept Her Bets.

CHATER SIX.

DUKE was inwardly cursing himself for trying to dissuade Carol. He should have known that every word he said had increased her determination. If she wouldn't listen to Grandfather Clayton, whom she loved, why should she be influenced by him?

His thoughts were not pleasant. He didn't like to think of Grandfather Clayton's sorrow, when Moon Ray was put up for sale. He was thinking that he could cheerfully wring the neck of the beautiful, imperious Carol. Then the auctioneer began his description of Moon Ray and the thrill he always felt when he saw a beautiful horse, ran through him. On the race track, on the auction block, running around a meadow, was there anything, in a world of imperfections, so near perfection as a thoroughbred?

SYNOPSIS

After two years in London Carol Clayton returns to the Brookdale horse-breeding farm in Saratoga that has been the home of the Claytons for three generations. With her, is her fiance, young and wealthy Hartley Madison. On her first day back, her father, Jim Clayton, dies. Duke Bradley, a bookmaker, and Jim's friend, holds a mortgage on Brookdale, in lieu of her father's $76,000 debt to him. Carol, resenting Duke since their first meeting, asks him to wait until she is married so she can pay him. She is infuriated when he accuses her of marrying for money and decides to postpone her wedding until she can pay him, herself. That very evening she brings in Moon Ray, her grandfather's last colt, to be auctioned off. She wants the money as a stake so that she can run it up to the required $76,000.

The auctioneer was a good showman and the crowd which had turned out that night, sensed something dramatic in this, the last sale of the evening. Why Carol Clayton was putting up the pride of Brookdale they did not know. The fact that she did was exciting.

When the bidding opened with one thousand dollars, the auctioneer acted as if he were going to faint. Such an offer for such a horse!

"May I ask you," he said in a pleading voice, "not to waste our time with such bids? It is an insult to this beautiful young woman. It is also an insult to all of horsedom."

"Two — three — four —"

"Five thousand dollars," came a call.

Carol and Duke caught their breaths.

"Hartley," she said. "And his mother! They must have flown over. Oh, they shouldn't have come."

"Six thousand," cried Duke, and then to Carol: "Why begrudge them this? The rich have so little."

"Stop bidding," she commanded.

"Seven thousand," came Hartley's offer.

"Seven thousand, five hundred," cried Duke.

"Eight thousand," called Hartley.

"Stop this," Carol said to Duke. "Bookmakers don't own horses."

"But rich men can. Ah, be a sport, let Hartley have something. Of course, he may find himself owner of a racing filly and a wife who won't let him bet. Such a weird thing is life—and marriage."

The auctioneer had raised his gavel.

"Eight thousand bid. Who offers nine? Does no one offer nine? Then — fair warning — eight thousand — one — eight thousand — two — eight thousand —"

"Nine," cried Duke.

"Ten."

The auctioneer looked at Duke. But before he could bid again, Carol said: "If you raise this again, I'll withdraw Moon Ray. Fair warning." He knew she meant it, so with a charming smile, he turned and bowed to Hartley.

"Sold!" came the auctioneer's announcement with the bang of the gavel, "Moon Ray of Brookdale Farm, for ten thousand dollars to Mr. Hartley Madison of Newport."

Duke smiled at Carol and shook his head, as he might to a child.

"Perhaps you will succeed, but just at present you're not very wise to business—I could have run it up several grand more."

"Wise." Grandfather Clayton growled. "She's crazy. Why in the name of all the saints in heaven and all the devils in the other place should I have a granddaughter who'd sell Moon Ray in the first place—and then refuse to let the bidding go on."

Hartley Madison and his mother elbowed their way through the crowd.

"Carol, dearest," he asked, "were you surprised when you saw the Mater and me here tonight?"

She returned Mrs. Madison's kiss before she answered.

"Surprised doesn't do justice to my feelings," she said.

"I don't know much about horses." Mrs. Madison was interrupted by a pleasant voice, saying: "But I'll wager that, like the man in the art gallery, you know what you like."

Carol's eyes had a dangerous glint in them. Was there no limit to the audacity of Duke Bradley? Mrs. Madison turned to see who had spoken to her.

"May I cap informality with a soupcon of conventionally, Mrs. Madison, and introduce myself? I am Duke Bradley."

CAROL, expecting from Mrs. Madison a politeness covered with rather more than a suspicion of frost, was amazed to see her—the Mrs. Madison—give Duke a warm smile and her hand.

"Are you by any chance a mind reader?" she asked gaily.

"If I may paraphrase another well-known line—who am I to snub Shakespeare?—in my time I have played many parts, but unfortunately telepathy has been neglected."

Carol, who usually was quick to speak, wanted to say something—anything—and could find no words. Mrs. Madison's words she could not hear, but when Duke spoke, she heard.

"Mrs. Madison, would you mind very much," he asked with his most beguiling smile, "if I told you that for years I have admired you in the rotogravure sections, but now that I have met you, I feel photography is still an undeveloped art—which sounds dangerously like a pun, perhaps, but is the truth as I see it—or rather as I see you."

Carol tried to join the others in the laughter that rang out—she must not let any of them see how disconcerted she was—but she seemed to have lost control of her facial muscles.

"Many things I've heard about you, Bradley," said Hartley, "so I might have guessed you were a lady's man, too. Tell me, were you really—"

"Just to save time," Duke broke in, "I'll say they're all true, no matter how they contradict each other. Just choose the one you like best and I'll swear you're right. But all I'll tell you is that I am a race track hound, and I'm always planning to give it up and sing."

Duke could feel Carol's eyes boring into him. He knew she had lost control of herself. One thing more and she might lash out; say something, do something which would ruin everything. Fortunately, Mr. Clayton was talking.

"That's a fine horse your son bought, Mrs. Madison," he said. "I don't know whatever possessed Carol to sell it, but if anybody else is going to have it, I'm glad it is you."

"And, of course, in a short time, it will really be Carol's, too," answered Mrs. Madison. "What is Hartley's will be hers, of course."

"Why did you put up Moon Ray, dear?" asked Hartley. "Or is it a secret?"

"There must never be any secrets between us," she said with the soft voice and tender smile of a girl very much in love. Then as they started to walk across the grass to the clubhouse, and she could talk to him without the others hearing, she said: "Hartley, dearest, I meant what I said. I told you this morning I had to straighten out some affairs of father's—and in doing it the sale of Moon Ray was indicated. It's all complicated. Some time I'll tell you everything, perhaps. Can we let it ride?"

Mrs. Madison called Hartley, reminded him he had a phone call to New York to make, and in a moment Carol found herself walking alone with Duke.

"YOU'RE a rat," she said, "in more ways than one. Don't think I'm not on to all your tricks. You certainly have a bag full. I know just what you're after—flattering Mrs. Madison, trying to be the glamour boy. You may think you have worked your way into their good graces, but you won't get close to their bank roll."

"You hurt me, Carol," he said. "What I am is Cupid—just trying to make you and Hartley happy —happier I mean and right away. It all came to me when Hartley called out his first bid. He really wants to bet and he can afford it. He also wants to be married. You won't let me give you back that deed and you won't marry until you run ten grand up to seventy-six. Which means you'll be gray and toothless and finally end up in a home for undeserving old maids."

"I won't listen another minute," said Carol, starting to walk away from him.

"Just a minute. You don't give any evidence of having an ounce of sense, but perhaps you're not really feeble minded. So my plan to achieve everyone's dearest wish is this—you see to it that Hartley places his bets through me and I'll cancel your marker right away and you can be married.

"How can you think I'd"——

"Don't let that silly temper and obstinacy of yours run away with what little sense you have. Put it under the heading of advance commissions. It's perfectly legitimate. So—do I get Hartley"——

"You do not. I know you think I can't get that $76,000, but I don't care anything about your law of averages. I'll show you. Something has just come to me, as you would say. Think carefully before you answer. Will you take my bets?"

He pretended to be deep in thought for a moment.

"Yes," he said. "I'll do it because I believe in the law of averages—even if my real name is Mr. Cupid."

EDWARD MEIGHAN of Memphis, Tenn. HAS RAISED A FLAG IN HIS FRONT YARD EVERY DAY FOR 45 YEARS

TODAY'S EXPLANATIONS

In Port Arthur, Tex., the "Help Thy Neighbor's" spirit prevails in a most admirable form. Recently a member of the Port Arthur Building Trades Council died and his widow was left without a home. The men of the town decided to provide her with one immediately. On Saturday, April 24th, nearly 100 of them got together and went to work en masse. For 7 hours and 45 minutes they scurried back and forth, busy as bees. At the end of that short time the widow walked into her new home, complete in every detail. And during their "spare time," "Believe It or Not," they built a one-car garage at the rear of the house.

A 35-foot flagpole stands in the front yard of Edward Meighan's home in Memphis, Tenn. Every day for more than 45 years the American Flag has been raised and lowered with appropriate ceremonies. Although never serving the flag as a soldier or sailor, Mr. Meighan began this observance when he became 21 years of age and has continued it, without interruption, ever since.

Start of Vacation

Begin your vacation with a feeling that it is going to be a fine one. Forget the things you are leaving at home as much as possible and keep your mind on the things you are doing when away. Ignore small things that may be displeasing in a thorough enjoyment of the larger things. Keep outdoors as much as possible, only using that bedroom for sleeping purposes. When a vacation is begun with enthusiastic anticipation, it takes a terribly poor time to spoil it.

Burning Feet

In the spring a young man's fancy may turn to thoughts of love, but some of us older and weightier folks have thoughts turning to swollen and burning feet. If you have been on your feet all day and expect to do more footwork in the evening, take time off to bathe the feet well in warm water containing some Epsom salts. Then don clean stockings into which some powdered borax or talcum is shaken. It will relieve the burning feeling and also act as a deodorant.

Inky Fingers

If your children are the sort who never use a pen without winding up with ink on their fingers, invest in a piece of pumice stone. The stone has but to be dampened and then rubbed against the stain and the ink is gone like magic.

Advice to Wives

Don't go to bed with cold cream smeared all over your face and your head wrapped up in a heavy net to keep the wave. Work out those details in the daytime.

Get up in time in the morning to dress properly and neatly. Don't run around the kitchen in a nightgown and old kimono. Don't forget that is hubby's last glimpse before he goes to the office, where all the girls are neat and attractive these days.

Crabmeat Canoes

Six medium potatoes, two tablespoons butter, four tablespoons milk, one tablespoon grated onion, dash of pepper, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup crabmeat and 12 cups grated American cheese. Bake potatoes; cut lengthwise and scoop out carefully. Mash potatoes, add butter, milk, onion and seasonings, beat until smooth. Add crabmeat to this mixture and refill shells, mounding slightly. Bake in a slow oven 20 minutes. Serves six.

Sweeten the hot cake batter with a little molasses; it will give more flavor than plain sugar.

Keep Mum

Burned food means a careless cook and if you should by any chance spoil some article of food through burning, don't tell everyone about it. We are not allowed to boast of our good points, so why should we select our mistakes for broadcasting? Just remove the evidence before anyone returns home for dinner and plan something else. You are not apt to repeat the performance.

A lump of orris root in the boiler on wash day will give a lovely fragrance to the clothes, delicate, yet lasting even after the clothes are ironed.

Keep a jelly tumbler near the wash tubs and put in it any buttons that may come off in the washer or wringer. Then you are sure to have them when mending.

VOL. 89. No. 281.

EIGHT SOVIET ARMY CHIEFS EXECUTED FOR TREASON

Charged With Plotting to Surrender Ukraine to Foreign Control in Exchange for Aid in Unspecified "Enterprises."

GERMANY IS NAMED BY MOSCOW PAPERS

Commissar Voroshilov However, Says Subordinates Had Dealings With General Staffs of More Than One Nation.

MOSCOW, June 12.—Germany was named today as the foreign power which, according to Soviet charges, induced eight Communist leaders of the Soviet army, including Marshal Mikhail N. Tukhachevsky, to betray their fatherland. Following the swift sentencing of all eight yesterday to die by shooting, announcement was made today that the sentences had been carried out.

A terse communique issued late tonight said only that they had been executed yesterday. As usual there were no details.

Tonight, however, Marshal Klementi E. Voroshilov, the Soviet defense commissar, issued a general order to the Soviet army, declaring the eight men had been directly linked with general staffs of more than one "bourgeois" nation and had agreed to surrender the Ukraine to foreign domination in return for foreign aid in their private enterprises. The order will be transmitted to the army tomorrow.

"Wrecking" Also Charged.

The order also made it known, for the first time, that there was a special meeting from June 1 to 4 of the defense commissariat's military council with members of the government participating. The meeting considered disclosures on which the military tribunal of the Soviet Supreme Court based its death sentences.

Voroshilov, in the order, charged also that the executed officers, besides selling military secrets to foreign governments, had organized "wrecking in technical material and supplies for the front." He accused them also of selling out their country for money.

The executions increased to at least 123 the number put to death within the past year in the Government's drive to stamp out all opposition within the country.

Those Who Were Shot.

Besides Tukhachevsky, vice-commissar of defense until a month ago, and long known as one of the most brilliant Soviet military leaders, those who faced the firing squad were:

Gen. A. I. Kork, former commandant of the Frunze Military Academy, Russia's "West Point."

Gen. I. E. Takir, former commander of the Leningrad district garrison.

Gen. B. M. Feldman, former chief of the personnel section of the general staff.

Gen. V. M. Primakoff, of the Kharkoff military garrison.

Gen. Kazimirovitch V. Putna, former military attache in Rome, Berlin and Tokio.

Secrecy of the Trial.

Until yesterday there had been no word the men were on trial, although it had been disclosed Tukhachevsky, Eideman, Uborevitch and Yakir had been removed from their posts.

Early this morning, the official Soviet news agency, Tass, announced the Supreme Court of the Soviet Union had sentenced all eight to be shot. There was no appeal, under the law.

They were found guilty of aiding the military intelligence service of an "unfriendly" foreign power. The Supreme Court did not name that power, but official Moscow newspapers accused Germany bluntly.

The Government newspaper Isvestia said: "We know who, in fits of bloodthirsty desire, has dreamed of the rich fields, giant factories and natural riches of the dreamed. We know who has
